Pro-U. S. Catholics Stage Rally

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The influential Catholic citizens bloc staged a massive show of strength Sunday to back demands for an active strategy in the fight against the Communist Viet Cong.

Between 60,000 and 80,000 persons — most of them in closed ranks and semimilitary uniform — roared approval of the demands read by the Rev. Iran Du, the organization's head.

DECLARATION

The declaration said that victory can be achieved only if Viet Nam's leaders "carry out an anti-Communist fight in accordance with an active strategy."

"We are determined to stand opposed to all plots stimulating sham peace," the declaration added.

Under a blazing tropical sun, unit after unit of the Catholic "commando groups" marched in orderly ranks through the heart of the city.

It was an impressive show of strength and organization in contrast with recent rioting by mobs of Buddhist youths.

Police helicopters, circling low over the demonstrators as they massed near Saigon's waterfront, estimated the crowd at between 60,000 to 80,000.

It was the biggest, most orderly and best-organized demonstration in the restive Vietnamese capital in the past two years.

The Catholics obviously acted to counter the recent Buddhist-inspired antigovernment agitation. The Sunday demonstration coincided with the growing disarray within Buddhist ranks.

The Catholic citizens front, however, was not totally backing the regime of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, the main target of Buddhist opposition.

The declaration of demands warned that Viet Nam's present leaders "must quickly carry out democracy."

"The present government must acknowledge its responsibility. It cannot, for any feigned reason or through any clique pressure, fight shy of its responsibility of profferring temporary measures."

The Catholic statement showed some bitterness with the government, referring to the "meticulously reserved attitude of those charged with the responsibility of fighting against the Communists."

Speaking of peace overtures frequently mentioned in Viet Nam, the statement said: "Every initiative and every good will aiming at re-establishing peace in Viet Nam is worth being encouraged. True peace can only be established if the Communists give up every will and act of aggression. Accordingly, we are determined to stand opposed to all plots stimulating sham peace in compliance with the Communist strategy."

With drums rolling and bugles blowing, led by 15,000 backskirted "commando groups," the Catholics then marched back. The march was coordinated by leaders with portable radios. Makeshift ambulances rolled behind the columns and chanted slogans were accompanied by the rhythmic thump of feet.

Catholics represent generally between 12 and 15 per cent of Viet Nam's 15 million inhabitants. Their ranks have been swelled by Catholic refugees from North Viet Nam.

The recent rise in Buddhist agitation has prompted the Catholics to tighten their ranks.

Slogans rhythmically chanted by the marchers demanded a fight against communism "until victory," hailed Americans and other allies of South Viet Nam and banned any compromise with the Communist Viet Cong.

War Successes Exceed U.S. Hopes In Viet Nam, More Troops Necessary

McNamara Tags 18,000 For Fighting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Saturday that military successes in Viet Nam "exceeded our expectations" in the first quarter of this year, but said more U.S. troops will be sent there to counter continuing infiltration from the Communist North.

McNamara said 18,000 more GIs already are ticketed for South Viet Nam duty, which would boost the total there to some 285,000. Some expect the buildup to reach 400,000 by the end of the year.

FURTHER TURMOIL

Secretary of State Dean Rusk joined McNamara in anticipating further political turmoil in South Viet Nam as it shifts from a military toward a civilian regime.

However, after cutting the effectiveness of the military campaign in half earlier this spring, the internal turmoil's impact on the anti-Viet Cong effort has now been virtually overcome and "I don't think that controversy will impede military progress," McNamara said.

The administration's defense and foreign affairs chiefs spoke at a wide-ranging news conference immediately after a special White House briefing for Democratic and Republican congressional leaders.

President Johnson presided at the two-hour session, which also featured a report by Rusk on his just-concluded European trip.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois had complained that the administration was not engaging in enough bipartisan consultation on Viet Nam. After Saturday's midday gathering, he left the White House voicing satisfaction with the meeting.

Senate atic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and other administration supporters recited statistics designed to show how much the Johnson regime has kept in touch with Congress and the Republican opposition. The President himself told reporters this was the 39th such bipartisan parley since he entered the White House.

Rusk hit back, too, at Harvard Prof. John K. Galbraith, a Kennedy administration ambassador to India, who had termed the secretary of state "terribly misinformed" in believing there is wide support for administration foreign policy.

"I don't know of any subject on which the American people have been more fully informed than Viet Nam," Rusk said. "Sometimes Prof. Galbraith's wit conceals his basic premises," he added.

Rusk said France's 14 allies intend to push ahead with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alliance without backbiting against President Charles de Gaulle, who is divorcing France from NATO's integrated military system.

McNamara and Rusk stoutly denied any intent to cut back the 225,000-man U.S. force in West Europe.

Rusk portrayed the Soviet threat as still there, and on Viet Nam he challenged Soviet leaders "who make rude remarks" against U.S. actions in Viet Nam to try some peacemaking instead. He noted the U.S.S.R. is co-chairman of the Geneva convention supposed to guarantee peace, neutrality and independence for Indochina.

Legislation Pushed By Adcock Hit

The Ouachita Parish School Board's legislative committee chairman Saturday lashed a proposal for the removal of Monroe residents from the board and said, in effect, that Sen. Jamar Adcock had not been "dependable" in seeking a legislative remedy to the board's taxing problems.

The chairman, Mrs. Marie Louise Snellings, in a letter to the senator and released to the Morning World after unsuccessful attempts to contact Adcock, declared her objections amounted "to a conclusion that we do not believe that your behavior toward us has been dependable."

Adcock last week introduced in the Legislature a proposed constitutional amendment to take Monroe dwellers from the board, since, he said, city residents do no pay parish school taxes.

Of this Mrs. Snellings said, "If all the members of Wards 10 and 3 were off the board, about 5,000 a year would be saved. I hope that the services of eight members whom I have found to be dedicated and earnest are surely worth this stipend."

After outlining the loss to the parish system of school maintenance taxes with each extension of Monroe city limits, the chairman added, "If my resignation, or my place on the school board, can assure to the schools of our parish a fixed and certain tax boundary, I will be happy with that result."

'MANY TIMES'

She said "many times" the amount of the city members' board pay is lost to the system through the lack of a fixed taxing boundary, and added that Adcock agreed to support a bill to create such a boundary.

"The parish school board had voted unanimously in favor of the bill which we asked you to sponsor. You said that our position was equitable and that you would give it your support.

"Not only have you not done so, you have introduced legislation which recognizes the right of the City of Monroe to continue to expand on and on, wiping out our taxes just as has been the case," Mrs. Snellings said.

The letter, mailed to Adcock, the parish school board and Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George Wood, also challenged the senator's reported statement that the boundary bill was not introduced because of "no support at all" from the representatives.

"This did not keep you from introducing it, did it?" she asked. "If so, then I must assume that you have their support for your present measure or surely you would not have introduced it.

"Yet I wonder if you have. Rep. Wood assures me that you did not consult him or even mention to him the tax boundary measure or the present one either."

As indication of what she called the "unfairness" of the boundary lack, Mrs. Snellings said, "Presently, we have some 2,000 students living in the city in parish schools which do not receive maintenance support from their areas." She also pointed out that "in those cities in Louisiana other than Monroe where there is a dual school system, there has been a school tax boundary set by statute."

Mrs. Snellings criticized Adcock for failure to notify the board of his intent to introduce the amendment: "Procedurally, I believe that normal business and professional ethics and good manners would demand that you apprise us of your intentions and not leave us to find it out from the newspaper."

U. S. Artillery, Bombers Plastering Cornered Reds

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. artillery and Air Force bombers Sunday lashed a mountainous jungle crawling with cornered Communists.

American ground forces also moved in for the kill after two trapped paratrooper companies fought their way to safety, ending an epic two-day stand.

Saturday night, U.S. heavy artillery, machinegunning helicopters and planes carrying deadly "cluster bombs" unleashed their full fury on the Communists.

The U.S. Army's 101st Airborne Division has reported killing 786 North Vietnamese in this five-day-old "Operation Hawthorne" battle 300 miles north of Saigon.

CLOSING IN

On the ground, units of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division and South Vietnamese forces poured into the area, closing in for what they hoped would be an encircling ring around the Communists who already have lost some 700 dead in one of the biggest battles of the Viet Nam war.

On another sector far to the south, U.S. 1st Infantry Division troops reported they killed 80 Communists just 75 miles north of Saigon. A spokesman said the Communists had been fleeing the scene of a Wednesday battle in which 200 to 250 Viet Cong were killed by armored units when the Communists tried to ambush a column of 1st Division armored personnel carriers and tanks on Highway 13.

Giant U.S. B52 superfortresses and American strike aircraft, flying hundreds of sorties, joined with the big guns of the artillery to zero in on the entire enemy area in the central highlands 300 miles north of Saigon.

"We're going to plaster the area with everything we've got, everything we own," said Col. Theodore C. Mataxis, of Seattle, Wash., deputy commander of the 101st Airborne's 1st Brigade.

The Air Force was dropping a variety of CBU's (cluster bomb units)—anti personnel devices that explode over a large area, hurling shrapnel and even droplets of jallied napalm that sears into the flesh and cannot be rubbed off. The jelly must be cut out quickly with a knife.

Mataxis said that in addition to the air strikes, the Americans and South Vietnamese were blasting the area with 8-inch field weapons, rockets, and .50 caliber machine guns.

"By standards of counter-insurgency, this is a h—— of a lot of fire that we are drawing . . . and giving," Col. Mataxis said.

Gardens Open

The W. R. Gates gardens at 1007 Meadowbrook Dr., West Monroe, are open to the public today and Monday with lilies expected to be at their height.

Mrs. Gates said visitors registered from 10 states this past week, from Ohio to Texas and from Michigan to Maryland.

Many persons en route to the American Daylily Society National Convention in Jackson, Miss., have stopped for a visit.

The raising and production of daylilies is the hobby of Mr. and Mrs. Gates. They have some 10,000 blooming plants in the gardens.

A recent trip to Texas was not too enjoyable for 7-year old Sharon Kay Stevens. After only three days of swimming in the Gulf, touring the Sea-A-Rama of Texas in Galveston and visiting with relatives, she broke out with measles and had to spend the remainder of the trip indoors.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stevens of Monroe.

Freight Cars Derail In Area

WINNSBORO (Special) — Thirteen cars of a north-bound Missouri - Pacific freight train derailed Saturday two miles north of Wisner. No one was injured, apparently.

Bystanders put out a small grass fire began presumably by sparks from the wreckage.

A railroad spokesman said that no chemicals or dangerous cargo was on the train, and that most of the cars were empty.

The branch line discontinued passenger and mail service "several years ago," the spokesman said.

Cause of the derailment had not been determined by late Saturday, Sheriff's deputies in Winnsboro said.

Aid Bill May Spark Debates On Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) —Senatorial worries about U.S. foreign policy its commitments and costs are being written into President Johnson's $3.4-billion foreign aid bill.

When the measure, with its worldwide economic and military assistance programs, reaches the floor from the Foreign Relations Committee it could become the springboard for another round of bristling debate over Viet Nam.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana acknowledged this is possible.

"It could be such a vehicle," Mansfield said in an interview. "But I would hope it wouldn't because there are so many other factors involved in addition to Viet Nam."

As of now, Mansfield said, the political turmoil and increased American casualties in Viet Nam have moved the Senate toward reflection rather than talk.

"I find more silence, and maybe more thinking," he said.

The schedule now is for the Foreign Relations Committee to complete its work on the bill next week. Mansfield hopes the Senate will be able to act on it before the Fourth of July break.

Seeing warning signals, the administration already is planning some high-level lobbying in behalf of the bruised foreign aid authorization.

Presumably in an effort to get the Senate to overturn some of the committee's actions in cutting and restricting the program, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has invited all senators to a party Wednesday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

For three weeks the administration bill has been pushed and pulled on the long green baize table behind the committee's closed white-louvered doors.

Disclosure of some of the early actions — such as slashing the five-year authorization the President requested to one year — brought such an intense administration reaction that Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., stopped announcing what changes the committee was making.

Despite administration urging, the committee stood fast on its one-year authorization, but retreated, at least part way, on some of the restrictions.

Administration spokesmen have decried taking out on the aid program feelings about Viet Nam policy.

Lots Of Sunshine Expected Today

The forecast today calls for clear to partly cloudy skies with a high temperature of 86 to 92 and low readings of 66 to 72.

Saturday's high was 91 at 2 p.m. and the low recorded was 62 at 6 a.m. by FAA at Selman Field in Monroe.

There will be 80 per cent or more sunshine today and near 70 per cent Monday. No rain is indicated through Monday.

Drying conditions will be fair to poor at night becoming good in the daytime. Winds will be variable at 5 to 15 miles per hour. Dewpoints will be in the 60's.

LBJ Spared Sight Of Demonstrators

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anti-Viet Nam war and civil rights demonstrators were sealed off by police out of sight of President Johnson Saturday night when the chief executive attended two parties here for major Democratic party contributors.

One hundred 50 pickets gathered near the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, where the President attended a dinner of the President's Club, an organization of persons who contributed $1,000 or more to the Democratic party.

The demonstrators, led by Lincoln Lynch, associate national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), wanted to hand the President a letter of protest against the court martial of a Negro Army private who refused to fight in Viet Nam. The soldier, Pvt. Adam R. Weber Jr. of New Orleans, 24, a former seminarian, was sentenced to a year at hard labor.

ENTRANCE BAR

But Lynch got only as far as secret service agent John Powers at the door of the main ballroom of the Waldorf, where he has told, "This is as far as anyone goes without a ticket." Lynch handed a letter of protest to Powers, which also called on the President to return American troops from Viet Nam to guard civil rights demonstrators in the South.

The pickets, who shouted "GI's die and U.S. firms get rich" and sang the civil rights chant, "We shall overcome," were herded by police behind barricades on Park Ave., between 48th and 49th Streets. They were some two blocks away from the President, who left his limousine in the hotel garage under the building and was not only out of sight but out of voice range of the demonstrators.

The president was accompanied to the city by his whole family.

The party flew into the city in evening dress and hurried off to break bread at the two parties to reward the party faithful and urge them to get out the vote in November.

Those at the Americana Hotel party contributed $100 to the Democratic party to get a ticket.

The President's Air Force twin-engine prop jet convair landed at the marine terminal at La Guardia Airport at 7:04 p.m. EDT and the White House party quickly motored into Manhattan, where the faithful awaited them at the Americana Hotel, first stop for the Johnsons.

The President, wearing a tuxedo, left the plane first and was greeted by Police Commissioner Howard Leary.

The chief executive was followed from the plane by his wife, Lady Bird—resplendent in a long white evening gown and a sequined jacket—and daughters Lynda Bird and Luci.

Tugboat Lands Cuban Athletes

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —A 364-man delegation of Cuban athletes came ashore by tugboat Saturday after a two-day wait at sea—barred by the U.S. government from entering Puerto Rican waters in their ship.

The first group, about 130 athletes, was greeted by catcalls, jeers and a few cheers from a crowd of 3,000 persons at dockside.

Intensive Search Begins For Scouts On Rio Grande

BOQUILLAS, Tex. (AP)—An intensive search of the wilderness of Big Bend National Park along the Rio Grande was pressed Saturday night for 15 New Mexico Boy Scouts and their leader missing after a weeklong raft trip on the river.

Officials would not speculate on the fate of the 16 whose trip paralleled in part that made by Lady Bird Johnson, wife of the President, when she visited the park in April.

"It's too early to tell," said Terry Brown, park superintendent. "There is a lot of country to cover."

"We haven't found any bodies or anything that is amiss," said the Border Patrol officer at Marfa, Tex.

Fear for the 15 scouts and their leader, John Rachel, 42, of Hobbs, N.M., mounted when what Brown described as a "tremendous storm" pounded the area northwest of the Park Thursday night and Friday.

The heavy rain sent torrents of water rushing toward the Rio Grande, causing the river to rise from 6 to 10 feet. The water level was down to 3.4 feet today, Brown said.

"Everybody started looking for them Friday after the storm," the Border Patrol spokesman said. "The storm was considered bad enough that they started looking for them."

New storms menaced the area Saturday night and an air search of side canyons where the party could have sought safety was halted until morning.

The party entered the river Monday at the lower end of Santa Elena Canyon at Castolon on the Texas-Mexico border. They had three rafts—"two of them homemade like," the park superintendent said.

The rafts were found today on the Mexico side of the river near Mariscal Canyon, which Brown said is "one of the easier canyons of the three" the party would have been involved with.

The 50 to 55-mile trip was to end at the mouth of Boquillas Canyon here on the easternside of the park.

"We're going to plaster the area with everything we've got, everything we own," said Col. Theodore C. Mataxis, of Seattle, Wash., deputy commander of the 101st Airborne's 1st Brigade.

The Air Force was dropping a variety of CBU's (cluster bomb units)—anti personnel devices that explode over a large area, hurling shrapnel and even droplets of jallied napalm that sears into the flesh and cannot be rubbed off. The jelly must be cut out quickly with a knife.

Mataxis said that in addition to the air strikes, the Americans and South Vietnamese were blasting the area with 8-inch field weapons, rockets, and .50 caliber machine guns.

"By standards of counter-insurgency, this is a h—— of a lot of fire that we are drawing . . . and giving," Col. Mataxis said.

Gardens Open

The W. R. Gates gardens at 1007 Meadowbrook Dr., West Monroe, are open to the public today and Monday with lilies expected to be at their height.

Mrs. Gates said visitors registered from 10 states this past week, from Ohio to Texas and from Michigan to Maryland.

Many persons en route to the American Daylily Society National Convention in Jackson, Miss., have stopped for a visit.

The raising and production of daylilies is the hobby of Mr. and Mrs. Gates. They have some 10,000 blooming plants in the gardens.

Breaks Out

A recent trip to Texas was not too enjoyable for 7-year old Sharon Kay Stevens. After only three days of swimming in the Gulf, touring the Sea-A-Rama of Texas in Galveston and visiting with relatives, she broke out with measles and had to spend the remainder of the trip indoors.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stevens of Monroe.

Freight Cars Derail In Area

WINNSBORO (Special) — Thirteen cars of a north-bound Missouri - Pacific freight train derailed Saturday two miles north of Wisner. No one was injured, apparently.

Bystanders put out a small grass fire began presumably by sparks from the wreckage.

A railroad spokesman said that no chemicals or dangerous cargo was on the train, and that most of the cars were empty.

The branch line discontinued passenger and mail service "several years ago," the spokesman said.

Cause of the derailment had not been determined by late Saturday, Sheriff's deputies in Winnsboro said.

Aid Bill May Spark Debates On Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) —Senatorial worries about U.S. foreign policy its commitments and costs are being written into President Johnson's $3.4-billion foreign aid bill.

When the measure, with its worldwide economic and military assistance programs, reaches the floor from the Foreign Relations Committee it could become the springboard for another round of bristling debate over Viet Nam.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana acknowledged this is possible.

"It could be such a vehicle," Mansfield said in an interview. "But I would hope it wouldn't because there are so many other factors involved in addition to Viet Nam."

As of now, Mansfield said, the political turmoil and increased American casualties in Viet Nam have moved the Senate toward reflection rather than talk.

"I find more silence, and maybe more thinking," he said.

The schedule now is for the Foreign Relations Committee to complete its work on the bill next week. Mansfield hopes the Senate will be able to act on it before the Fourth of July break.

Seeing warning signals, the administration already is planning some high-level lobbying in behalf of the bruised foreign aid authorization.

Presumably in an effort to get the Senate to overturn some of the committee's actions in cutting and restricting the program, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has invited all senators to a party Wednesday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

For three weeks the administration bill has been pushed and pulled on the long green baize table behind the committee's closed white-louvered doors.

Disclosure of some of the early actions — such as slashing the five-year authorization the President requested to one year — brought such an intense administration reaction that Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., stopped announcing what changes the committee was making.

Despite administration urging, the committee stood fast on its one-year authorization, but retreated, at least part way, on some of the restrictions.

Administration spokesmen have decried taking out on the aid program feelings about Viet Nam policy.

Lots Of Sunshine Expected Today

The forecast today calls for clear to partly cloudy skies with a high temperature of 86 to 92 and low readings of 66 to 72.

Saturday's high was 91 at 2 p.m. and the low recorded was 62 at 6 a.m. by FAA at Selman Field in Monroe.

There will be 80 per cent or more sunshine today and near 70 per cent Monday. No rain is indicated through Monday.

Drying conditions will be fair to poor at night becoming good in the daytime. Winds will be variable at 5 to 15 miles per hour. Dewpoints will be in the 60's.

LBJ Spared Sight Of Demonstrators

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anti-Viet Nam war and civil rights demonstrators were sealed off by police out of sight of President Johnson Saturday night when the chief executive attended two parties here for major Democratic party contributors.

One hundred 50 pickets gathered near the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, where the President attended a dinner of the President's Club, an organization of persons who contributed $1,000 or more to the Democratic party.

The demonstrators, led by Lincoln Lynch, associate national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), wanted to hand the President a letter of protest against the court martial of a Negro Army private who refused to fight in Viet Nam. The soldier, Pvt. Adam R. Weber Jr. of New Orleans, 24, a former seminarian, was sentenced to a year at hard labor.

ENTRANCE BAR

But Lynch got only as far as secret service agent John Powers at the door of the main ballroom of the Waldorf, where he has told, "This is as far as anyone goes without a ticket." Lynch handed a letter of protest to Powers, which also called on the President to return American troops from Viet Nam to guard civil rights demonstrators in the South.

The pickets, who shouted "GI's die and U.S. firms get rich" and sang the civil rights chant, "We shall overcome," were herded by police behind barricades on Park Ave., between 48th and 49th Streets. They were some two blocks away from the President, who left his limousine in the hotel garage under the building and was not only out of sight but out of voice range of the demonstrators.

The president was accompanied to the city by his whole family.

The party flew into the city in evening dress and hurried off to break bread at the two parties to reward the party faithful and urge them to get out the vote in November.

Those at the Americana Hotel party contributed $100 to the Democratic party to get a ticket.

The President's Air Force twin-engine prop jet convair landed at the marine terminal at La Guardia Airport at 7:04 p.m. EDT and the White House party quickly motored into Manhattan, where the faithful awaited them at the Americana Hotel, first stop for the Johnsons.

The President, wearing a tuxedo, left the plane first and was greeted by Police Commissioner Howard Leary.

The chief executive was followed from the plane by his wife, Lady Bird—resplendent in a long white evening gown and a sequined jacket—and daughters Lynda Bird and Luci.

Tugboat Lands Cuban Athletes

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —A 364-man delegation of Cuban athletes came ashore by tugboat Saturday after a two-day wait at sea—barred by the U.S. government from entering Puerto Rican waters in their ship.

The first group, about 130 athletes, was greeted by catcalls, jeers and a few cheers from a crowd of 3,000 persons at dockside.

Intensive Search Begins For Scouts On Rio Grande

BOQUILLAS, Tex. (AP)—An intensive search of the wilderness of Big Bend National Park along the Rio Grande was pressed Saturday night for 15 New Mexico Boy Scouts and their leader missing after a weeklong raft trip on the river.

Officials would not speculate on the fate of the 16 whose trip paralleled in part that made by Lady Bird Johnson, wife of the President, when she visited the park in April.

"It's too early to tell," said Terry Brown, park superintendent. "There is a lot of country to cover."

"We haven't found any bodies or anything that is amiss," said the Border Patrol officer at Marfa, Tex.

Fear for the 15 scouts and their leader, John Rachel, 42, of Hobbs, N.M., mounted when what Brown described as a "tremendous storm" pounded the area northwest of the Park Thursday night and Friday.

The heavy rain sent torrents of water rushing toward the Rio Grande, causing the river to rise from 6 to 10 feet. The water level was down to 3.4 feet today, Brown said.

"Everybody started looking for them Friday after the storm," the Border Patrol spokesman said. "The storm was considered bad enough that they started looking for them."

New storms menaced the area Saturday night and an air search of side canyons where the party could have sought safety was halted until morning.

The party entered the river Monday at the lower end of Santa Elena Canyon at Castolon on the Texas-Mexico border. They had three rafts—"two of them homemade like," the park superintendent said.

The rafts were found today on the Mexico side of the river near Mariscal Canyon, which Brown said is "one of the easier canyons of the three" the party would have been involved with.

The 50 to 55-mile trip was to end at the mouth of Boquillas Canyon here on the easternside of the park.

Business Bureau Chairman Named

A Twin Cities businessman, Bernard Biedenharn, has been named chairman of the Better Business Bureau of Ouachita Parish, it was announced Saturday by Bureau officials.

Biedenharn, who is 59, is president of Ouachita Candy Co., and president of Ouachita Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Monroe. He is married, resides on Arrant Road, West Monroe, and is a member of the Monroe Kiwanis Club. He studied at Princeton University.

In assuming his duties, Biedenharn said that "An active Better Business Bureau will easily save the people of the community an estimated more than $300,000 a year."

He added, "I am interested in anything that will better business and better the environment of the community. The Better Business Bureau not only helps and protects business, but it also helps the people in the community."

Bureau officials Saturday also announced other officers for the Ouachita Division. George Moses, president of Gay Clothing Co., will serve as co-chairman, and Tony Renfro, vice president of the Ouachita National Bank, will be secretary.

Biedenharn said a drive will start June 20 aimed at increasing the membership in the Bureau here to 350. Membership in the movement which has been under way in the parish for about four years, is presently around 30.

The Better Business Bureau of Ouachita Parish will be a division of the Better Business Bureau of Shreveport, which has been in operation for more than 20 years. Manager of the Shreveport Bureau is R. A. (Bob) Booth.

Starting July 1, residents of Ouachita Parish will be able to dial a toll free local number which will connect with a direct line to the Shreveport office of the bureau. The local phone number will be 387-4600. Mail to the bureau may be addressed to Post Office Box 1224, Monroe. The Shreveport office will maintain the Ouachita area file and conduct investigations for this division.

The objective of the Better Business Bureau is to look for improper business practices and protect not only the legitimate businessman, but the consumer.

Police Hunt Automobile In Collision

State police late Saturday were searching for an automobile believed part of a four-car accident on Interstate-20, in which the only casualty was a cut knee, apparently.

John T. Cowser, 20, driver of the car towing a late model racing car, was taken to Glenwood Hospital by ambulance for treatment.

He and his four companions, all of Arcadia, were headed east, when a car driven by Mrs. Virginia M. Gallien, Stewart St., West Monroe, swerved into the left lane to go around a car stopped in the right lane — forcing the Cowser auto into the left guard rail, state police said. The towed car broke loose and overturned.

The youths were headed for a local drag racing strip, they told officers, who said investigation of the accident was incomplete late Saturday.

The accident occurred just east of the Stella-Mill Street exit.

Special Police Squad Arrests Many In Hue

Hue, South Viet Nam (AP) — A special police squad from Saigon has arrested between 50 and 100 persons and expects to pick up more on charges of antigovernment activity in this Buddhist center, police sources said Saturday night.

It was a step toward combatting dissidence reflected in a march of about 5,000 demonstrators Saturday with banners carrying on a Buddhist-led campaign, fading elsewhere, against Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government and the United States for supporting that government.

The crowd was orderly. Riot police of a 400-man contingent flown in from Saigon Friday stood by, but did not interfere.

The demonstration marked the third anniversary of the fire suicide of monk Quang Duc. Duc was the first of 16 Vietnamese Buddhists to burn himself to death as a gesture of dissatisfaction with governmental leadership. There were seven in all in 1963 against President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime and nine in 1966 against Ky's.

Vietnamese condemn the American President's colonialist policy in Viet Nam.," said one of the banners.

Thich Tri Quang, the militants' chief, didn't march. He was in a hospital in the fourth day of a hunger strike he dealers he will continue until President Johnson drops American support of Ky. Aides said Quang is subsisting on tea, water and juices.

Playground Attendance Hits 2,554

Attendance on playgrounds sponsored by the Monroe Recreation Department for the past week was 2,554.

Playgrounds are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

They are located at Barkdull-Faulk School, Lida Benton School, Clara Hall School, Georgia Tucker School, Lexington School and Sherrouse School for white children, and at Clarks School, Lincoln School, Carver School and Johnson Recreation Center for Negroes.

Games, such as checkers, dominoes, card games, zell ball, ping pong, box hockey are available.

This week all playground will have a checker tournament on Tuesday and a wheel parade on Friday.

Hearing On Ruby Unique To Texans

DALLAS (AP)—Jack Ruby's fight to escape the electric chair for killing Lee Harvey Oswald goes back into the courtroom Monday for a sanity hearing that may be unique in Texas judicial history.

For nearly two years, a parade of lawyers representing Ruby have insisted the 55-year-old former bar operator was mentally unbalanced in November 1963 when he shot Oswald.

The Warren Commission named Oswald as President John F. Kennedy's assassin.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said May 18 a sanity hearing must be held before it could consider Ruby's appeal from his 1964 conviction.

In a surprise move, Ruby's current attorneys Thursday asked for the withdrawal of a 1964 affidavit filed by Ruby's sister, Mrs. Eva Grant, in which she said he was insane. The lawyers claim the May 18 ruling was based on the affidavit and its withdrawal would in effect would remove the necessity of a sanity hearing.

They said their reason for the request was a sanity hearing would violate Ruby's constitutional rights because they would have to call the same witnesses they would call if a second murder trial is granted. They also said Ruby no longer wanted a sanity hearing.

State Dist. Judge Louis T. Holland Friday turned down the request. He said he was under orders from the Court of Criminal Appeals to conduct the sanity hearing and not to do so would deprive Ruby of his constitutional rights.

Here is the situation on the eve of the sanity hearing:

Defense lawyers say they will not place Ruby on the stand and they will present no witnesses and no evidence to back up earlier contentions he is insane. They say they will not fight the state's contention he is sane.

Insurance Measure Benefits Outlined

The insurance bill on the governor's desk "takes politics out of the insurance business and gives companies a chance to make a profit," the president of the Louisiana Association of Insurance Agents said Saturday.

The president, Charles E. McKenzie Jr. of Monroe, speaking to clear up "misconceptions" about the bill which won recent lopsided Senate and House approval, said, "The entire nation is watching to see how it operates."

If it works, it will become a "'model piece of legislation," he said.

"This bill does not assure a profit, but a chance of a profit, whereas, b e f o r e, companies were saddled with losses and premiums that gave no chance of a profit," McKenzie said.

"Nor does it guarantee commissions, which are negotiated between agents and companies and are not affected by legislation," he added.

Twelve "sizeable" companies left the state last year, he said, because of inability to make a profit.

McKenzie saw the bill, when signed by the governor, as an end to political influence in the insurance business. "Increased rates formerly could be rejected by the insurance commission on whim or for political reasons," he said.

The new bill — S.B. 68, popularly known as "modified prior approval" — provides for hearings on rate filings which the commission feels faulty, based on premiums collected and losses paid, with expense, or on receipt of a "proper complaint."

"If the filing is disapproved, its use must cease immediately," McKenzie said.

The state president laid particular emphasis on the auditing feature of the bill and the requirement for continuous control over changes in form, territory, classification or expense factors in filings.

All must be approved by the proper division of the commission.

"Also the filings become public knowledge immediately, rather than when they take effect," McKenzie said.

Continuous checks are maintained on forms, rates and premiums, he said.

McKenzie could make no prediction, he said, on the total effect of the new bill on respective coverage rates, though others have conceded that with any serviceable bill, rates will rise for coverage in most categories.

"Practically speaking," the bill will take effect about Aug. 1, but many filings are not expected until considerably beyond that date.

McKenzie found as the major distinction between the Legislature - endorsed measure and House Bill 387, backed by Louisiana Insurance Commissioner Dudley Guglielmo, the auditing feature.

"Senate Bill 68 requires auditing by the Louisiana Rating and Fire Prevention Bureau of all property insurance policies of all insurers, to make certain such policies comply with rates and forms filed with the state rating division.

"It thus protects the buyer of insurance from unfair discrimination," he said.

The bill further provides that territory and classification plans "would be approved by the rating division before going into effect, to prevent a hard-to-control multiplicity of rating systems which dilute statistics and create confusion."

In sum, McKenzie said, "Senate Bill 68 offers an immediate, effective solution to a major economic problem affecting the Louisiana public — a dwindling availability of needed insurance on homes, cars and businesses."

Hurricane Drenches Carolinas

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Tropical Storm Alma churned past North Carolina's Outer Banks toward the open sea Saturday, after buffeting the coast with gale force winds and drenching rains.

Forecasters said Alma, downgraded from a hurricane Friday, already was involved with a cold front and would become nontropical — losing its calm eye and resembling an ordinary, though dangerous, low-pressure system — by midday today.

Alma, as a hurricane, left 47 dead — 35 in Honduras, 7 in Cuba and 5 in Florida. The extent of her damage was not known.

But having lost half of her force over Georgia on Friday, she spared the Carolinas major damage.

The storm did dump almost eight inches of rain on the Wilmington area and flooded isolated low areas along the coast.

At last report, the Washington Weather Bureau located her large, ill-defined center about 75 miles south of Cape Hatteras and 125 miles east of Wilmington.

She still was moving east-northeast at 15 miles per hour and was expected to continue in that direction with little change in direction or intensity for the next 12 hours.

The storm, though still a threat to shipping, was expected to dissipate over colder water in the next several days.

Alma's highest winds were 55 miles per hour in squalls over a small area near the center in the northern semicircle.

Meredith Marchers Stage Rally For Registration At Batesville

BATESVILLE, Miss (AP) — The Meredith "march against fear" staged a whooping voter registration rally Saturday—and stirred new debate among Negro leaders.

In a new tactic, the 250 Negroes and whites spent two hours in a heavily guarded, hand-clapping, singing demonstration in front of the white-columned Panola County Courthouse in Batesville.

Leaving a line of Negroes waiting to be registered, the column then swung out of town, back to U.S. 51, headed south toward Jackson on the seventh day of the trek. Jackson, the state capital, is 154 miles from Batesville.

"I don't feel marches from Memphis to Jackson are going to get Negroes registered," said Charles Evers, state director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"Instead of spending all that money on airplane tickets and campouts, we should spend it on registration," he added. "That's what Meredith was shot for."

Evers, the dominant civil rights leader in Mississippi for more than a year, made his comments in Natchez, Miss., as the rally was under way in Batesville.

Told of his views, Negro leaders with the marchers promptly disagreed.

Robert Green, education director for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said: "I would say this: We registered about 50 to 70 people in Batesville and I think the purpose of the march is to assist Negroes in overcoming the fear that has been so much a part of their lives." The county circuit court clerk said 53 Negroes registered.

James H. Meredith, who broke the racial bar at the University of Mississippi in 1962, started the march with a few companions in an effort to spur registration. He was wounded by birdshot near Hernando and is recuperating in New York. The man charged with the shooting is jailed in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Administration Views Slated To Be Given By McKeithen

By MILO DAKIN
World Legislative Correspondent

A long - silent administration will make a public stand at noon Monday when Gov. John J. McKeithen addresses a joint session of the Louisiana Legislature in what has been billed a "State of the Union" message.

Certain to be on his agenda is the state's fiscal condition. This ranges from a record $1.049 billion appropriations bill that was enlarged in committee hearings, proposed legislation on increased old age welfare benefits and a one cent, statewide sales tax.

A legislative package drawn by the Sam Jones Committee to reduce gubernatorial powers is also expected to be aired by the governor, although exactly what he will talk about has not been made public.

A speaking invitation to the governor was introduced in the House at the onset of the 60 - day session now going into its sixth week, but phrases in the measure critical of the administration spurred a floor fight and the resolution died. It was pushed by Rep. Risley Triche of Assumption Parish, floor leader under former Gov. Jimmy Davis, and Republican, Taylor O'Hearn of Caddo. Floor leader Lantz Womack said Triche was only trying to embarrass the governor with the resolution.

A source in the governor's office said McKeithen asked permission to make the joint address, and both houses quickly concurred Thursday.

Several legislators had predicted McKeithen would keep quiet during the legislative session, due to a succession referendum at the November polls which would allow him to run for re - election. This belief had been heightened by the noticable lack of press conferences — only one in five weeks.

But floor leaders for the governor have been unable to keep the lid on tight, with the $100 minimum for welfare benefits passing both houses in various forms before being thrown into a conference committee. The governor is expected to pass judgment on the measure, which will cost the state some $13 million annually, a move he said his state could not afford.

But the biggest bill of all, moneywise, is the appropriations bill which guides state spending for the 1966 - 67 fiscal year. It will be voted on in the House Tuesday, and McKeithen is expected to spend a major part of his address on this measure, which in itself, shows the state's financial condition.

It came out of the House Appropriations Committee $2 million larger than approved by the Legislative Budget Committee chaired by Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe. Included in this increase was $50,000 more for the Louisiana Training Institute in Monroe.

Rep. Robert Munson, Rapides, chairman of the appropriations committee, said the spending bill had to pass out of the House this week to give Sen. B. B. "Sixty" Rayburn's Senate Finance Committee ample time to hold hearings.

The welfare bill of Abbeville Sen. Dudley LeBalnc has been battered in both houses like a practice golf ball. Its journey ran from the Senate through the House and back into the Senate before being thrown into a conference committee to try and work out differences of opinion. The House - passed measures mandates $100 monthly minimum for individuals and $90 monthly for couples. This was put in after the Senate - passed version said only that amount was needed by the elderly on welfare.

The bill was sent to the conference committee after the Senate failed to concur in the House amendments.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Sen. Jamar Adcock's Senate Judiciary C committee continues hearings this week on reapportionment, with a 43 - seat plan introduced by Sen. Jules Mollere garnering favorites in the administration - controlled committee.

A brief case full of amendments to Moller's bill have been put to the committe for study, further hindering conclusion on what plan to present the Senate.

The 43 - seat plan would allow Northeast Louisiana some share in the political grabbag, but Adcock warned that discontent among some area legislators may force the committee to come out with a 39-seat plan. Such a move would be felt hardest by politicians in this area due to population, or lack of it. "This is what we are trying to avoid," Adcock said.

With administration power centered in Northeast Louisiana, the 43 - seat plan appears to be in better favor of passage in both houses.

COMMITTEES

Two proposals by House Republicans — one allowing no one but Gov. McKeithen to succeed himself and another allowing anyone but McKeithen to run for re - election — are both dormant in committees.

A bill by Rep. Harry Hollins, Calcasieu, putting a stop to the state's $2 daily support for pupils attending private, nonsectarian schools, will come before the House Education Committee Tuesday. Committee chairman Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Monroe is hospitalized with a slipped disc and it is not known if he will be in Baton Rouge for the hearing.

Tuesday is also the date set for Senate Judiciary C to hear a bill by Sen. George Ray Lee of Alexandria, setting up a pipeline safety code. The Senate Judiciary A committee will consider a bill Tuesday forcing auto insurance companies to give 30 days notice before cancelling policies.

Scheduled this week in Senate Judiciary A are hearings on bills to ban strikes against state government, an urban renewal proposal, and the House - passed Code of Criminal Procedure.

A bill by Rep. Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish, which among other things, puts members of the State Cosmetology Board on full - time salary, will come up for floor vote in the House this week.

With introduction deadlines passed, the Senate had 339 bills and constitutional proposals and the House had 1,189. A goodly share of these are still a long way from being acted on.

Stewardess Stays Despite Few Boo Boos

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Miss Cassandra Lupien—it is our sad duty to report—flirted outrageously with the passengers Friday on her first flight as stewardess for the Whidbey Flying Service.

With utter disregard for her diet, the blonde charmer then put away a large order of pancakes at the airport cafe — finishing in time to catch the next flight back home for her nap.

Cassie Lupien is 3.

She was selected for the position of stewardess when somebody noted the lack of this convenience on the airline operated by her father, Wes Lupien, 30. His six-seater makes two flights daily between Oak Harbor and Seattle, a distance of 63 air miles.

Cassie's mother made the uniform, a small model of those worn by United Air Line stewardesses. In flight, Cassie makes sure each passenger gets a folder about her father's airline, some of which turn out to be travel folders, engine specifications or ferry schedules.

Eight Taken To Hospital After Wreck

Three cars collided late Saturday here, with eight persons taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Police investigations were incomplete early today.

Mulhearn ambulances brought the following persons to the hospital where some remained in undetermined condition: from one auto, Wanda Faye Stewart, 16, of 711 Dixie St., (driver); William Cameron Jr., 3; Solomon Stewart, 17, and Ruthie Mae Cameron, 23, of 1903 . 10th St.; from another car, Wanda Kay Maxwell, 17, (driver), of 234 Duncan Circle, West Monroe; Geneva Beaube, 18, of 100 Ridge Dr., West Monroe; Linda Harly, 18, Rayville, and Pamela Maxwell, 12, of West Monroe.

Police said the driver of the third car, was George Dickson, 41, of 3413 Haskell St., who was apparently uninjured.

Northeast Alumni Meet Set Thursday

A fish fry and business meeting of the Ouachita Parish Chapter of the Northeast Louisiana State College Alumni Association will be held Thursday 7 p.m.

Archie D. Parker Jr. of Monroe, coordinator of chapter activities, said the meeting will be held in the American Legion Hall on Forsythe. Former students of Northeast who now live in Ouachita Parish are eligible to attend.

The main item of business will be the election of new chapter officers and the election of representatives to serve Ouachita Parish on the Alumni Association board of directors.

Current officers of the chapter are Harlan Prestridge, president; John Ensminger, vice president, and Leo Walsworth, secretary - treasurer.

Candidate Qualifies For Primary

Mrs. Bert Coverdale, widow of the late Ouachita parish assessor, Saturday became the first candidate to qualify with the parish Democratic Committee for the Aug. 13 primary.

Mrs. Coverdale qualified before Bert Sperry, chairman of the parish committee.

She is seeking election to the post which she now holds on an appointive basis. She was named assessor after the death of her husband earlier this year. She has been co - owner of a West Monroe business for 32 years.

The appointment is until the Aug. 13 Democratic election.

Odis Russell, deputy assessor, has announced he, too, will seek the post. He has already issued a formal announcement.

The deadline for qualification was set at 5 p.m. June 18.

Other races under jurisdiction of the parish body include city judges and marshals for Wards 3, 10, and 5; and six seats on the Ouachita Parish School Board.

One board member each from Wards 3, 8 and 9 will be chosen, along with two from Ward 10. A special election has been called concurrent with the Aug. 13 primary for the seat on the board held by the late Roy Cash in Ward 5. J. D. Purvis has been appointed to fill the seat until the election.

Mrs. Coverdale was qualified after the parish committee met Saturday to set the filing deadline and affirm the Aug. 13 date for the primary.

In The General Election Tuesday, June 14

Voters of West Monroe will go to the polls Tuesday, June 14, to elect a mayor and five aldermen. I am seeking the mayor's post.

I have campaigned hard and have attempted to see as many of he people as possible. I have seen a great many. But, it is almost impossible to see everyone.

To those whom I have not seen personally, I would like to assure them and remind those to whom I have talked, that I want to make West Monroe an outstanding mayor. I have no other motive in my efforts to be elected.

I will work hard to give our city the type of leadership it needs to unite our City Council and the people behind a conservative but aggressive program to make West Monroe the fastest growing city in Louisiana.

Let me assure the voters of West Monroe that I have conducted my campaign without making any ties or commitments that would prevent me from conducting the office of mayor in a manner in keeping at all times with the best interest of West Monroe. I am in position to make our city a good mayor.

I campaigned hard and honorably for nomination in the Democratic primary and I am continuing in a like manner to gain victory in the general election on June 14.

Briefly, I would like to review some of the points in my platform which I outlined when I originally announced as a candidate:

FIRE PROTECTION. A complete study will be made on the city's chances of improving our fire rating classification, with the hope of eventually securing a reduction in fire insurance costs. Fire insurance rates are based on the city's ability to prevent fire losses. West Monroe is a class 6 city while Monroe is class 3. Fire insurance rates in Monroe are approximately one-half what they are in West Monroe.

POLICE. All reasonable efforts will be made to upgrade our police department, taking advantage of every opportunity to train our personnel in modern techniques of crime detection and courtesy in dealing with the public. Additional space is needed to relieve the cramped condition in which the department now operates.

STREETS. Since the city-wide street program several years ago, many of our important traffic arteries are beginning to wear out. Areas adjacent to I-20 and its approaches were left in poor condition after the many months of construction on the federal system. State assistance should be secured to restore these streets. Then, West Monroe must provide for a perpetual maintenance program that will keep all of our streets in good condition.

WATER DEPARTMENT. Our water system, with its present capacity, will soon be inadequate to meet the growing demand. I understand the present administration is already studying this problem. It must be solved.

SEWERAGE AND DRAINAGE. Our needs here are obvious to everyone. I propose immediate action, where necessary, to get maximum efficiency from our existing facilities. But, it will be necessary that we rebuild and expand much of our drainage system. I will seek as much help as we can get from our Police Jury and the State. Such work is very costly and it is mostly underground where taxpayers cannot see the results of large expenditures.

A sewerage treatment plant must be built. If West Monroe continues to dump raw sewage into the Ouachita River we will eventually be forced to discontinue the practice.

PURCHASING. All city purchases will be made inside the city limits of West Monroe and from our business people who help pay the taxes. The only exception on this score will be in cases where the needed items are not available in West Monroe and where the price differential (this will be rare) is prohibitive.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT. I am particularly interested in this subject. I will lend the fullest support of the mayor's office toward the quest for new industry.

RECREATION. I will propose a complete reorganization of our recreation department and a long range plan to develop a recreation program adequate to meet the needs of a city the size of West Monroe. I will appoint a qualified panel of recreation people to draft a recommended capital improvement program for our recreation department. Another committee on recreation will be composed of West Monroe people qualified in the field of financing. This group will study ways and means of financing the program. Then, a joint committee, drawn from the two original committees will draft the final recommendation. The mayor and members of the board of aldermen, naturally would serve on these committees.

Administration Views Slated To Be Given By McKeithen

By MILO DAKIN
World Legislative Correspondent

A long - silent administration will make a public stand at noon Monday when Gov. John J. McKeithen addresses a joint session of the Louisiana Legislature in what has been billed a "State of the Union" message.

Certain to be on his agenda is the state's fiscal condition. This ranges from a record $1.049 billion appropriations bill that was enlarged in committee hearings, proposed legislation on increased old age welfare benefits and a one cent, statewide sales tax.

A legislative package drawn by the Sam Jones Committee to reduce gubernatorial powers is also expected to be aired by the governor, although exactly what he will talk about has not been made public.

A speaking invitation to the governor was introduced in the House at the onset of the 60 - day session now going into its sixth week, but phrases in the measure critical of the administration spurred a floor fight and the resolution died. It was pushed by Rep. Risley Triche of Assumption Parish, floor leader under former Gov. Jimmy Davis, and Republican, Taylor O'Hearn of Caddo. Floor leader Lantz Womack said Triche was only trying to embarrass the governor with the resolution.

A source in the governor's office said McKeithen asked permission to make the joint address, and both houses quickly concurred Thursday.

Several legislators had predicted McKeithen would keep quiet during the legislative session, due to a succession referendum at the November polls which would allow him to run for re - election. This belief had been heightened by the noticable lack of press conferences — only one in five weeks.

But floor leaders for the governor have been unable to keep the lid on tight, with the $100 minimum for welfare benefits passing both houses in various forms before being thrown into a conference committee. The governor is expected to pass judgment on the measure, which will cost the state some $13 million annually, a move he said his state could not afford.

But the biggest bill of all, moneywise, is the appropriations bill which guides state spending for the 1966 - 67 fiscal year. It will be voted on in the House Tuesday, and McKeithen is expected to spend a major part of his address on this measure, which in itself, shows the state's financial condition.

It came out of the House Appropriations Committee $2 million larger than approved by the Legislative Budget Committee chaired by Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe. Included in this increase was $50,000 more for the Louisiana Training Institute in Monroe.

Rep. Robert Munson, Rapides, chairman of the appropriations committee, said the spending bill had to pass out of the House this week to give Sen. B. B. "Sixty" Rayburn's Senate Finance Committee ample time to hold hearings.

The welfare bill of Abbeville Sen. Dudley LeBalnc has been battered in both houses like a practice golf ball. Its journey ran from the Senate through the House and back into the Senate before being thrown into a conference committee to try and work out differences of opinion. The House - passed measures mandates $100 monthly minimum for individuals and $90 monthly for couples. This was put in after the Senate - passed version said only that amount was needed by the elderly on welfare.

The bill was sent to the conference committee after the Senate failed to concur in the House amendments.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Sen. Jamar Adcock's Senate Judiciary C committee continues hearings this week on reapportionment, with a 43 - seat plan introduced by Sen. Jules Mollere garnering favorites in the administration - controlled committee.

A brief case full of amendments to Moller's bill have been put to the committe for study, further hindering conclusion on what plan to present the Senate.

The 43 - seat plan would allow Northeast Louisiana some share in the political grabbag, but Adcock warned that discontent among some area legislators may force the committee to come out with a 39-seat plan. Such a move would be felt hardest by politicians in this area due to population, or lack of it. "This is what we are trying to avoid," Adcock said.

With administration power centered in Northeast Louisiana, the 43 - seat plan appears to be in better favor of passage in both houses.

COMMITTEES

Two proposals by House Republicans — one allowing no one but Gov. McKeithen to succeed himself and another allowing anyone but McKeithen to run for re - election — are both dormant in committees.

A bill by Rep. Harry Hollins, Calcasieu, putting a stop to the state's $2 daily support for pupils attending private, nonsectarian schools, will come before the House Education Committee Tuesday. Committee chairman Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Monroe is hospitalized with a slipped disc and it is not known if he will be in Baton Rouge for the hearing.

Tuesday is also the date set for Senate Judiciary C to hear a bill by Sen. George Ray Lee of Alexandria, setting up a pipeline safety code. The Senate Judiciary A committee will consider a bill Tuesday forcing auto insurance companies to give 30 days notice before cancelling policies.

Scheduled this week in Senate Judiciary A are hearings on bills to ban strikes against state government, an urban renewal proposal, and the House - passed Code of Criminal Procedure.

A bill by Rep. Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish, which among other things, puts members of the State Cosmetology Board on full - time salary, will come up for floor vote in the House this week.

With introduction deadlines passed, the Senate had 339 bills and constitutional proposals and the House had 1,189. A goodly share of these are still a long way from being acted on.

Stewardess Stays Despite Few Boo Boos

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Miss Cassandra Lupien—it is our sad duty to report—flirted outrageously with the passengers Friday on her first flight as stewardess for the Whidbey Flying Service.

With utter disregard for her diet, the blonde charmer then put away a large order of pancakes at the airport cafe — finishing in time to catch the next flight back home for her nap.

Cassie Lupien is 3.

She was selected for the position of stewardess when somebody noted the lack of this convenience on the airline operated by her father, Wes Lupien, 30. His six-seater makes two flights daily between Oak Harbor and Seattle, a distance of 63 air miles.

Cassie's mother made the uniform, a small model of those worn by United Air Line stewardesses. In flight, Cassie makes sure each passenger gets a folder about her father's airline, some of which turn out to be travel folders, engine specifications or ferry schedules.

Eight Taken To Hospital After Wreck

Three cars collided late Saturday here, with eight persons taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Police investigations were incomplete early today.

Mulhearn ambulances brought the following persons to the hospital where some remained in undetermined condition: from one auto, Wanda Faye Stewart, 16, of 711 Dixie St., (driver); William Cameron Jr., 3; Solomon Stewart, 17, and Ruthie Mae Cameron, 23, of 1903 . 10th St.; from another car, Wanda Kay Maxwell, 17, (driver), of 234 Duncan Circle, West Monroe; Geneva Beaube, 18, of 100 Ridge Dr., West Monroe; Linda Harly, 18, Rayville, and Pamela Maxwell, 12, of West Monroe.

Police said the driver of the third car, was George Dickson, 41, of 3413 Haskell St., who was apparently uninjured.

Northeast Alumni Meet Set Thursday

A fish fry and business meeting of the Ouachita Parish Chapter of the Northeast Louisiana State College Alumni Association will be held Thursday 7 p.m.

Archie D. Parker Jr. of Monroe, coordinator of chapter activities, said the meeting will be held in the American Legion Hall on Forsythe. Former students of Northeast who now live in Ouachita Parish are eligible to attend.

The main item of business will be the election of new chapter officers and the election of representatives to serve Ouachita Parish on the Alumni Association board of directors.

Current officers of the chapter are Harlan Prestridge, president; John Ensminger, vice president, and Leo Walsworth, secretary - treasurer.

Candidate Qualifies For Primary

Mrs. Bert Coverdale, widow of the late Ouachita parish assessor, Saturday became the first candidate to qualify with the parish Democratic Committee for the Aug. 13 primary.

Mrs. Coverdale qualified before Bert Sperry, chairman of the parish committee.

She is seeking election to the post which she now holds on an appointive basis. She was named assessor after the death of her husband earlier this year. She has been co - owner of a West Monroe business for 32 years.

The appointment is until the Aug. 13 Democratic election.

Odis Russell, deputy assessor, has announced he, too, will seek the post. He has already issued a formal announcement.

The deadline for qualification was set at 5 p.m. June 18.

Other races under jurisdiction of the parish body include city judges and marshals for Wards 3, 10, and 5; and six seats on the Ouachita Parish School Board.

One board member each from Wards 3, 8 and 9 will be chosen, along with two from Ward 10. A special election has been called concurrent with the Aug. 13 primary for the seat on the board held by the late Roy Cash in Ward 5. J. D. Purvis has been appointed to fill the seat until the election.

Mrs. Coverdale was qualified after the parish committee met Saturday to set the filing deadline and affirm the Aug. 13 date for the primary.

BEAUTIFICATION. A stranger who visits our city can only judge us from the general appearance of our community. Clean streets, well groomed shrubbery, tidy buildings and businesses, clean alley, well managed garbage disposal and numerous other good housekeeping practices can be achieved without great expense. And the amount it does cost will pay great dividends in good will and a greater share of the shopper's dollar.

PAUL SPILLERS

Paul Spillers Wins State FFA Post

Paul Spillers, 1966 graduate of Calhoun High School, was recently elected State Area II vice-president of the Louisiana Future Farmers of America Association. Spillers, the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Spillers, was elected by some 600 delegates at the annual State FFA Convention which was held in Baton Rouge, June 7-9.

Paul, who is 18, was an active FFA member in high school, collecting such honors in his FFA work as chapter president, area II president, state winner in poultry judging, attended the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo. and many other awards along with winning a State Farmer Degree.

"Paul will be missed greatly by the FFA members and faculty of the Calhoun High School," A. W. Gerson, FFA adviser stated.

Paul, serving as state vice-president will attend a week-long intensive leadership training camp in July, attend various chapter functions throughout the state, appear before various civic organizations and go on a goodwill trip to New Orleans and other cities throughout the state and preside at the annual state convention next June.

He will enroll at LSU in September where he plans to pursue a degree in agriculture, and eventually study law.

Red Sees Win In Space Race

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Russia's Yuri Gagarin, the first man in space, predicted Saturday the Soviet Union would beat the United States in the race to the moon.

"When U.S. spacemen go to the moon, they will surely meet Soviet people there," Gagarin said in an interview with the Bulgarian newspaper Narodna Armiya here.

Gagarin came to Sofia for the seventh congress of the Communist-led World Federation of Democratic Youth.

Shreveport School Post Filled

A coordinator for development of plans and programs involving the new School of Medicine at Shreveport of the Louisiana State University Medical Center has been announced.

He is Dr. George R. Meneely, a member of the faculty of the LSU School of Medicine at New Orleans, who will be in residence at Shreveport shortly after July 1.

Dr. Meneely's designation as LSU's top coordinator for the new medical school was announced here today by Dr. William W. Frye, chancellor of the LSU Medical Center.

Gov. John J. McKeithen Tuesday signed into law legislation clearing the way for the planned $30 Million medical teaching and research facility, making available $10 Million in state funds, to be matched on a two-to-one basis by federal support.

Temporary office space for Dr. Meneely's activities has been made available to LSU at the Confederate Memorial Medical Center by the hospital's governing board.

Dr. Meneely has been serving in New Orleans as a special consultant to Dr. Frye working on all phases of developmental programs which will effect the new school. He came to the LSU medical faculty from the University of Texas, M. D. Anderson Tumor Institute at Houston, and was formerly assistant to the dean of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Meneely had been previously a member of the faculty of the LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans from 1941 - 43.

"Dr. Meneely has been assigned to Shreveport to develop plans and programs of the new School of Medicine of the LSU Medical Center. He is presently in Washington conferring with federal officials regarding the new school, and he will be in residence in temporary office facilities made available at the Confederate Memorial Medical Center, shortly after July 1," said Dr. Frye.

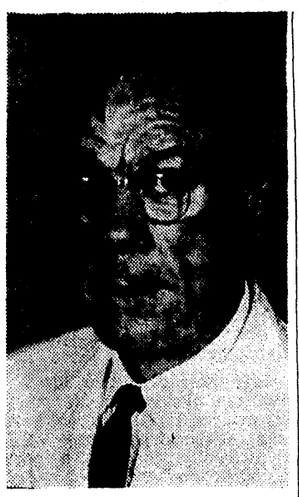
Meredith Plans Rejoining Walk

NEW YORK (AP) —James H. Meredith still plans to resume his interrupted march from Memphis, Tenn., to Jackson, Miss., a spokesman for the Negro law student said Saturday.

The spokesman said the plans are "tentative" and subject to change.

He said Meredith, 33, is out of the city recuperating from the shotgun attack against him in Mississippi last Monday. He will not speak at a rally in Brooklyn's Antioch Baptist church Sunday as announced, he said.

Meredith had said he would resume his march next Thursday. But his personal physician has advised him not to continue the 220-mile walk along U.S. 51.



DR. GEORGE R. MENEELY

Mississippi Press Names New Officers

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Bob Cook of The Pontotoc Progress was elevated to the presidency of The Mississippi Press Association Saturday, succeeding John S. Lewis of The Woodville Republican.

Other new officers included Clifton L. Langford of The Bolivar Commercial at Cleveland, vice president; James W. Lambert of The Natchez Democrat, vice president and chairman of the daily section; and Albert E. Fletcher Jr., Southern Reporter, Sardis, vice president and chairman of the weekly section.

Hunt Howell of The Panolian, Batesville, was named secretary and Thomas M. Alewine of The Rankin County News, Brandon, was re-elected treasurer.

W. E. Johnson of The Banner Independent in Booneville was re-elected to a three-year term on the board of directors. He serve with Hodding Carter III, Delta Democrat Times, Greenville; Jack L. Tannehil of the Neshoba Democrat, Philadelphia, and Lewis. George L. Sugg of Jackson was elected MPA manager for the 29th year.

The 100th annual convention of the association ended with the election and presentation of the better newspaper contests awards.

Francis L. McCarthy, Latin-American editor of United Press International, discussed the problems of that area of the world at the closing session of the convention.

He discussed the problems of Argentina, Brazil, and the Dominican Republic, and the threat of subversion from Communist Cuba.

Viet Reds Close

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — North Viet Nam has closed its embassy here after it had operated for less than a year.

The last of the mission staff left for Abidjan, Ivory Coast, en route to Hanoi Friday night.

The decision to close the embassy resulted from the new Ghanian regime closures of Ghana's mission in Hanoi on the grounds that diplomatic relations with one sector of Viet Nam was not in accordance with the hopes of the eventual reunification of the country.

PAUL SPILLERS

Paul Spillers Wins State FFA Post

Paul Spillers, 1966 graduate of Calhoun High School, was recently elected State Area II vice-president of the Louisiana Future Farmers of America Association. Spillers, the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Spillers, was elected by some 600 delegates at the annual State FFA Convention which was held in Baton Rouge, June 7-9.

Paul, who is 18, was an active FFA member in high school, collecting such honors in his FFA work as chapter president, area II president, state winner in poultry judging, attended the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo. and many other awards along with winning a State Farmer Degree.

"Paul will be missed greatly by the FFA members and faculty of the Calhoun High School," A. W. Gerson, FFA adviser stated.

Paul, serving as state vice-president will attend a week-long intensive leadership training camp in July, attend various chapter functions throughout the state, appear before various civic organizations and go on a goodwill trip to New Orleans and other cities throughout the state and preside at the annual state convention next June.

He will enroll at LSU in September where he plans to pursue a degree in agriculture, and eventually study law.

Red Sees Win In Space Race

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Russia's Yuri Gagarin, the first man in space, predicted Saturday the Soviet Union would beat the United States in the race to the moon.

"When U.S. spacemen go to the moon, they will surely meet Soviet people there," Gagarin said in an interview with the Bulgarian newspaper Narodna Armiya here.

Gagarin came to Sofia for the seventh congress of the Communist-led World Federation of Democratic Youth.

Shreveport School Post Filled

A coordinator for development of plans and programs involving the new School of Medicine at Shreveport of the Louisiana State University Medical Center has been announced.

He is Dr. George R. Meneely, a member of the faculty of the LSU School of Medicine at New Orleans, who will be in residence at Shreveport shortly after July 1.

Dr. Meneely's designation as LSU's top coordinator for the new medical school was announced here today by Dr. William W. Frye, chancellor of the LSU Medical Center.

Gov. John J. McKeithen Tuesday signed into law legislation clearing the way for the planned $30 Million medical teaching and research facility, making available $10 Million in state funds, to be matched on a two-to-one basis by federal support.

Temporary office space for Dr. Meneely's activities has been made available to LSU at the Confederate Memorial Medical Center by the hospital's governing board.

Dr. Meneely has been serving in New Orleans as a special consultant to Dr. Frye working on all phases of developmental programs which will effect the new school. He came to the LSU medical faculty from the University of Texas, M. D. Anderson Tumor Institute at Houston, and was formerly assistant to the dean of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Meneely had been previously a member of the faculty of the LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans from 1941 - 43.

"Dr. Meneely has been assigned to Shreveport to develop plans and programs of the new School of Medicine of the LSU Medical Center. He is presently in Washington conferring with federal officials regarding the new school, and he will be in residence in temporary office facilities made available at the Confederate Memorial Medical Center, shortly after July 1," said Dr. Frye.

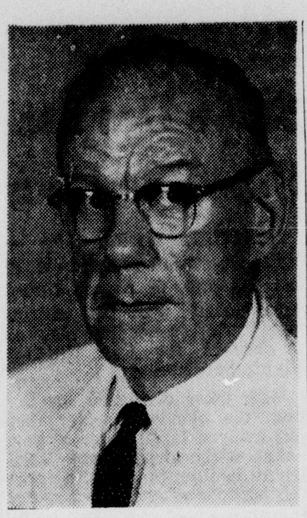
Meredith Plans Rejoining Walk

NEW YORK (AP) —James H. Meredith still plans to resume his interrupted march from Memphis, Tenn., to Jackson, Miss., a spokesman for the Negro law student said Saturday.

The spokesman said the plans are "tentative" and subject to change.

He said Meredith, 33, is out of the city recuperating from the shotgun attack against him in Mississippi last Monday. He will not speak at a rally in Brooklyn's Antioch Baptist church Sunday as announced, he said.

Meredith had said he would resume his march next Thursday. But his personal physician has advised him not to continue the 220-mile walk along U.S. 51.



DR. GEORGE R. MENEELY

Mississippi Press Names New Officers

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Bob Cook of The Pontotoc Progress was elevated to the presidency of The Mississippi Press Association Saturday, succeeding John S. Lewis of The Woodville Republican.

Other new officers included Clifton L. Langford of The Bolivar Commercial at Cleveland, vice president; James W. Lambert of The Natchez Democrat, vice president and chairman of the daily section; and Albert E. Fletcher Jr., Southern Reporter, Sardis, vice president and chairman of the weekly section.

Hunt Howell of The Panolian, Batesville, was named secretary and Thomas M. Alewine of The Rankin County News, Brandon, was re-elected treasurer.

W. E. Johnson of The Banner Independent in Booneville was re-elected to a three-year term on the board of directors. He serve with Hodding Carter III, Delta Democrat Times, Greenville; Jack L. Tannehil of the Neshoba Democrat, Philadelphia, and Lewis. George L. Sugg of Jackson was elected MPA manager for the 29th year.

The 100th annual convention of the association ended with the election and presentation of the better newspaper contests awards.

Francis L. McCarthy, Latin-American editor of United Press International, discussed the problems of that area of the world at the closing session of the convention.

He discussed the problems of Argentina, Brazil, and the Dominican Republic, and the threat of subversion from Communist Cuba.

Viet Reds Close

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — North Viet Nam has closed its embassy here after it had operated for less than a year.

The last of the mission staff left for Abidjan, Ivory Coast, en route to Hanoi Friday night.

The decision to close the embassy resulted from the new Ghanian regime closures of Ghana's mission in Hanoi on the grounds that diplomatic relations with one sector of Viet Nam was not in accordance with the hopes of the eventual reunification of the country.

Midwest Demos See Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five months before the November elections signs indicate the Democrats are in political trouble in the agricultural Midwest.

The dozen states thus roughly grouped will elect 127 House members in rural and urban districts. In them are 44 marginal congressional districts, 23 won by the Republicans in 1964 by a few percentage points and 21 by the Democrats with razor-edge margins.

At stakes in this middle area are seven Senate seats, five of them held by Republicans and two by Democrats. But it is in the rural House contests that Republicans are reading signs they say indicate a comeback after the debacle of the Barry Goldwater presidential candidacy.

Voter dissatisfaction with the progress of the Viet Nam war is regarded as an underground issue by the Republican strategists. They believe it may help elect some of their candidates but they can not forecast what influence it will have in November.

They think that reaction to President Johnson's "Great Society" spending will play a part, especially if they continue to stress their contention that a Congress overwhelmingly populated by Democrats furnishes few checks and balances on presidential policies.

The deep-rooted issue at this point, in their view, is what they believe is a widespread feeling among farmers and small-town folk that they are being kicked around by the Johnson administration.

Congressional critics of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman have charged him with dumping surplus corn, wheat and other commodities when prices have risen.

To Bypass Rhodesia

Zambian President Wants Export Airlift

LONDON (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia is believed to be turning to the United States and Canada for help in operating a copper export airlift that would bypass Zambia's lines of railway communication through neighboring Rhodesia.

He is angered by what he fears may be a British sellout to Prime Minister Ian Smith's white regime in Salisbury. He hopes the airlift will provide a knockout blow against Smith's government, which declared independence from Britain Nov. 11. Britain considers Smith's regime as rebellious.

Kaunda has made no secret of his belief that Britain's economic sanctions against Rhodesia are not working and never will.

But nobody except Smith's closest associates really knows their effect, and they are not tipping their hands.

Therefore, Kaunda feels he must act, and the railroad is his last target.

Landlocked Zambia has already cut its annual $100-million import bill from Rhodesia by more than half. It plans to cut more.

Although it owns the railroad jointly with Rhodesia, Zambia has paid its share of operating costs into a blocked account so Rhodesia cannot touch the money. It rejected Smith's demand that freight charges be paid in advance.

Smith retaliated by sidetracking 16,000 tons of Zambian copper in freight cars. The threat that this may be repeated adds urgency to Kaunda's search for another route to the sea for Zambia's major export.

He is meeting with the presidents of Tanzania and the Congo to determine if they can provide the overland routes and port facilities to handle Zambia's monthly production of 60,000 tons of copper.

The regular ports for the copper lie in Portuguese Mozambique. If the United States and Canada join in an airlift, as reported in the Zambian capital of Lusaka, the planes would unload there.

Kaunda insists he is not provoking a crisis, contending he is only following "logically what was agreed with the British prime minister in order to end (Rhodesia's) unilateral declaration of independence in the shortest possible time."

Whether his contemplated squeeze on the Rhodesian railways will do the job is open to question.

Many of Zambia's vital imports — especially construction materials for its economic development — come in via the Rhodesian railway. If this channel is closed, an airlift alone could not replace it. Planes may be able to carry out valuable copper, but not enough coal or cement.

Grand Dragon

WEST POINT, Miss. (AP) — Jack H. Helms, Louisiana grand dragon of the United Klans of America, addressed an estimated 600 persons Saturday night at a Ku Klux Klan rally at the Clay County Fair Grounds.

About 15 robed klansmen stood on the sidelines as Helms spoke. Most of the audience remained in their cars.

West Point police, auxiliary police, sheriff's deputies and FBI agents were detailed to the meeting.

Chain Collision Kills 5, Hurts 5

BERRIEN SPRINGS, Mich. (UPI) — Five persons were killed and at least another five injured late Saturday in a fiery chain reaction collision two miles south of here.

Police at the scene said four of the victims were dead at the scene, one of them burning to death.

A Berrien County sheriff's deputy said that apparently two cars collided head on on U.S. 31. Other cars plowed into the wreckage, creating the fire, he said.

Louisianan To Become Missionary

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A young naval officer, who gained nationwide attention for his self-styled missionary work while serving in Viet Nam, plans to trade his uniform for the garb of a seminarian this fall.

Lt. (j.g.) Roy L. Bourgeois Jr. of Lutcher will enter the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America (Maryknoll) in September, where he will continue his work with unfortunate children in foreign lands.

Bourgeois was met by his family and about 15 other relatives and friends when he arrived at New Orleans International Airport Saturday.

Bourgeois first started working with Vietnamese orphans and refugee children when he went to the Orphan and Refugee Village on the outskirts of Saigon. Since then, he has been trying to get some of the children in United States' homes.

Judge Blasts Broadcasting Public Duty

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal judge, discussing a Mississippi case, has criticized the broadcast industry for what he says is its failure to understand its legal obligations to the public.

Judge Warren E. Burger of the circuit court of appeals, amending a decision handed down by the court earlier, said:

"After nearly five decades of operation, the broadcast industry does not seem to have grasped the simple fact that a broadcast license is a public trust subject to termination for breach of duty."

Burger added the comment to an order issued by the court last March 25, in which it found the Federal Communications Commission in error when it renewed the license of television station WLBT in Jackson, Miss.

Aaron Henry, president of the Mississippi Branch of The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, other individuals and the United Church of Christ at Tougaloo, Miss., had asked the FCC to withdraw WLBT's license, charging the station had discriminated on racial and religious grounds. They also asked for a public hearing.

The FCC denied the request for a hearing but instead of granting a regular three - year renewal, licensed the station for only one year on condition it serve the Jackson area fairly.

Rites Set Today For Minister

MINDEN, La. (AP)—Funeral services will be held here today for the Rev. Truman Alridge, 54, pastor of the First Baptist Church. He died Friday night after an extended illness.

Alridge had served on the Louisiana Baptist Convention and on the Board of Trustees of "The Baptist Messenger."

He served as pastor of the First Baptist Church here for 16 years.

Survivors include his widow, two daughters and his parents.

Grand Dragon

WEST POINT, Miss. (AP) — Jack H. Helms, Louisiana grand dragon of the United Klans of America, addressed an estimated 600 persons Saturday night at a Ku Klux Klan rally at the Clay County Fair Grounds.

About 15 robed klansmen stood on the sidelines as Helms spoke. Most of the audience remained in their cars.

West Point police, auxiliary police, sheriff's deputies and FBI agents were detailed to the meeting.

To Bypass Rhodesia

Zambian President Wants Export Airlift

LONDON (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia is believed to be turning to the United States and Canada for help in operating a copper export airlift that would bypass Zambia's lines of railway communication through neighboring Rhodesia.

He is angered by what he fears may be a British sellout to Prime Minister Ian Smith's white regime in Salisbury. He hopes the airlift will provide a knockout blow against Smith's government, which declared independence from Britain Nov. 11. Britain considers Smith's regime as rebellious.

Kaunda has made no secret of his belief that Britain's economic sanctions against Rhodesia are not working and never will.

But nobody except Smith's closest associates really knows their effect, and they are not tipping their hands.

Therefore, Kaunda feels he must act, and the railroad is his last target.

Landlocked Zambia has already cut its annual $100-million import bill from Rhodesia by more than half. It plans to cut more.

Although it owns the railroad jointly with Rhodesia, Zambia has paid its share of operating costs into a blocked account so Rhodesia cannot touch the money. It rejected Smith's demand that freight charges be paid in advance.

Smith retaliated by sidetracking 16,000 tons of Zambian copper in freight cars. The threat that this may be repeated adds urgency to Kaunda's search for another route to the sea for Zambia's major export.

He is meeting with the presidents of Tanzania and the Congo to determine if they can provide the overland routes and port facilities to handle Zambia's monthly production of 60,000 tons of copper.

The regular ports for the copper lie in Portuguese Mozambique. If the United States and Canada join in an airlift, as reported in the Zambian capital of Lusaka, the planes would unload there.

Kaunda insists he is not provoking a crisis, contending he is only following "logically what was agreed with the British prime minister in order to end (Rhodesia's) unilateral declaration of independence in the shortest possible time."

Whether his contemplated squeeze on the Rhodesian railways will do the job is open to question.

Many of Zambia's vital imports — especially construction materials for its economic development — come in via the Rhodesian railway. If this channel is closed, an airlift alone could not replace it. Planes may be able to carry out valuable copper, but not enough coal or cement.

Chain Collision Kills 5, Hurts 5

BERRIEN SPRINGS, Mich. (UPI) — Five persons were killed and at least another five injured late Saturday in a fiery chain reaction collision two miles south of here.

Police at the scene said four of the victims were dead at the scene, one of them burning to death.

A Berrien County sheriff's deputy said that apparently two cars collided head on on U.S. 31. Other cars plowed into the wreckage, creating the fire, he said.

Louisianan To Become Missionary

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A young naval officer, who gained nationwide attention for his self-styled missionary work while serving in Viet Nam, plans to trade his uniform for the garb of a seminarian this fall.

Lt. (j.g.) Roy L. Bourgeois Jr. of Lutcher will enter the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America (Maryknoll) in September, where he will continue his work with unfortunate children in foreign lands.

Bourgeois was met by his family and about 15 other relatives and friends when he arrived at New Orleans International Airport Saturday.

Bourgeois first started working with Vietnamese orphans and refugee children when he went to the Orphan and Refugee Village on the outskirts of Saigon. Since then, he has been trying to get some of the children in United States' homes.

Judge Blasts Broadcasting Public Duty

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal judge, discussing a Mississippi case, has criticized the broadcast industry for what he says is its failure to understand its legal obligations to the public.

Judge Warren E. Burger of the circuit court of appeals, amending a decision handed down by the court earlier, said:

"After nearly five decades of operation, the broadcast industry does not seem to have grasped the simple fact that a broadcast license is a public trust subject to termination for breach of duty."

Burger added the comment to an order issued by the court last March 25, in which it found the Federal Communications Commission in error when it renewed the license of television station WLBT in Jackson, Miss.

Aaron Henry, president of the Mississippi Branch of The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, other individuals and the United Church of Christ at Tougaloo, Miss., had asked the FCC to withdraw WLBT's license, charging the station had discriminated on racial and religious grounds. They also asked for a public hearing.

The FCC denied the request for a hearing but instead of granting a regular three - year renewal, licensed the station for only one year on condition it serve the Jackson area fairly.

Rites Set Today For Minister

MINDEN, La. (AP)—Funeral services will be held here today for the Rev. Truman Alridge, 54, pastor of the First Baptist Church. He died Friday night after an extended illness.

Alridge had served on the Louisiana Baptist Convention and on the Board of Trustees of "The Baptist Messenger."

He served as pastor of the First Baptist Church here for 16 years.

Survivors include his widow, two daughters and his parents.

Powell Denies Marriage Rumor

PARIS (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., denied categorically Saturday that he planned to marry his staff assistant, Corinne Huff.

"It's absolutely untrue," he said about published reports that he and the former Miss Indiana would wed.

Powell was in Paris Saturday en route to Geneva for the annual meeting of the International Labor Organization. He and Miss Huff leave today for the meeting.

De Gaulle In Tahiti

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle may make an official trip to French Polynesia this fall, the independent daily newspaper Le Monde reported Saturday.

The visit would include Tahiti and Mururoa, where French atomic tests are now being prepared.

South Carolina, Illinois

Primary Outcomes Baffle Observers

WASHINGTON (AP) —Renomination challenges to Sen. Donald S. Russell and veteran Congressman Barratt O'Hara, both Democrats, are the standout contests in primaries coming up Tuesday in South Carolina and Illinois.

Russell's opponent in South Carolina is Ernest F. Hollings, who was governor in 1959-63 and has a considerable personal following in the state. Most political observers rate the contest as close without trying to predict a winner.

O'Hara, who has been elected eight times from his southeast Chicago district, is not against Abner J. Mikva, a member of the state legislature. O'Hara, 84, is the oldest member of the house.

Except for these races, the primary contests in both Illinois and South Carolina have been overshadowed by the already developing general election battles.

Democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas is up for re-election in Illinois this year. He has no primary opposition, but nevertheless has already been going about the state wooing voters for an expected struggle with Charles H. Percy, the prosective Republican nominee.

Percy has three opponents in Tuesday's primary but none is of a political caliber to cause him worries.

Percy, 46, was his party's nominee for governor in 1964 and, although losing, ran several hundred thousand votes ahead of GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater.

South Carolina Democrats, in addition to choosing between Russell and Hollings, will pick a nominee to run against Sen. Strom Thurmond, the ex-Democrat turned Republican P. Bradley Morrah Jr. and John B. Culbertson, who are both attorneys in Greenville, are bidding for the nomination.

Thurmond was renominated by the Republicans at a March convention. The convention also nominated State Sen. Marshall Parker for the Senate seat now held by Russell and State Rep. Joseph O. Rogers Jr. for governor.

Both Parker and Rogers are, like Thurmond, former Democrats who became dissatisfied with national party policies and defected to the GOP.

Democratic Gov. Robert E. McNair has no opposition in the primary for renomination.

South Carolina is electing two senators this year because of the death of Sen. Olin D. Johnston, Democrat. Russell was governor at the time, resigned, and was appointed to the Senate by McNair who as lieutenant governor took over the governor's chair.

None of the incumbent South Carolin. House members has opposition in the primary.

Of the 24 Illinois House members, only two others in addition to O'Hara have primary contests. Rep. William L. Dawson, veteran Chicago Negro Democrat, has two opponents, and Rep. George E. Shipley, Democrat, who represents the Downstate 23rd District, has opposition.

Mikva, 41, is less than half O'Hara's age and the age factor may sway some voters. Both condidates have been advocates of civil rights legislation. The district has a large Negro population.

Connecticut Republicans hold a convention June 17-18 to make nominations for statewide offices. Their choice for governor is expected to be E. Clayton Gengras, 57, a West Hartford businessman who would be entering politics for the first time.

Connecticut Democrats meet July 1-2 to renominate Gov. John N. Dempsey.

Church Calls For Getting China In U. N.

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) —The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America adopted a statement Friday night urging admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

The statement, adopted 107-100 after more than an hour's debate, read in part:

"We urged that Communist China. . . .be admitted to the United Nations so that lines of communications can be opened and where she will be subjected to the climate of public opinion."

The synod also called at its annual meeting on its congregations to present the covenant of open occupancy in housing to their memberships for discussion and adoption.

It urged congregations to become actively involved with fair housing committees in their communities and to require nondiscriminatory hiring policy in selecting employes and contractors for building programs.

Development Board Sets First Meet

HARRISONBURG (Special) — The Catahoula Parish Development Board, recently reactivated by the Catahoula Parish Police Jury by a unanimous vote, will hold its first meeting Tuesday, according to B. R. Cain, county supervisor of Farmers Home Administration.

The Board was originally created by the Police Jury on Nov. 4, 1963.

Ex-Officio members of this board are Cater F. Aplin Jr., mayor of Harrisonburg; Gerald D. Babin, mayor of Jonesville; Lonnie Franks, mayor, Sicily Island; Moody Tradewell, president of the police jury; and Henry G. Taliaferro, president of the Catahoula Parish School Board.

Members reappointed are Gus Watson, Foules; E. E. Johnson, Harrisonburg; H. C. Peck, Sicily Island; T. J. Penniston, Sicily Island; A. B. Chisum, Sicily Island; T. E. Kirby, Harrisonburg; P. J. Rison, Jonesville; Elmer I. Gibson, Harrisonburg; Cecil C. McGuffee, Enterprise; and R. B. Fritz, Jonesville.

Officers are Cater F. Aplin Jr., president; A. B. Chisum, vice president; H. C. Peck, secretary; and Elmer I. Gibson, treasurer.

At their 7 p.m. meeting Tuesday, board members will discuss making a grant for a comprehensive survey of water and sewage needs in Catahoula Parish for the present time as well as the next 20 years. The hiring of an engineer to prepare this survey or plan will also be discussed.

Farm Bureau Observance Set

Farm Bureau Week in Louisiana will be observed June 13-18, Fred Huenefeld, president of the Ouachita Parish Farm Bureau, announced Saturday.

Huenefeld said that despite the fact that farm population is "steadily decreasing, Farm Bureau membership has shown a steady rise. Today, nearly 1,750,000 farm families hold membership in the organization, some 23,000 in Louisiana."

South Carolina, Illinois

Primary Outcomes Baffle Observers

WASHINGTON (AP) —Renomination challenges to Sen. Donald S. Russell and veteran Congressman Barratt O'Hara, both Democrats, are the standout contests in primaries coming up Tuesday in South Carolina and Illinois.

Russell's opponent in South Carolina is Ernest F. Hollings, who was governor in 1959-63 and has a considerable personal following in the state. Most political observers rate the contest as close without trying to predict a winner.

O'Hara, who has been elected eight times from his southeast Chicago district, is not against Abner J. Mikva, a member of the state legislature. O'Hara, 84, is the oldest member of the house.

Committee To Call Vote In Caldwell

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Caldwell Parish Democratic Executive Committee will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Caldwell Parish Courthouse to call an election for school board members from wards two, three, five and eight, according to W. J. Perkins, chairman.

Candidates will have seven days after the meeting to file with either Perkins or Cedric D. Chapman, secretary.

Incumbent members who plan to seek re-election are S. H. Walker, ward two; W. A. Ray, ward five; and James W. Mott, ward eight. Mott is president of the board.

In ward three, a school board member will be selected to finish the unexpired term of J. W. Kinnison, who resigned March 11. His term expires January, 1969.

Ward four will lose one of its two members this year due to a decrease in population in the ward. The 1960 census showed ward four with a little under 5,000 persons and this being the first election in this ward since that time, Oliver Wilson, who would have come up for re-election will lose his seat on the board. E. L. Carroll is the other ward four member on the board.

Caldwell Parish voters will also help La Salle Parish in electing a judge and district attorney of the 28th Judicial District. Incumbents are Judge Clyde C. Russell of Jena and DA Cameron C. Minard of Columbia.

Anti-Poverty Officers Quit In Lincoln

RUSTON (Special) — Two officers of the Lincoln Parish Total community Action Program resigned recently giving as their reasons the belief that the group would be unable to attain its goal of helping the underprivileged of the parish.

H. D. Burkhalter, former trasurer of the group, and Charles Hebing, former vice - president, have worked from the initiation of the project in getting the parish economic group organized.

Group Chairman L. D. Land of Grambling said the resignations had been accepted and the offices filled this week.

Named as vice - president was Frank Bonner of Grambling and Mrs. Evangeline Emmanuel of Grambling was elected to the post of treasurer.

Marine Tells Of Injuries In Viet Nam

EROS (Special) — Relatives of S. - Sgt. D. E. Spillers, former Eros resident, have received their first letter from him since he was wounded in the Viet Nam war.

Sgt. Spillers wrote that he was leading a patrol into an enemy camp and had forced the enemy to leave. While finishing his mission, he was wounded by the enemy in ambush. Another member of his patrol was wounded and lost a leg as a result.

Sgt. Spillers was wounded with a bullet, but was carried to a hospital where a physician from Alto operated and removed the bullet. His condition is satisfactory.

Sgt. Spillers has served with the Marines for 14 years.

Andrews Family Holds Reunion

RUSTON (Special) — The John R. Andrews family of Bossier City held a reunion recently with an all - day outing at the Lake Bisteneau State Park.

Attending were three daughters and families, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore and Allen of Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Taylor, Deborah and Terry, of St. Louis, Mo.; and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jenkins, Benjie and Robbie, of Ruston. Other members of the Andrews family present were John Edward Andrews, 15; Mary Lynn, 13, and Rickie, 8.

Education Coordination Recommended By PAR

BATON ROUGE (Special) — All institutions of higher learning in Louisiana and students attending them would benefit from a well coordinated plan for higher education which would permit the state to make better use of its limited educational funds, faculty and facilities, the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) said Saturday in its weekly Legislative Bulletin.

The information in the bulletin is based on a forthcoming report on coordination, the third report in the research council's series on higher education in Louisiana.

PAR pointed out that the need for planning and coordination of higher education is evidenced by Louisiana's creation of new institutions and expansion of older ones without benefit of statewide planning and demonstrated need.

"This legislative session is following the same course as previous ones in approving new institutions and expanding existing ones without the benefit of a master plan based on detailed professional study," the research council said. There are bills introduced to authorize, establish and finance five new institutions and several proposals for expansion of others.

The research agency noted that three bills have been introduced to establish different types of coordinating agencies to give direction to Louisiana's higher education system — two originated in the House and one in the Senate.

The Senate bill, a proposed constitutional amendment, would create a Louisiana Coordinating Board for Higher Education to prepare "a master plan for the coordination, development and organization of public higher education" and to submit proposals to the governor and legislature for implementing the plan. This approach has never been tried in Louisiana, PAR said, but it is the predominant type of coordinating body in the United States today with 21 states having such a board.

The two House bills assign different functions to the coordinating agencies they propose. HB 1173, also a proposed constitutional amendment, would establish a single board of regents to govern as well as coordinate all public colleges and universities. HB 694 would create an advisory council composed primarily of representatives of educational institutions. The advisory board approach has been tried twice unsuccessfully in Louisiana, PAR noted.

No state has adopted the plan to establish a single governing board as proposed in HB 1173 in over 20 years, the research council said. "Colleges and universities have become too numerous and complex for a single board to effectively determine matters of internal administration for each institution and also coordinate and plan for all institutions." PAR also pointed out that under the appointing plan, LSU board members would dominate the new board for a number of years.

Many states which, at one time, had advisory boards like the one HB 694 would create, have since replaced them with formal coordinating agencies with more than a purely advisory function. Representatives of individual institutions on the advisory type boards often tend to think in terms of their own institutions rather than of meeting the state's overall program of higher education, PAR said.

"The board would also include legislators which is a departure from the generally accepted principle that legislators should not serve as part of the executive branch," PAR pointed out.

Most members of the Louisiana Coordinating Board for Higher Education proposed in SB 377 "would be chosen on the basis of their knowledge and ability not on their ties to a particular institution and geographic area," PAR noted. The board would have "sufficient authority to plan and implement a higher education system for the state based on need, not politics and pressure groups, thus avoiding undue duplication of programs at considerable cost but little value to the state."

Miss Hefley Retires After Half Century

HOMER (Special) — Miss Sue Hefley of Homer will end nearly half a century in the field of education on July 1. For the last several years she has been superviser of the Webster Parish School Material Center.

A graduate of the Louisiana State University in 1918, she has been in library work for 26 years, beginning in Baton Rouge in 1940 as superviser of libraries for the department of education.

She formed the Webster materials center in 1950, initiating services and activities which were then the responsibility of the public library. She also served in Monroe for some time.

Prior to that time she was a teacher. She began with teaching history at Baton Rouge High School then returned to Louisiana State University, where she got her degree in library science in 1934. Six years later she began her career in library work with libraries in Louisiana.

Miss Hefley is now looking forward to a trip she will make soon after retirement. The Louisiana Association of School Libraries is sending her to the American Library Association National convention in New York July 10.

She plans to continue to reside in Homer and to serve as Sunday school teacher at the First Methodist Church.

15 Top Test Scorers Are Announced

RUSTON (Special) — Fifteen top scorers in the college ability test given to freshmen entering the summer session at Louisiana Tech were announced by the guidance office.

Five of the leading students, graduates of the Ruston High School, are Jeffery Paul Andrulot, John Neill Cheatwood, Mary Jean Colvin. Krista Ann Henry and Dwight A. Lee.

The other 10 are as follows: Melissa Jane DeVille, Neville High School of Monroe; Toni Louise Dupont, Opelousas; William Robert Gage, Winnfield; Bonnie Marie Gray, Collinston; Jesse James Hollis, Winnsboro; Thomas P. Kennedy, Zachary.

Paula Helene Kivesto, Byrd High School of Shreveport; Betty Jane Pearce, North Caddo High School of Vivian; Gary Wayne Thomas, Sarepta, and William Benjamin Wiley, Minden.

Mrs. Trawick Appointed To Police Jury

WINNFIELD (Special) — Mrs. Lloyd Trawick was appointed to hold a police jury post until the first election is held to replace her husband, the late Lloyd Trawick at a call meeting of the Winn Parish Democratic executive committee Saturday.

In other business, the first Democratic primary election for school board members for Wards 7, 8, 9 and 10, Ward 1 judge, Ward 1 marshal and Ward 1 police jury members was set for Saturday, Aug. 13. Last date for candidates to file is Saturday, June 18.

Filing fees for the seven offices as set by the committee is $27 per candidate.

Commissioners for the election will be drawn at the next meeting, scheduled for July 16, according to Eli Harrell, chairman.

Committee To Call Vote In Caldwell

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Caldwell Parish Democratic Executive Committee will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Caldwell Parish Courthouse to call an election for school board members from wards two, three, five and eight, according to W. J. Perkins, chairman.

Candidates will have seven days after the meeting to file with either Perkins or Cedric D. Chapman, secretary.

Incumbent members who plan to seek re-election are S. H. Walker, ward two; W. A. Ray, ward five; and James W. Mott, ward eight. Mott is president of the board.

In ward three, a school board member will be selected to finish the unexpired term of J. W. Kinnison, who resigned March 11. His term expires January, 1969.

Ward four will lose one of its two members this year due to a decrease in population in the ward. The 1960 census showed ward four with a little under 5,000 persons and this being the first election in this ward since that time, Oliver Wilson, who would have come up for re-election will lose his seat on the board. E. L. Carroll is the other ward four member on the board.

Caldwell Parish voters will also help La Salle Parish in electing a judge and district attorney of the 28th Judicial District. Incumbents are Judge Clyde C. Russell of Jena and DA Cameron C. Minard of Columbia.

Race Day Awards

LISBON (AP)—Portugal observed its national "Race Day" by decorating 177 soldiers Friday for gallantry in action against African insurgents in Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea.

Anti-Poverty Officers Quit In Lincoln

RUSTON (Special) — Two officers of the Lincoln Parish Total community Action Program resigned recently giving as their reasons the belief that the group would be unable to attain its goal of helping the underprivileged of the parish.

H. D. Burkhalter, former trasurer of the group, and Charles Hebing, former vice - president, have worked from the initiation of the project in getting the parish economic group organized.

Group Chairman L. D. Land of Grambling said the resignations had been accepted and the offices filled this week.

Named as vice - president was Frank Bonner of Grambling and Mrs. Evangeline Emmanuel of Grambling was elected to the post of treasurer.

Marine Tells Of Injuries In Viet Nam

EROS (Special) — Relatives of S. - Sgt. D. E. Spillers, former Eros resident, have received their first letter from him since he was wounded in the Viet Nam war.

Sgt. Spillers wrote that he was leading a patrol into an enemy camp and had forced the enemy to leave. While finishing his mission, he was wounded by the enemy in ambush. Another member of his patrol was wounded and lost a leg as a result.

Sgt. Spillers was wounded with a bullet, but was carried to a hospital where a physician from Alto operated and removed the bullet. His condition is satisfactory.

Sgt. Spillers has served with the Marines for 14 years.

Andrews Family Holds Reunion

RUSTON (Special) — The John R. Andrews family of Bossier City held a reunion recently with an all - day outing at the Lake Bisteneau State Park.

Attending were three daughters and families, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore and Allen of Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Taylor, Deborah and Terry, of St. Louis, Mo.; and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jenkins, Benjie and Robbie, of Ruston. Other members of the Andrews family present were John Edward Andrews, 15; Mary Lynn, 13, and Rickie, 8.

Education Coordination Recommended By PAR

BATON ROUGE (Special) — All institutions of higher learning in Louisiana and students attending them would benefit from a well coordinated plan for higher education which would permit the state to make better use of its limited educational funds, faculty and facilities, the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) said Saturday in its weekly Legislative Bulletin.

The information in the bulletin is based on a forthcoming report on coordination, the third report in the research council's series on higher education in Louisiana.

PAR pointed out that the need for planning and coordination of higher education is evidenced by Louisiana's creation of new institutions and expansion of older ones without benefit of statewide planning and demonstrated need.

"This legislative session is following the same course as previous ones in approving new institutions and expanding existing ones without the benefit of a master plan based on detailed professional study," the research council said. There are bills introduced to authorize, establish and finance five new institutions and several proposals for expansion of others.

The research agency noted that three bills have been introduced to establish different types of coordinating agencies to give direction to Louisiana's higher education system — two originated in the House and one in the Senate.

The Senate bill, a proposed constitutional amendment, would create a Louisiana Coordinating Board for Higher Education to prepare "a master plan for the coordination, development and organization of public higher education" and to submit proposals to the governor and legislature for implementing the plan. This approach has never been tried in Louisiana, PAR said, but it is the predominant type of coordinating body in the United States today with 21 states having such a board.

The two House bills assign different functions to the coordinating agencies they propose. HB 1173, also a proposed constitutional amendment, would establish a single board of regents to govern as well as coordinate all public colleges and universities. HB 694 would create an advisory council composed primarily of representatives of educational institutions. The advisory board approach has been tried twice unsuccessfully in Louisiana, PAR noted.

No state has adopted the plan to establish a single governing board as proposed in HB 1173 in over 20 years, the research council said. "Colleges and universities have become too numerous and complex for a single board to effectively determine matters of internal administration for each institution and also coordinate and plan for all institutions." PAR also pointed out that under the appointing plan, LSU board members would dominate the new board for a number of years.

Many states which, at one time, had advisory boards like the one HB 694 would create, have since replaced them with formal coordinating agencies with more than a purely advisory function. Representatives of individual institutions on the advisory type boards often tend to think in terms of their own institutions rather than of meeting the state's overall program of higher education, PAR said.

"The board would also include legislators which is a departure from the generally accepted principle that legislators should not serve as part of the executive branch," PAR pointed out.

Most members of the Louisiana Coordinating Board for Higher Education proposed in SB 377 "would be chosen on the basis of their knowledge and ability not on their ties to a particular institution and geographic area," PAR noted. The board would have "sufficient authority to plan and implement a higher education system for the state based on need, not politics and pressure groups, thus avoiding undue duplication of programs at considerable cost but little value to the state."

Miss Hefley Retires After Half Century

HOMER (Special) — Miss Sue Hefley of Homer will end nearly half a century in the field of education on July 1. For the last several years she has been superviser of the Webster Parish School Material Center.

A graduate of the Louisiana State University in 1918, she has been in library work for 26 years, beginning in Baton Rouge in 1940 as superviser of libraries for the department of education.

She formed the Webster materials center in 1950, initiating services and activities which were then the responsibility of the public library. She also served in Monroe for some time.

Prior to that time she was a teacher. She began with teaching history at Baton Rouge High School then returned to Louisiana State University, where she got her degree in library science in 1934. Six years later she began her career in library work with libraries in Louisiana.

Miss Hefley is now looking forward to a trip she will make soon after retirement. The Louisiana Association of School Libraries is sending her to the American Library Association National convention in New York July 10.

She plans to continue to reside in Homer and to serve as Sunday school teacher at the First Methodist Church.

15 Top Test Scorers Are Announced

The other 10 are as follows: Melissa Jane DeVille, Neville High School of Monroe; Toni Louise Dupont, Opelousas; William Robert Gage, Winnfield; Bonnie Marie Gray, Collinston; Jesse James Hollis, Winnsboro; Thomas P. Kennedy, Zachary.

Paula Helene Kivesto, Byrd High School of Shreveport; Betty Jane Pearce, North Caddo High School of Vivian; Gary Wayne Thomas, Sarepta, and William Benjamin Wiley, Minden.

Mrs. Trawick Appointed To Police Jury

WINNFIELD (Special) — Mrs. Lloyd Trawick was appointed to hold a police jury post until the first election is held to replace her husband, the late Lloyd Trawick at a call meeting of the Winn Parish Democratic executive committee Saturday.

In other business, the first Democratic primary election for school board members for Wards 7, 8, 9 and 10, Ward 1 judge, Ward 1 marshal and Ward 1 police jury members was set for Saturday, Aug. 13. Last date for candidates to file is Saturday, June 18.

Filing fees for the seven offices as set by the committee is $27 per candidate.

Commissioners for the election will be drawn at the next meeting, scheduled for July 16, according to Eli Harrell, chairman.

Government Releases Names Of Hospitals To Participate In Medicare Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government released Saturday the names of hospitals it is listing as eligible to participate in medicare. But it made clear simultaneously that this eligibility will be canceled if later inspection discloses racial discrimination.

In its drive to enroll as many as possible of the country's 7,654 qualified hospitals before the program of care for the elderly begins July 1, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is accepting their assurances in writing that they are in compliance with the nondiscrimination requirements of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The results of this hurryup effort were disclosed Saturday when the department made public a list of 5,558 hospitals which have been formally signed up for participation or have provided written assurances that they are in compliance with the law against discriminatory racial practices.

But HEW specified that this clearance "is subject to an on-site visit later" by government representatives who will check for discrimination not only in the handling of patients ond employes but in giving hospital staff privileges to doctors regardless of color.

Although 2,143 hospitals — mostly in the South — as of Thursday had not yet been cleared under the rights law, Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner predicted on that day that virtually all will be certified in time for the start of health insurance benefits for 19 million Americans aged 65 and over.

Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act forbids discrimination "'under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance." This bars medicare payments, as well as any other federal help, to noncomplying hospitals.

In plain-talk answers to questions put by the American Hospital Association, HEW has laid down its interpretation of the legal requirements. The question-and-answer article is published in the current issue of "Hospitals," AHA's official journal.

The no-discrimination rule, the department said, applies to "admission policies, patient room assignments, availability of services and facilities, staff privileges and training programs."

It said the civil rights requirement "is not being administered as a numbers game" in which a hospital would have to have 30 per cent Negro patients if the community was 30 per cent Negro.

Instead, HEW said it wants not a "'balance" but "the assurance that Negro and white patients are not treated differently — That physicians are not sending their Negro patients to one hospital and white patients to another."

To question whether the law requires that there be a Negro and a white patient in every room, HEW replied it does not.

"But it does require that all patients be assigned to rooms, wards, floors, or buildings of hospitals without regard to race, color or national origin. Patients may not be asked if they would be willing to share a room with a person of a particular race."

In case of "valid medical reasons" patients may be reassigned from nonsegregated rooms after admission, the article said, and patients are free at any time to request assignment to available private rooms.

"But transfer of patients may not be used as a device to evade compliance with the Civil Rights Act," HEW emphasized.

While stating its intention to check compliance by on-site inspections, HEW said its representatives would not visit a hospital unannounced "unless there is gross evidence that a hospital deliberately concealed discrimination during a previous visit."

Government representatives will tour the hospital and its service areas with the hospital administrator and members of his staff, HEW said, adding:

"They will be interested in observing room assignments, dining area, waiting rooms, sitting rooms, and other general service facilities.

"They will also want to see whether outpatient services are used without regard to race, color or national origin.

GENERATION OF DOERS

Monroe Morning World

Sunday Features

Editorials — Spotlight — Sports

Monroe, La. June 12, 1966 1-B

The voices of dissent from America's youth today are loud and often overwhelming. But they come from one end of the student spectrum. There is a vast middleground of students who stay out. On the other end, there are students who commit themselves without fanfare to ideals and goals. They are the youthful doers of their generation.

..By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer

They come from the years of good life, and from the moments of their own self-doubt. They are as unalike as nature and growing up can make them. They have just one call in common. They are young, and they know their youth is a precious and fleeting thing.

One after another they say, "If I don't do it now, I know I'll never do it."

So they go — to put the years of their young lives on the line, to serve in jungles and river towns of distant places, and in the jungles of the towns, cities and the vast wasteland of America.

Some are Peace Corps volunteers. Some are volunteers of VISTA, the domestic Peace Corps. Some serve through smaller groups that spring from college campuses and college consciences. They number in the thousands. They seek a hundred things, and among the things the find are themselves.

GENERATION OF DOERS

These are of the generation of "doers" — those who have spurned the apathy and the gray flannel suit ideals of a previous generation — seeking to shape the world in which they will have to live. Sometimes their words are drowned out in the uproar of rebellions on college campuses; sometimes their deeds are overshadowed by the picket signs and protest banners that have blossomed on the campus.

They see that there is not only much to be done, but they believe this is the time to do it.

Suddenly youth has a job to do, and a spirit to do it with.

It is there in the assured words of a VISTA youth in Colorado, in the earnest, artless way of a boy from Wisconsin, in the soft sorrow of a young girl working with the poor of Chicago's North Side, and in the dreams-come-true of a smalltown girl bound for the Peace Corps.

So it is with Karen Behling. She is 21, a brown-eyed, ash-brown-haired senior at the University of Wisconsin. She is pleasant-natured and pretty. She lived, until college, in a town of 2,300 people — Oconto Falls, Wis.

When she was much younger, she used to tell her father that one day she would go to Peru. He used to laugh.

"But then," she says, "I started taking anthropology, and he didn't laugh about it anymore."

PEACE CORPS INVITEE

Now Karen is a Peace Corps invitee, going probably to Peru to work in urban development. Karen is aware that her's has been a good life. Her father is a lawyer. She has two younger sisters. Their home is a comfortable contemporary with white siding in the wooded hills that frame the Oconto River. The hills were "a great place to hike," the river ideal for swimming. Karen was an honor student at Oconto Falls High School, 450 students, two-thirds rural.

Karen feels a built-in obligation to offer to others some of her own good fortune, to give of herself, and to leave some mark of her own on the world.

But her reasons are more than altruistic. She is thinking of graduate school. Her future is still open, still undecided.

"Ever since the Peace Corps started," she says, "I've been interested in it, and thought it would be a great opportunity to help other people. But it will also help me to decide whether to continue in my current field, or go into Foreign Service."

Her interest in anthropology began, as best as she can remember, about the fifth grade, reading in a children's magazine about the discovery of the site of ancient Troy. It led from there to the study of man, his past, thence to his present and future, and the Peace Corps.

NEW FRONTIER

"I'm sure that at first it was a romantic image of being off in the jungles, and far - away places. But then you start reading more about it and you realize this is stupid. And then you sense that this is sort of a new frontier, a way of making progress.

"And personally, it will be a tremendous experience. You're in a different situation than you've ever been in before. And even if it should be an unfortunate experience, it has to be valuable. In the end, you know at least you've tried."

You don't have to go to Peru to find another world. On the North Side of Chicago, behind the Lake Shore Drive facade of fancy apartments, is a dingy section where the wind whips sharp, stinging street dirt into your face, and poverty stares back at poverty.

Even taxi drivers who live there won't pick up in the neighborhood.

A sign in the store front says, "Hull House outpost for teenage girls." Men passing by stop and leer in the open door at a pretty social worker. Next door is a second - hand clothing store. On the other side is a take - out chicken shop.

"YOU GROW UP an awful lot doing something like this," says Susan King, 19 (right), of Glendale, Calif. She and Susan Beeby, 18, of Santa Cruz, Calif., are seen outside of Hull House Outpost for Teenage Girls in Chicago. They work with delinquent girls. The two Susans, who share an apartment, are volunteers in Vista, the domestic Peace Corps, and among the thousands of students who are leaving college to help other people — and help find themselves. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

LEFT SCHOOL

This is the other world for Susan King. She is 19, from Glendale, Calif., a VISTA volunteer who stepped out of college after three months partly because she was tired of hearing the teenage dramatics of "Joey didn't call. I'll never go out with Joey again." She asked herself, "Is this what it's going to be like from now on?"

At "the Outpost" she brings her warmth to young girls who live in the cold uncertainty of not enough money, not enough jobs, not enough self - respect. To them, she is a big sister, and a window to what the world might be.

It is a joke among VISTA people that they answer the inevitable question, "Why?" with a barren smile and the phrase, "To help the poor, of course." The real answer is, naturally, much more personal.

Susan has volunteered for a year away from her family — a family that has found comfort in rising above its own problems. Her mother isn't well. Her father has been in a wheelchair since he was 16 when polio struck him down. He does accounting and income tax work at home. But, between Susan, her older brother, and two younger sisters, there seems to be a great sense of family. "It was always fabulous," she says. "Just great."

Nevertheless: "you have to get away from her, and do something solid, and get to know people," she explains.

Now she is in a daily battle with forces she can do little about. The spindly girls who come into the "Outpost" look younger, but more tired, than their years. Gradually, they begin to share their lives with her. She is there to console, to listen to the girl whose father took part of the family and moved away, leaving her behind with her mother. She is there to be patient with a girl she thought she had reached, who suddenly let her down.

The job, she says, "takes somebody who can give an awful lot, and doesn't need a pat on the back all the time, who can be satisfied with that extra squeeze a kid gives you at the end of a hug."

LONG WAY HOME

She lives on a street lined with signs that say "Baited for Rats." She and her roommate, Susan Beeby, 18, of Santa Cruz, Calif., walk home the long way to avoid the skid row that is half a block away from their apartment, which is the focus of their lives after working hours. They have a dog and a telephone. They have no car, no television. The apartment is "a place to keep our sanity." Susan says, and she laughs when she tells you that their food closet has one can of beans, three cans of soup and two jars of jelly. "There's more dog food in the closet than there is human food."

At 19, Susan has a notion of what her months in Chicago have given her. "It's very different from when I was a kid," she says, and adds softly, "that wasn't so long ago. You grow up an awful lot doing something like this. I can see it in myself."

WANT TO HELP

The pyschiatrists who have to pick and choose between those who volunteer to serve can catalogue the various reasons. The kids want to help people, want to do something worthwhile, want to travel and see exotic places, want a new challenge, or perhaps they are only staving off that last requirement — perhaps they fear it — fear slipping into a mold, fear becoming part of the organization, or seek one last fling before before becoming part of the 9-to-5, married, walk-the-baby-at-2 a.m. generation.

One expert sees beyond these reasons. "I think they are people who have not completed the work of adolescence," he says. "That's, not to say anything bad of them. Some of their contemporaries have never taken up the work of adolescence — or they have ended or interrupted it for some other expediency."

Perhaps, he says, they are taking the lids off their consciences. They have grown up with parental order, told how the world will be, told how they should be within that world. But now they are a little older, faced with some frightening drives within themselves, childlike views of sex and aggression and hostility. And now they have to have a time apart to discover within themselves channels for these drives.

"It is like atomic energy," one psychiatrist says. "Uncontrolled it can do great and awful damage. But controlled, it can do the work of a lifetime, the work of a career, the work of a responsible, whole human being."

For most youngsters, the energy is there. Some are seeking the controls.

The search begins against the backdrop of college life. A church offers a discussion on "The Sexual Alienation," and a coffee shop offers a free - swinging, if informal, debate on Viet Nam.

A great number are looking for independent measures within themselves to substitute for all the external traffic signs that have directed their lives so far.

Said one Peaced Corps official who was a volunteer himself: "Peace Corps service gets you at a very critical time of your life, takes you out of the academic arena and out of Western society and its values. It gives you a better notion of your own value and direction."

For instance Robert Carney, a VISTA volunteer, age 23, a blue - eyed blond.

"I think it's a king of frustration, mainly, for me and others I've known. You sit in a college classroom and you pick up the theory and the abstractions, but they're hollow one way or another. So you look for the reality to support the abstractions."

He works at a small project near Colorado Springs, a sort of big brother for would - be delinquent boys. He comes from Iselin, N.J. His father sells steel. Living was comfortable, if not extravagant. He started at Jersey City State College, dropped out to work for a year, returned and dropped out again for VISTA.

PRESSING CONFORMITY

"I guess I went to college because of the social and economic commitment my family had put on it," he says. "That's pretty much the way it is in middle - class America. Junior goes to college, and that's that. It may be enough for some people, but it wasn't enough for me. So I left.

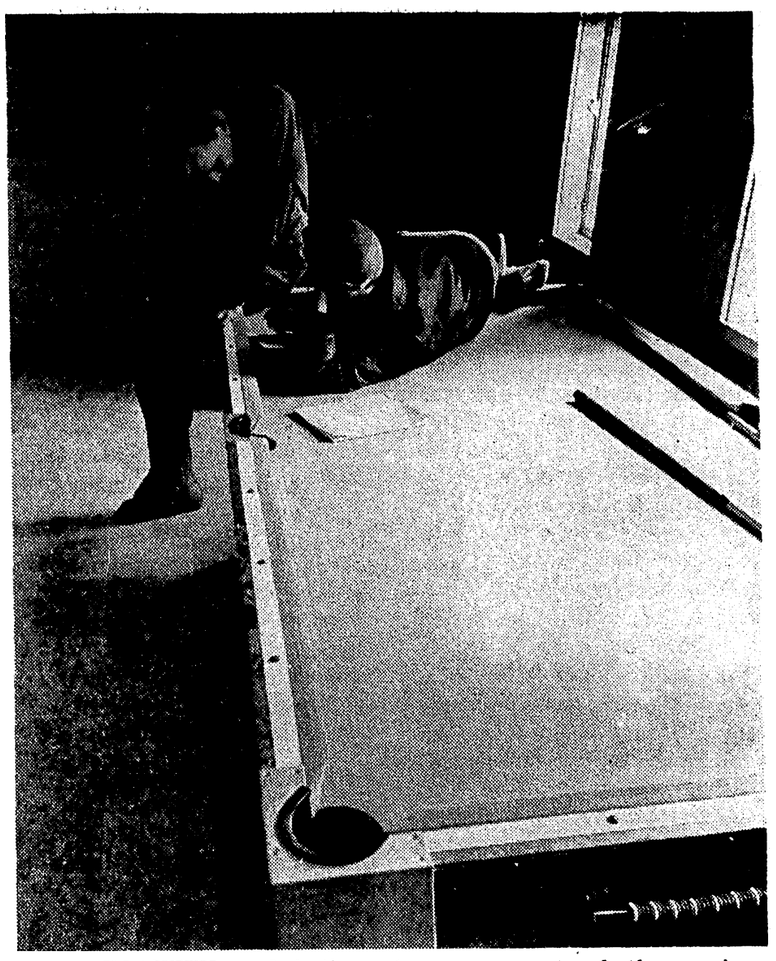
"I think that there are thousands of kids my age who feel this way — but some of them manage to live with it. I couldn't. The reasons weren't strong enough. I joined VISTA and it's been tremendous. It put me back together again.

He plans to leave VISTA this year, return to college, go on to graduate school in psychology.

Carney and a co - volunteer, Steve Sutherland, 20, of St. Paul, Minn., told of a recruiting trip to the University of Colorado to sign up VISTA volunteers. A fraternity offered them sleeping accomodations and the house president showed them the room. They thanked him, and offered him a drink. Their host, they said, turned pale with shock.

"He had thought we were starry - eyed idealists, Carney said. "He was as surprised as most people are to find out that we're really not that type at all, that we are human beings, their kind of human begins."

The thirst of doing something outside of the college curriculum is strong on many campuses. There are many campus service organizations that offer students the chance to work a few hours a week with community groups. There are others that recruit youngsters for summers overseas.



WORKING WITH people in the various government and other services is turning the abstractions of the classroom into the realities of life for a number of college student volunteers. Here, Robert Carney of Iselin, N.J., helps a boy with a math problem, with a pool table as a "desk,"at a small project near Colorado Springs, Colo. As a Vista volunteer, Robert serves as a sort of big brother to potential delinquents. He plans to return to college later this year and to go on to graduate school in psychology. First Ladies Of Orient Destroy Another Asian Myth

By GEORGE McARTHUR

MANILA (AP) — A half-dozen Asian charmers are giving the women of the Orient a sprightly new image. It's a whopping change from the fluttery world of Madame Butterfly.

The six bear such diverse names as Sirikit, Imelda, Mai, Michiko, Monique and Dewi. They reached the top by the classic method of marrying the boss or the boss's son. But in getting their man several of them shattered the old Eastern idea of arranged marriages.

They are envied and emulated by the women of Thailand, the Philippines, South Viet Nam, Japan, Cambodia and Indonesia. As a foretaste of change among Asia's women they indicate the long dominant male is in for lively surprises.

MANY TALENTS

They have such expectable housewifely abilities as cooking dinner and spanking the kids. Collectively, they can also fly an airplane, play the piano, dance the Twist, fast-draw a Western six-shooter, strum a guitar, write poetry, manhandle a Jeep, play tennis, golf, badminton or what-have-you and belt out American popular songs to a spellbound crowd of 25,000 people standing in the rain.

Each speaks at least two languages. Some speak three or four.

In short, they are talented and beautiful and although they play second fiddle to their husbands the tune is frequently theirs.

The most influential are Queen Sirikit of Thailand and Imelda Marcos of the Philippines.

The queen, who plays a mean piano and joins jazz-loving King Bhumibol in occasional duets, is best known internationally as one of the world's best dressed women and a member of fashion's hall of fame. At home, her beauty and charm are considered national assets by admiring Thai subjects.

She will be 35 in August and still wears a size 8 — including the blue jeans she privately sports around the palace while playing with her four children.

Even more influential in her homeland is Imelda Marcos, whose lilting soprano voice was a big asset in winning the presidential election for husband Ferdinand last November.

Campaigner Marcos, making a dozen stump speeches a day, quickly learned to send Imelda ahead where she would hold crowds with songs in English and a dozen Philippine dialects.

Careening through the countryside by Jeep, bus and island ferry she became the best-known woman in the Philippines. Now installed as First Lady at Malacanang Palace the 35 - year - old one - time Miss Manila is embarked on a nationwide culture building program. She has also introduced the Twist, Jerk and other athletic dances to late evening diplomatic dinners.

WON BY STORM

"Meldy," as her husband calls her, was won by storm. The night he met her, war - hero Marcos sent her a rosebud and blooming rose — one flower represented his full - blooming love and the bud represented the love he hoped she was beginning to have for him. Two weeks later they were wed.

Another onetime beauty queen is Princess Monique of Cambodia. She was elected queen of a United Nations fair at Pgnom Penh some 10 years ago and attracted the eye of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Because he was then married, their romance was officially played down but now she is officially Princess Monique and accounted a gracious and beautiful hostess. She has accompanied Sihanouk on state visits to the United Nations, the Philippines and Indonesia where she was an effective diplomat for her sensitive husband.

OTHER PRINCESS

The other princess in the group is Princess Michiko who some day will be Empress of Japan -- the first commoner empress in the history of the 2,616-year-old dynasty. She reached the sacred household via the tennis courts.

While staying at a mountain resort in 1957 one of her opponents in a doubles match was young Crown Prince Akihito. A year later she was admitted to membership in the Tokyo Lawn Tennis Club and the member pushing her application was none other than the crown prince.

When a royal committee was set up to select his wife, the crown prince saw to it that Michiko's name was on the list.

However, the prince's work was just beginning. Michiko refused his offer and her father, a wealthy flour miller, sent her off to Europe. When she came back the crown prince deluged her with telephone calls and finally won her over.

Now she continues to shatter tradition by insisting on the right to raise her two children herself — something never done in the Imperial family.

Two months after the wedding of Michiko and Crown Prince Akihito, another Japanese teenager named Naoko Nemoto had a half-hour conversation in Tokyo with visiting President Sukarno of Indonesia. She went home and looked at a map to find where Indonesia was.

A high school dropout who tried her luck on the stage and with bit parts on television, Noako was then working as a bargirl.

On his return to Jakarta President Sukarno sent for her and in 1959 they were married. She was 19 and he was 59.

STUDY REQUIRED

He made her burn all her slacks. He also insisted she spend months studying history, geography and the Indonesian language and customs. In return he built her a mansion and gave her the name Ratna Sari Dewi Sukarno. She became a power in the tangled palace politics of Indonesia and hurried home from a shopping trip in Europe to assist him when Sukarno was fighting for his political life earlier this year.

Another young wife prepared to fight her husband's battles is lissome, 24-year-old Mai Ky, the onetime airline stewardess who married Air Vice Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, the hotshot pilot and prime minister of South Viet Nam.

In trips around the country in a twin engined DC3, she now flies as his copilot. At home, which is a sand-bagged barrack at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport, she sometimes impresses visitors by strapping on a revolver and demonstrating a fast draw.

She confesses to three loves: her husband, her 8-month-old daughter Duyen—which means "the wonderful love story" — and Western movies.

"I do not know if my husband is the best man for Viet Nam," she says. "All I do know is that he loves his country."

Such statements from an outwardly pixyish 24-year-old more-or-less characterize the new spirit among Asia's perceptive First Ladies. They know what is going on and intend to be part of it. There is no sign that their husbands object — which destroys another Asian myth.

GENERATION OF DOERS

Monroe, La. June 12, 1966 1-B

The voices of dissent from America's youth today are loud and often overwhelming. But they come from one end of the student spectrum. There is a vast middleground of students who stay out. On the other end, there are students who commit themselves without fanfare to ideals and goals. They are the youthful doers of their generation.

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer

They come from the years of good life, and from the moments of their own self-doubt. They are as unalike as nature and growing up can make them. They have just one call in common. They are young, and they know their youth is a precious and fleeting thing.

One after another they say, "If I don't do it now, I know I'll never do it."

So they go — to put the years of their young lives on the line, to serve in jungles and river towns of distant places, and in the jungles of the towns, cities and the vast wasteland of America.

Some are Peace Corps volunteers. Some are volunteers of VISTA, the domestic Peace Corps. Some serve through smaller groups that spring from college campuses and college consciences. They number in the thousands. They seek a hundred things, and among the things the find are themselves.

"YOU GROW UP an awful lot doing something like this," says Susan King, 19 (right), of Glendale, Calif. She and Susan Beeby, 18, of Santa Cruz, Calif., are seen outside of Hull House Outpost for Teenage Girls in Chicago. They work with delinquent girls. The two Susans, who share an apartment, are volunteers in Vista, the domestic Peace Corps, and among the thousands of students who are leaving college to help other people — and help find themselves. GENERATION OF DOERS

These are of the generation of "doers" — those who have spurned the apathy and the gray flannel suit ideals of a previous generation — seeking to shape the world in which they will have to live. Sometimes their words are drowned out in the uproar of rebellions on college campuses; sometimes their deeds are overshadowed by the picket signs and protest banners that have blossomed on the campus.

They see that there is not only much to be done, but they believe this is the time to do it.

Suddenly youth has a job to do, and a spirit to do it with.

It is there in the assured words of a VISTA youth in Colorado, in the earnest, artless way of a boy from Wisconsin, in the soft sorrow of a young girl working with the poor of Chicago's North Side, and in the dreams-come-true of a smalltown girl bound for the Peace Corps.

So it is with Karen Behling. She is 21, a brown-eyed, ash-brown-haired senior at the University of Wisconsin. She is pleasant-natured and pretty. She lived, until college, in a town of 2,300 people — Oconto Falls, Wis.

When she was much younger, she used to tell her father that one day she would go to Peru. He used to laugh.

"But then," she says, "I started taking anthropology, and he didn't laugh about it anymore."

PEACE CORPS INVITEE

Now Karen is a Peace Corps invitee, going probably to Peru to work in urban development. Karen is aware that her's has been a good life. Her father is a lawyer. She has two younger sisters. Their home is a comfortable contemporary with white siding in the wooded hills that frame the Oconto River. The hills were "a great place to hike," the river ideal for swimming. Karen was an honor student at Oconto Falls High School, 450 students, two-thirds rural.

Karen feels a built-in obligation to offer to others some of her own good fortune, to give of herself, and to leave some mark of her own on the world.

But her reasons are more than altruistic. She is thinking of graduate school. Her future is still open, still undecided.

"Ever since the Peace Corps started," she says, "I've been interested in it, and thought it would be a great opportunity to help other people. But it will also help me to decide whether to continue in my current field, or go into Foreign Service."

Her interest in anthropology began, as best as she can remember, about the fifth grade, reading in a children's magazine about the discovery of the site of ancient Troy. It led from there to the study of man, his past, thence to his present and future, and the Peace Corps.

NEW FRONTIER

"I'm sure that at first it was a romantic image of being off in the jungles, and far - away places. But then you start reading more about it and you realize this is stupid. And then you sense that this is sort of a new frontier, a way of making progress.

"And personally, it will be a tremendous experience. You're in a different situation than you've ever been in before. And even if it should be an unfortunate experience, it has to be valuable. In the end, you know at least you've tried."

You don't have to go to Peru to find another world. On the North Side of Chicago, behind the Lake Shore Drive facade of fancy apartments, is a dingy section where the wind whips sharp, stinging street dirt into your face, and poverty stares back at poverty.

Even taxi drivers who live there won't pick up in the neighborhood.

A sign in the store front says, "Hull House outpost for teenage girls." Men passing by stop and leer in the open door at a pretty social worker. Next door is a second - hand clothing store. On the other side is a take - out chicken shop.

LEFT SCHOOL

This is the other world for Susan King. She is 19, from Glendale, Calif., a VISTA volunteer who stepped out of college after three months partly because she was tired of hearing the teenage dramatics of "Joey didn't call. I'll never go out with Joey again." She asked herself, "Is this what it's going to be like from now on?"

At "the Outpost" she brings her warmth to young girls who live in the cold uncertainty of not enough money, not enough jobs, not enough self - respect. To them, she is a big sister, and a window to what the world might be.

It is a joke among VISTA people that they answer the inevitable question, "Why?" with a barren smile and the phrase, "To help the poor, of course." The real answer is, naturally, much more personal.

Susan has volunteered for a year away from her family — a family that has found comfort in rising above its own problems. Her mother isn't well. Her father has been in a wheelchair since he was 16 when polio struck him down. He does accounting and income tax work at home. But, between Susan, her older brother, and two younger sisters, there seems to be a great sense of family. "It was always fabulous," she says. "Just great."

Nevertheless: "you have to get away from her, and do something solid, and get to know people," she explains.

Now she is in a daily battle with forces she can do little about. The spindly girls who come into the "Outpost" look younger, but more tired, than their years. Gradually, they begin to share their lives with her. She is there to console, to listen to the girl whose father took part of the family and moved away, leaving her behind with her mother. She is there to be patient with a girl she thought she had reached, who suddenly let her down.

The job, she says, "takes somebody who can give an awful lot, and doesn't need a pat on the back all the time, who can be satisfied with that extra squeeze a kid gives you at the end of a hug."

LONG WAY HOME

She lives on a street lined with signs that say "Baited for Rats." She and her roommate, Susan Beeby, 18, of Santa Cruz, Calif., walk home the long way to avoid the skid row that is half a block away from their apartment, which is the focus of their lives after working hours. They have a dog and a telephone. They have no car, no television. The apartment is "a place to keep our sanity." Susan says, and she laughs when she tells you that their food closet has one can of beans, three cans of soup and two jars of jelly. "There's more dog food in the closet than there is human food."

At 19, Susan has a notion of what her months in Chicago have given her. "It's very different from when I was a kid," she says, and adds softly, "that wasn't so long ago. You grow up an awful lot doing something like this. I can see it in myself."

WANT TO HELP

The pyschiatrists who have to pick and choose between those who volunteer to serve can catalogue the various reasons. The kids want to help people, want to do something worthwhile, want to travel and see exotic places, want a new challenge, or perhaps they are only staving off that last requirement — perhaps they fear it — fear slipping into a mold, fear becoming part of the organization, or seek one last fling before before becoming part of the 9-to-5, married, walk-the-baby-at-2 a.m. generation.

One expert sees beyond these reasons. "I think they are people who have not completed the work of adolescence," he says. "That's, not to say anything bad of them. Some of their contemporaries have never taken up the work of adolescence — or they have ended or interrupted it for some other expediency."

Perhaps, he says, they are taking the lids off their consciences. They have grown up with parental order, told how the world will be, told how they should be within that world. But now they are a little older, faced with some frightening drives within themselves, childlike views of sex and aggression and hostility. And now they have to have a time apart to discover within themselves channels for these drives.

"It is like atomic energy," one psychiatrist says. "Uncontrolled it can do great and awful damage. But controlled, it can do the work of a lifetime, the work of a career, the work of a responsible, whole human being."

For most youngsters, the energy is there. Some are seeking the controls.

The search begins against the backdrop of college life. A church offers a discussion on "The Sexual Alienation," and a coffee shop offers a free - swinging, if informal, debate on Viet Nam.

A great number are looking for independent measures within themselves to substitute for all the external traffic signs that have directed their lives so far.

Said one Peaced Corps official who was a volunteer himself: "Peace Corps service gets you at a very critical time of your life, takes you out of the academic arena and out of Western society and its values. It gives you a better notion of your own value and direction."

For instance Robert Carney, a VISTA volunteer, age 23, a blue - eyed blond.

"I think it's a king of frustration, mainly, for me and others I've known. You sit in a college classroom and you pick up the theory and the abstractions, but they're hollow one way or another. So you look for the reality to support the abstractions."

World Endorses Ellender

The World endorses Senator Allen J. Ellender of Houma for Democratic renomination and re-election to a sixth term in the United States Senate. Probably no member of the Senate enjoys stronger or more widespread confidence among his own electorate than does the present Louisiana Senior Senator. In his five previous elections no parish ever has voted against him twice. In two of these elections he carried 62 of the 64 parishes. In another, he carried 63 of the 64.

No tribute that we could pay to Senator Ellender, and no endorsement that we could give him, could equal the tremendous tributes and endorsements given him over and over by a tremendously overwhelming proportion of the electorate of this state.

In endorsing Senator Ellender in 1954 (we would have endorsed him in 1960 if there had been any opposition) The World made this statement:

> "The World has disagreed with Senator Ellender in the past on individual issues. We may do so in the future. But there is nothing in his record to justify replacement of his capabilities, experience and Senate seniority. . . ."

That statement is true now as it was then. But such disagreement as we have had with Senator Ellender has been solely on individual issues, and intelligent people cannot discuss diversified and controversial issues of the type constantly coming up these days without finding some disagreement among themselves.

As for seniority, Senator Ellender now has 12 years more of Senate seniority — and experience — than he had when we wrote our 1954 endorsement.

At the end of his present term he will have served in the Senate for 30 years. The closest to that length of tenure for any Louisiana Senator is the 18 years which Senator Ransdell served many, many years ago. Prior to going to the United States Senate, Senator Ellender served 12 years in the Louisiana State Legislature, so that he will have, at the start of the coming year, a record of 42 consecutive years in state and federal governmental legislative posts. He also was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1921 which wrote this state's present Constitution. He personally held much responsibility for the sections of that Constitution dealing with agriculture.

> So, here is a man of 42 years experience in law-making at the state and federal levels and with a record in which no flaw can be found as to personal integrity, endless effort, being constantly on the job, and yet seeking at all times to maintain a personal acquaintanceship with as many thousands of his constituents as possible so as to understand fully their problems both individually and collectively.

Despite these many years in public office, Senator Ellender is alert and active mentally and physically to an extent that would be a credit to men a couple of decades younger. He is vigorous, spirited, and living proof of the value that long experience and long seniority can bring to men in public office who truly wish to fulfill the duties and obligations and responsibilities of that office.

For many years — except when a Republican administration was in power — Senator Ellender has been chairman of the highly important Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee and he now also is chairman of the powerful Public Works Subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee. These are, perhaps, among the most unglamorous, yet most important committees of the Senate. They are not committees — like the Foreign Affairs Committee — that constantly project themselves in front of television or newspaper cameras, or radio microphones. Senator Ellender could have gone on the Foreign Affairs Committee many years ago. Had he done so he might by this time have been its chairman instead of Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas.

But, the Louisiana Senator preferred committee assignments covering affairs where his natural interests lay—development of land and water throughout the nation—especially in his own state of Louisiana. It was because the Mississippi Valley drained through Louisiana, and this state was so susceptible to benefits in terms of navigation, port facilities, flood control and other valuable assets, that Senator Ellender wanted to have a part in its development and chose posts on the Agriculture and Appropriations Committees. The Mississippi Valley is comparable to Europe's Ruhr Valley — the bone of contention in past wars between France and Germany. It has developed into virtually a nation of its own agriculturally, industrially and culturally and Senator Ellender has had much to do with it.

One could carry on almost indefinitely in reciting and extolling Senator Ellender's efforts in the federal government to benefit his country and his state. But that record speaks for itself. It is known in general to tens of thousands of people who have voted for him in the past and who will join The World in endorsing him now to continue his work on into the future.

FBI And Communists

J. Edgar Hoover's annual report to the attorney general on the past year of Federal Bureau of Investigation work puts the government once more on notice that the Communist party is alive and kicking. Its membership is up 10 per cent or more, Hoover said, from the 10,000 reported a year ago, which was regarded as a probable under - estimation.

Recruiting activity, of course, has been greatly encouraged by Supreme Court rulings. Nearly every decision in cases in which Reds have been involved has been in favor of the communists.

The Department of Justice is greatly hamstrung by the court decisions regarding the right to conceal membership and the right to function as a party, even though its announced purpose is the overthrow of the form of government existing in the United States.

When Robert Kennedy, now a Senator from New York, was attorney general, he was quoted as saying communists did not constitute a threat to the United States because their number was not great. Since Kennedy's foreign policy always seems lenient toward communists and since he has said he would like to lead a world youth revolt, we wonder just how many communists there would have to be before he would consider them a threat.

If every government agency in this country were as diligent as the FBI, under the directorship of J. Edgar Hoover, it would be a safe bet that the number of communists in this country would show a decline each year instead of an increase.

The Mourning Dove

Grand Junction, Colo.

To the Editor:

Please give me space in The News - Star to plead in defense of the mourning dove to state my views why the dove must have the full protection of the law, and at all levels of government in Canada, as well as in the United States if it is to survive the hunters' guns as a living species of life.

The North American mourning dove is one of the most beautiful of all birds, yet, it is the most harassed, hunted, and persecuted bird of this century.

Each year over 70 per cent of all mourning doves hatched in Canada are eliminated. Some through the forces of nature, but mostly by so - called American sportsmen. The total legal kill for 1964 was estimated at 20,000-000. The cripple loss averaged 26 per cent of the bag. (Not very humane, is it?)

There were many more millions killed off wires with slingshots, with BB guns, and by little men with small rifles as target shots, and never picked up. By men "who know not of nature's valleys, or the beauty of one wild rose."

Indeed it is a sad state of affairs when a man can only measure beauty down the barrel of a shotgun, or life through the sights of a high-powered rifle.

How long can "the flowers appear on the earth: the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle (mourning dove) is heard in our land"? How long can our children know by sight "the wings of a dove covered with silver, its pinions of green gold""

With 70 per cent of all mourning doves killed off each year, the dove will soon join the long list of vanished life, and again man shall find himself much poorer in living beauty. But the lust to kill, the greed, the shedding of blood, the lack of pity and mercy, and the perversion in the thoughts of men must be satisfied. Thank you.

On Social Security

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation to your newspaper for your cooperation with this office in informing the citizens of Northeast Louisiana about their rights and responsibilities under the Social Security Act.

As you know, about 9 out of 10 of those employed are covered under Social Security. These people are vitally interested in Social Security as attested to by the large number of questions on this subject your newspaper receives and publishes in your currently popular feature "Mr. Editor, Tell Me Please." Social Security also has a vital effect on the economic life of our community as indicated by the 32,000 people in Northeast Louisiana now receiving over 21 million dollars yearly. Practically all of this money is spent locally, mostly for the necessities of life.

In view of these facts and other considerations which could be mentioned, I was somewhat concerned about the inaccurate and misleading information appearing on your editorial page of May 26, 1966, under the by-line of Ralph de Toledano.

As a career government employee with twenty-three years service in the Social Security Administration, I have witnessed and participated in many of the changes that have taken place in the Social Security Program. Throughout the entire Administration there has always been an overriding concern for the people we serve. Our training programs, as well as our continuous actions, emphasize that all of our claimants are to be treated in a kind and courteous manner, with every assistance given to see that they receive every benefit they are entitled to.

Whether Mr. Toledano is publishing this misinformation through design or ignorance of the program, only he can tell us. But it is almost inconceivable that so much misinformation could be concentrated in one syndicated column. Mr. Toledano seems to want to make Social Security a political issue. Every informed individual knows that after the constitutionality of the Act was upheld, the amendments have received almost unanimous bipartisan support. Admittedly, some of the benefits are low and recommendations have been made to raise them. But Mr. Toledano amazes us with the statement that they are entitled to "almost nothing after paying in many years."

Take a man over 65 whose average earnings during his base years is $350.00 per month and with a wife 65 or over. They're entitled to $186.30 a month, or $2,235 a year, in retirement benefits. This amounts to more than 53 per cent of his average monthly pay. And remember, there are no deductions as Social Security income is tax free.

The family benefit varies from $66.00 per month to $309.00 per month at present and can be increased through future earnings to $368.00 per month. The formula used to determine a person's benefit is set by statute and is not subject to the whims of the Social Security Administration or its employees.

Mr. Toledano's statement about ill persons having to stand around in Social Security offices is not true. First, if they were in our office we would offer them a chair (or a cot in emergencies). If they notify us of their incapacity, we send a representative to their home to render the necessary assistance to prosecute their claims. It is true that in some of our outlying cities where we have contact stations, some people may have to wait: but if we are told a person is ill, he will be taken care of.

Mr. Toledano further complains that we of the Social Security Administration summarily deny applicants according to our fancy. The relatively few who are denied after failing, through our assistance, to establish their right according to the laws enacted by Congress, are informed of their rights to appeal. They may request reconsideration of their case by the Administration itself. Failing to have their claim approved by this method, they may take their case before a hearings examiner, then to the appeals council, and finally to a civil court. In this entire process, except for the suit in civil court, the Social Security Administration helps them present their case at no cost to the individual. Another letter Mr. Toledano quotes indicates that the Social Security Administration refused to pay for the individual's drugs as prescribed by a doctor. I am sure this is not surprising to anyone, with the possible exception of Mr. Toledano, since we have no program to pay for drugs until Medicare goes into effect July 1st. After that time for those who are eligible, drugs which are ordinarily supplied for the care of patients in a hospital or drugs a doctor administers to his patient are covered.

Mr. Toledano says the limit a person can earn and receive all Social Security benefits is $1200.00. The fact is, a person may earn $1500.00 and suffer no deduction of his benefits. He may earn as much as $2700.00 while losing only $600.00 in benefits for the year. If the wife is over 65 and receiving payments, the couple would have $4,335.60 net.

Mr. Toledano suggests that the Social Security Program be operated as fairly and efficiently as private insurance. The Social Security Administration operates its program including all salaries, equipment, etc., for about 3 per cent of receipts. This compares to about 15 per cent of income which private insurance uses to administer their programs. This is certainly not to criticize private insurance which the Social Security Administration supports and recommends highly, but is to point out how poorly informed Mr. Toledano appears to be. I am sure, Mr. Editor, of your interest in your subscribers and their being fairly informed of their rights under Social Security since 9 out of 10 of them are covered by Social Security. I am equally sure that you are contracturally obligated to print each of Mr. Toledano's articles. With this in mind, I have no doubt you will print this letter in answer to Mr. Toledano whose article may have made some of our people, both young and old, feel unnecessarily insecure or hesitant in contacting us about their rights to payments.

This is not to claim perfection, as we too are mortal beings, but to point out to those who pay our salaries, the public, that we will be more than happy to correct any error that is called to our attention.

In a program as large and complex as ours, we stand ready to do what we can to ease the burden of those whose finances are often jeopardized by death, retirement, disability or illness.

Two Party System

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Almost daily examples arise which make it more and more clear that a strong two-party system is vitally needed in our state for the sake of honest, efficient government. Not only do two strong competing parties give the people a clearer choice at the polls, but they help make our elected officials — particularly our state legislators — feel a greater responsibility to the electorate.

For example, a recent press report revealed that two legislators got "off the hook" regarding some $17,000 in unauthorized per diem payments they received from the state. Evidently, a group of their colleagues — all members of the same political "clan" or "power structure" — got together to sponsor a resolution absolving the legislators of any guilt in connection with the unauthorized payments. Rep. Benny Christian of Richland Parish said the action was taken to avoid a public hearing and the possibility of "adverse newspaper publicity."

When are the people of Louisiana going to wake up to the folly of permitting practically "one-party government" to clog the wheels of the democratic process? How long are they going to let members of the same "political lodge" dominate our government and cover up inefficiencies, possible wrongdoing, and squandering of public funds?

Another example, to me, of how the one - party power structure is ignoring the feelings or welfare of the people was the recent defeat of a bill to end milk price fixing in Louisiana. You can travel to many other areas of the country, such as the Midwest and buy a half-gallon of milk for as low as 36 cents—33 per cent less than in this state. In other words, in Louisiana, where labor and other costs are supposedly less than in the North, you are forced to pay a fifty per cent premium on this basic food!

Proponents of milk price fixing say this is needed to maintain "stability" in the dairy industry, where heavy investments in equipment are required. Is the investment any less in Indiana or other states, where the law of supply and demand determines the price of milk? As long as we're protecting industries, why doesn't the state legislature vote guaranteed prices for paper, or logs, or sugar cane, or automobiles, or bubble gum? I believe in the free enterprise system, in which a businessman is entitled to a fair return on his investment. But I feel we are going too far when we so over-protect a particular industry that it can charge inflated prices for its product!

Let the two - party system grow and become dynamic in our fair state, so that government at all levels might become more progressive, honest and efficient, and more responsive to the needs and wishes of the electorate!

HENRY TAYLOR

Freeloader Drawing $146 Week Tax-Free

CONGRESSMAN Thomas M. Pelly (R., Wash.) has a letter from an irate constituent who claims that a neighbor draws $698 a month from different overlapping Federal (i.e. taxpayers') poverty programs.

This freeloader gets $146 a week, tax - free, more for doing nothing than the irate writer and his wife get on their $108 family weekly income, after taxes, by working a combined 62 hours a week.

One reason the dollar won't do as much for people as it once did is because people won't do as much for a dollar. And can you think of any better reason than this?

The working man is the patsy. Unemployment goes down, but relief rolls go up. Why?

The Social Security tax rate, shared equally by employees and employers, has increased more than 260 per cent since 1949. If President Johnson's additional programs become law, with all their added costs to the taxpayer, the increase could be as great as 435 per cent by 1973.

There is no increase, however, for the increasing number of freeloaders who stay on the public payroll merely because it's politically profitable for the politicians to keep them there — sometimes into the second and third generation.

The official report on the first fiscal year's operation of Sargeant Shiver's domestic Peace Corps shows it spent $3.1 million to train 202 volunteers. This is $15,342 per trainee.

This is about twice the average cost of putting a family's son or daughter through college for a full four years. And while many a conscientious family sacrifices so much for that purpose, they must pay $15,342 in taxes first to "train" a stranger.

Meanwhile, Shriver's poverty headquarters admits that in Washington, D. C., 230 out of 703 unemployed heads of families supposed to be in training failed to show up on three out of five days since the program started. They collected $47 a week just the same.

Who pays? The worker pays.

Does "underprivileged" mean the privilege not to work?

In Poland Springs, Maine, Shriver's Job Corps is spending $6 million (our money) at a 5-000 - acre resort hotel on a training project for underprivileged girls. About 100 are now enrolled. Shriver says the goal is 1,-080.

This will require a 360-member staff — one for every three girls; a $2.5 million pay roll a year; $2,500 per girl per year, including water - and snow-skiing training.

It takes a mighty conscientious girl to look for a job when she can get paid to spend her time like that, and maybe even marry the skiing instructor besides. Yet if we did not intend to create in this country a land of free, self - reliant citizens, we have wasted a great deal of effort and suffered many wars for nothing.

When the Mississippi demonstrators camped across the street from the White House in April, they wanted $1.4 million (taxpayers' money) to build 256 houses.

We're already giving "literacy training" to 8,800 people, job training to more than 30,000, pre-school education to 9,135 children in that one state.

Thru April 8 Shriver has distributed $432 million of our money in his "community action" handouts and is, in fact, now feeding 500,000 people in Mississippi alone — a quarter of the state's entire population — with so-called surplus food bought by our taxpayers year after year.

Meanwhile, food prices now average 6.5 per cent higher than a year ago. The working family not only has to pay more for food but pay more to give it away.

This is compounded by the cost to us of the food that is not even grown. President Johnson himself revealed (April 27) that Washington sends a subsidy check for as much as $187,000 to an individual farmer. You see, this man is not supposed to work and produce more either.

Whatever is not common is called politics. And whatever is politics rules the roost. Our politicians are buttressed by teams of bright young contrivers drilled to guide them in giving the public what it wants without letting the people know they're paying for it.

In summary, my own reaction is probably more politely expressed if put in garbled Latin: "Nil bastordi carborundum" — "Don't let the —— get you down."

Intellectuals Urging Unthinkable Thoughts

ONE OF THE intellectual theses of the all-out liberal is the assertion that "now is the time to think unthinkable thoughts."

The premise is that the world is changing so fast it is time to alter all previous, time-proven assumptions. Every tradition, standard and belief regarded as old-fashioned is attacked — no matter how fundamental it might be to an ordered society.

It is change for the sake of change. The liberal has succeeded in making "change" synonymous with "good," and the change must be effected regardless of laws, courts, churches or other obstacles.

Considering the phrase "think the unthinkable" in its applications to today's occurrences, the concerned American can discern a pattern which, if followed to its final conclusion, can lead to the destruction of individual freedom as we know it.

THE UNTHINKABLE in foreign affairs is to downgrade the United States while finding virtue and honor in her enemies; it is to urge surrender in Viet Nam and the unilateral destruction of our nuclear weapons and other instruments of national power; it is to appease and accommodate militant communism; it is to abandon Europe and withdraw from the Atlantic Alliance.

The unthinkable in religion once was the thought of a Supreme Court denying school children the privilege of praying in their classrooms. But even that is passe today. Today the unthinkable is "God is dead" and the Ten Commandments no longer have validity. The eventual goal is destruction of the moral concept of right and wrong.

In fiscal affairs, the unthinkable is best expressed through the "new economics." The total disregard for government fiscal responsibility began with the propaganda about "economic myths" and President Kennedy's reference to something called a "Puritan ethic."

Almost overnight, government deficits became a measure of economic health, and balanced budgets become economically dangerous, something to be avoided. We were told the government had a formula for sustained prosperity without economic dislocation. The basic ingredient was government spending as measured by its percentage to the gross national product.

TODAY, THE results are coming in with every new cost-of-living index. Inflation is here and the complete fallacy of the new economics is about to be proven in a way that will burden every tax-paying American.

The unthinkable is obeying only the laws you consider just, almost the sanctification of civil disobedience in a cause generally believed to be righteous. It is finding generalized excuses for mass rioting, violence and vandalism. It is the assumption that law enforcement agencies are brutal and unjust.

The unthinkable is revolt against school authorities, demonstrations for so-called academic freedom or the right to publicly display filthy four-letter words in the name of "free speech."

This presentation is not an argument against change. Our world is always changing, but we have an obligation to make sure it changes for the better. And the only way to do that is to study the changes down through history which brought progress or disaster.

Too few Americans realize that there are fundamentals upon which an ordered society must necessarily rest if that society is to offer justice and freedom. These fundamentals can be tampered with only by risking great and lasting damage to humanity.

World Endorses Ellender

The World endorses Senator Allen J. Ellender of Houma for Democratic renomination and re-election to a sixth term in the United States Senate. Probably no member of the Senate enjoys stronger or more widespread confidence among his own electorate than does the present Louisiana Senior Senator. In his five previous elections no parish ever has voted against him twice. In two of these elections he carried 62 of the 64 parishes. In another, he carried 63 of the 64.

No tribute that we could pay to Senator Ellender, and no endorsement that we could give him, could equal the tremendous tributes and endorsements given him over and over by a tremendously overwhelming proportion of the electorate of this state.

In endorsing Senator Ellender in 1954 (we would have endorsed him in 1960 if there had been any opposition) The World made this statement:

> "The World has disagreed with Senator Ellender in the past on individual issues. We may do so in the future. But there is nothing in his record to justify replacement of his capabilities, experience and Senate seniority. . . ."

That statement is true now as it was then. But such disagreement as we have had with Senator Ellender has been solely on individual issues, and intelligent people cannot discuss diversified and controversial issues of the type constantly coming up these days without finding some disagreement among themselves.

As for seniority, Senator Ellender now has 12 years more of Senate seniority — and experience — than he had when we wrote our 1954 endorsement.

At the end of his present term he will have served in the Senate for 30 years. The closest to that length of tenure for any Louisiana Senator is the 18 years which Senator Ransdell served many, many years ago. Prior to going to the United States Senate, Senator Ellender served 12 years in the Louisiana State Legislature, so that he will have, at the start of the coming year, a record of 42 consecutive years in state and federal governmental legislative posts. He also was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1921 which wrote this state's present Constitution. He personally held much responsibility for the sections of that Constitution dealing with agriculture.

> So, here is a man of 42 years experience in law-making at the state and federal levels and with a record in which no flaw can be found as to personal integrity, endless effort, being constantly on the job, and yet seeking at all times to maintain a personal acquaintanceship with as many thousands of his constituents as possible so as to understand fully their problems both individually and collectively.

Despite these many years in public office, Senator Ellender is alert and active mentally and physically to an extent that would be a credit to men a couple of decades younger. He is vigorous, spirited, and living proof of the value that long experience and long seniority can bring to men in public office who truly wish to fulfill the duties and obligations and responsibilities of that office.

For many years — except when a Republican administration was in power — Senator Ellender has been chairman of the highly important Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee and he now also is chairman of the powerful Public Works Subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee. These are, perhaps, among the most unglamorous, yet most important committees of the Senate. They are not committees — like the Foreign Affairs Committee — that constantly project themselves in front of television or newspaper cameras, or radio microphones. Senator Ellender could have gone on the Foreign Affairs Committee many years ago. Had he done so he might by this time have been its chairman instead of Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas.

But, the Louisiana Senator preferred committee assignments covering affairs where his natural interests lay—development of land and water throughout the nation—especially in his own state of Louisiana. It was because the Mississippi Valley drained through Louisiana, and this state was so susceptible to benefits in terms of navigation, port facilities, flood control and other valuable assets, that Senator Ellender wanted to have a part in its development and chose posts on the Agriculture and Appropriations Committees. The Mississippi Valley is comparable to Europe's Ruhr Valley — the bone of contention in past wars between France and Germany. It has developed into virtually a nation of its own agriculturally, industrially and culturally and Senator Ellender has had much to do with it.

One could carry on almost indefinitely in reciting and extolling Senator Ellender's efforts in the federal government to benefit his country and his state. But that record speaks for itself. It is known in general to tens of thousands of people who have voted for him in the past and who will join The World in endorsing him now to continue his work on into the future.

I am equally sure that you are contractually obligated to print each of Mr. Toledano's articles. With this in mind, I have no doubt you will print this letter in answer to Mr. Toledano whose article may have made some of our people, both young and old, feel unnecessarily insecure or hesitant in contacting us about their rights to payments.

This is not to claim perfection, as we too are mortal beings, but to point out to those who pay our salaries, the public, that we will be more than happy to correct any error that is called to our attention.

In a program as large and complex as ours, we stand ready to do what we can to ease the burden of those whose finances are often jeopardized by death, retirement, disability or illness.

Two Party System

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Almost daily examples arise which make it more and more clear that a strong two-party system is vitally needed in our state for the sake of honest, efficient government. Not only do two strong competing parties give the people a clearer choice at the polls, but they help make our elected officials — particularly our state legislators — feel a greater responsibility to the electorate.

For example, a recent press report revealed that two legislators got "off the hook" regarding some $17,000 in unauthorized per diem payments they received from the state. Evidently, a group of their colleagues — all members of the same political "clan" or "power structure" — got together to sponsor a resolution absolving the legislators of any guilt in connection with the unauthorized payments. Rep. Benny Christian of Richland Parish said the action was taken to avoid a public hearing and the possibility of "adverse newspaper publicity."

When are the people of Louisiana going to wake up to the folly of permitting practically "one-party government" to clog the wheels of the democratic process? How long are they going to let members of the same "political lodge" dominate our government and cover up inefficiencies, possible wrongdoing, and squandering of public funds?

Another example, to me, of how the one - party power structure is ignoring the feelings or welfare of the people was the recent defeat of a bill to end milk price fixing in Louisiana. You can travel to many other areas of the country, such as the Midwest and buy a half-gallon of milk for as low as 36 cents—33 per cent less than in this state. In other words, in Louisiana, where labor and other costs are supposedly less than in the North, you are forced to pay a fifty per cent premium on this basic food!

Proponents of milk price fixing say this is needed to maintain "stability" in the dairy industry, where heavy investments in equipment are required. Is the investment any less in Indiana or other states, where the law of supply and demand determines the price of milk? As long as we're protecting industries, why doesn't the state legislature vote guaranteed prices for paper, or logs, or sugar cane, or automobiles, or bubble gum? I believe in the free enterprise system, in which a businessman is entitled to a fair return on his investment. But I feel we are going too far when we so over-protect a particular industry that it can charge inflated prices for its product!

Let the two - party system grow and become dynamic in our fair state, so that government at all levels might become more progressive, honest and efficient, and more responsive to the needs and wishes of the electorate!

Freeloader Drawing $146 Week Tax-Free

CONGRESSMAN Thomas M. Pelly (R., Wash.) has a letter from an irate constituent who claims that a neighbor draws $698 a month from different overlapping Federal (i.e. taxpayers') poverty programs.

This freeloader gets $146 a week, tax - free, more for doing nothing than the irate writer and his wife get on their $108 family weekly income, after taxes, by working a combined 62 hours a week.

One reason the dollar won't do as much for people as it once did is because people won't do as much for a dollar. And can you think of any better reason than this?

The working man is the patsy. Unemployment goes down, but relief rolls go up. Why?

The Social Security tax rate, shared equally by employees and employers, has increased more than 260 per cent since 1949. If President Johnson's additional programs become law, with all their added costs to the taxpayer, the increase could be as great as 435 per cent by 1973.

There is no increase, however, for the increasing number of freeloaders who stay on the public payroll merely because it's politically profitable for the politicians to keep them there — sometimes into the second and third generation.

The official report on the first fiscal year's operation of Sargeant Shiver's domestic Peace Corps shows it spent $3.1 million to train 202 volunteers. This is $15,342 per trainee.

This is about twice the average cost of putting a family's son or daughter through college for a full four years. And while many a conscientious family sacrifices so much for that purpose, they must pay $15,342 in taxes first to "train" a stranger.

Meanwhile, Shriver's poverty headquarters admits that in Washington, D. C., 230 out of 703 unemployed heads of families supposed to be in training failed to show up on three out of five days since the program started. They collected $47 a week just the same.

Who pays? The worker pays.

Does "underprivileged" mean the privilege not to work?

In Poland Springs, Maine, Shriver's Job Corps is spending $6 million (our money) at a 5,000 - acre resort hotel on a training project for underprivileged girls. About 100 are now enrolled. Shriver says the goal is 1,080.

This will require a 360-member staff — one for every three girls; a $2.5 million pay roll a year; $2,500 per girl per year, including water - and snow-skiing training.

It takes a mighty conscientious girl to look for a job when she can get paid to spend her time like that, and maybe even marry the skiing instructor besides. Yet if we did not intend to create in this country a land of free, self - reliant citizens, we have wasted a great deal of effort and suffered many wars for nothing.

When the Mississippi demonstrators camped across the street from the White House in April, they wanted $1.4 million (taxpayers' money) to build 256 houses.

We're already giving "literacy training" to 8,800 people, job training to more than 30,000, pre-school education to 9,135 children in that one state.

Thru April 8 Shriver has distributed $432 million of our money in his "community action" handouts and is, in fact, now feeding 500,000 people in Mississippi alone — a quarter of the state's entire population — with so-called surplus food bought by our taxpayers year after year.

Meanwhile, food prices now average 6.5 per cent higher than a year ago. The working family not only has to pay more for food but pay more to give it away.

This is compounded by the cost to us of the food that is not even grown. President Johnson himself revealed (April 27) that Washington sends a subsidy check for as much as $187,000 to an individual farmer. You see, this man is not supposed to work and produce more either.

Whatever is not common is called politics. And whatever is politics rules the roost. Our politicians are buttressed by teams of bright young contrivers drilled to guide them in giving the public what it wants without letting the people know they're paying for it.

In summary, my own reaction is probably more politely expressed if put in garbled Latin: "Nil bastordi carborundum." — "Don't let the —— get you down."

Intellectuals Urging Unthinkable Thoughts

ONE OF THE intellectual theses of the all-out liberal is the assertion that "now is the time to think unthinkable thoughts."

The premise is that the world is changing so fast it is time to alter all previous, time-proven assumptions. Every tradition, standard and belief regarded as old-fashioned is attacked — no matter how fundamental it might be to an ordered society.

It is change for the sake of change. The liberal has succeeded in making "change" synonymous with "good," and the change must be effected regardless of laws, courts, churches or other obstacles.

Considering the phrase "think the unthinkable" in its applications to today's occurrences, the concerned American can discern a pattern which, if followed to its final conclusion, can lead to the destruction of individual freedom as we know it.

THE UNTHINKABLE in foreign affairs is to downgrade the United States while finding virtue and honor in her enemies; it is to urge surrender in Viet Nam and the unilateral destruction of our nuclear weapons and other instruments of national power; it is to appease and accommodate militant communism; it is to abandon Europe and withdraw from the Atlantic Alliance.

The unthinkable in religion once was the thought of a Supreme Court denying school children the privilege of praying in their classrooms. But even that is passe today. Today the unthinkable is "God is dead" and the Ten Commandments no longer have validity. The eventual goal is destruction of the moral concept of right and wrong.

In fiscal affairs, the unthinkable is best expressed through the "new economics." The total disregard for government fiscal responsibility began with the propaganda about "economic myths" and President Kennedy's reference to something called a "Puritan ethic."

Almost overnight, government deficits became a measure of economic health, and balanced budgets become economically dangerous, something to be avoided. We were told the government had a formula for sustained prosperity without economic dislocation. The basic ingredient was government spending as measured by its percentage to the gross national product.

TODAY, THE results are coming in with every new cost-of-living index. Inflation is here and the complete fallacy of the new economics is about to be proven in a way that will burden every tax-paying American.

The unthinkable is obeying only the laws you consider just, almost the sanctification of civil disobedience in a cause generally believed to be righteous. It is finding generalized excuses for mass rioting, violence and vandalism. It is the assumption that law enforcement agencies are brutal and unjust.

The unthinkable is revolt against school authorities, demonstrations for so-called academic freedom or the right to publicly display filthy four-letter words in the name of "free speech."

This presentation is not an argument against change. Our world is always changing, but we have an obligation to make sure it changes for the better. And the only way to do that is to study the changes down through history which brought progress or disaster.

Too few Americans realize that there are fundamentals upon which an ordered society must necessarily rest if that society is to offer justice and freedom. These fundamentals can be tampered with only by risking great and lasting damage to humanity.

Sunday Poem

Let me remember on this day
That all I do or think or say
Will in some wondrous, magic way
Bring help or harm to others.
May my deeds be those of friendly cheer
Which bring a smile or dry a tear,
Give comfort and dispel a fear
Within the hearts of others.
In every thought may I pursue
A path both cleanly straight and true,
And find some star within the blue,
To which I may lead others.

A Glimpse?

Do you suppose Shakespeare, with his penetrating vision, had a glimpse of a world menaced by the possibility of atomic war? This is the inscription on the memorial to him in Westminster Abbey, those well-known lines from The Tempest:

The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous places,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve;
And, like this insubstantial pageant fade,
Leave not a rock behind.

Interesting Facts

DEFENSE SECRETARY Robert (Computer) McNamara claims there is "no clear need" for a newer, faster bomber, notes the Republican Congressional Committee newsletter. "He's going to wait until the need becomes clear — at which time we'll have 15 minutes to develop one." For our part, we're sorry he and Secretary of State Dean Rusk can't be ordered to participate in several engagements with our troops in Viet Nam. Both might change their concept about the situation there . . . .

DID YOU KNOW that Charles Green, an imaginary but typical American — married, the father of two, earning $10,000 a year — lost an estimated $268 because of inflation in the 12 months ending March 1966, according to the Tax Foundation, Inc. His brother, Joe, newly married and earning $7,500, lost an estimated $201 in the same period. Of course, there is always some good. If there was no inflation, how could President Johnson account for all the billions he's throwing into the "Great Society." . . . .

JUST IN CASE — Rep. Richard Roudebush of Indiana has discovered that the Administration is spending $12,700 to finance a University of Texas study of "Bird Life in Texas" and $29,000 for an Oklahoma State University project on the social behavior of fish. He suggests a more worthwhile study — the care and rehabilitation of beleaguered taxpayers . . .

Rickover May Go

The people in the know seem to think that Admiral Hyman Rickover will be torpedoed out of the Navy. Anyway many are somewhat pop-eyed at the blunt criticism Rickover made of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara recently.

Appearing not too long ago before the House Armed Services Committee, the father of the nuclear submarine sharply attacked the "cost-effectiveness people" — i.e., McNamara and his "Whiz-Kids" — for hiding behind a "facade of "scientific analysis." In actual fact, snapped the admiral, they are just as reluctant to change preconceived opinions as they say the military is.

"It is difficult for intellectuals," said Rickover, "when placed in positions of authority, to refrain from exercising power. Often theoretical people are being called upon to act as specialists, to make recommendations beyond their limited expertise. They tend to rely on their book knowledge in fields where technical competence, judgment, experience, wisdom and intuition are also necessary."

Even physicists, said Rickover, "have been reluctant to accept new ideas. On a cost-effectiveness basis the colonists should not have revolted against King George III, nor should John Paul Jones have engaged the Serapis with an inferior ship, the Bon Homme Richard."

Claiming that the cost - effectiveness people had been proved dead-wrong by coming out against a nuclear Navy, Rickover remarked: "The primacy of politics should not again be subordinated to the doctrinaire and unproven claims of specialists — particularly when these specialists are in a position of overall authority and do not encourage or permit contrary views to be voiced or to be asserted."

Some people are now wondering if McNamara will move to torpedo Rickover out of the Navy.

The Flag - Then And Now

One hundred and eighty-nine years ago — on June 14, 1777 — the Continental Congress adopted a resolution which was brief, clear and to the point. It read:

"Resolved, that the Flag of the United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The 13 stripes of the flag were not new. The Continental Army had been fighting for a year and a half under the "Boston flag" raised by Gen. Washington at Charlestown, Mass., in January, 1776 — a banner with 13 stripes of alternating red and white, but with the familiar crosses of St. Andrew and St. George, as in the British Union Jack, in the upper left-hand corner where the stars now are.

The reason for the change obviously was a feeling that soldiers of the new American nation ought not to be fighting under the symbol of the kingdom to which they had renounced allegiance.

The new flag of the United States was raised in battle for the first time at Ft. Stanwix (or Ft. Schuyler), near the present city of Rome, N.Y., on Aug. 2, 1777. This, the first Stars and Stripes of whose fashioning there is contemporary historical record (with all due respect to the pleasant story of Betsy Ross), was strictly a home-made affair.

According to the diary of Col. Marinus Willett, one of the American officers at Stanwix, "the white stripes were cut out of an ammunition shirt; the blue out of the camlet cloak taken from the enemy at Peekskill, while the red stripes were made of different pieces of stuff procured from one and another of the garrison."

The American officer fortunate enough to have picked up a camlet cloak from the enemy at Peeksill was Capt. Abraham Swartout. As for the "different pieces of stuff procured from one and another of the garrison" for red stripes: Col. Willett was a gallant and reticent officer and gentleman; but legend says that the wife of one of the soldiers sacrificed her red flannel petticoat -- and possibly other apparel — to complete that first flag.

The first American flag meant a great deal to the soldiers who raised it. Very soon after the breeze first caught its folds, these soldiers had opportunity to die for that flag. The British attacked on Aug. 3, the day after the flag was raised. The little American garrison stood off assault after assault for 19 days. On Aug. 22, reinforcements arrived and drove the British away.

The American troops who marched to the relief of Ft. Stanwix were led by a brilliant general; but the new flag apparently did not impress him as deeply as it ought to have done. His name was Arnold.

The flag has changed in 189 years. The "new constellation" of 1777 has grown from 13 to 50. The flag has gone to far places -- places where the makers of the first flag never dreamed it would go. Does the flag today mean to Americans everywhere all that it meant symbolically to the brave little garrison at Ft. Stanwix in 1777?

We hope the answer is yes.

Hurricane And Tornadoes Set Pace In News

JAMES H. Meredith strode into Mississippi down U.S. Highway 51 at 9:15 Monday morning. He was on the second day of a "march against fear," to encourage Mississippi Negroes to vote. In late afternoon, near the little town of Hernando, eight miles inside Mississippi, a white man crouched in underbrush at the side of U.S. 51, raised a shotgun and called out "James Meredith, James Meredith. I want Meredith." Then he fired twice.

Meredith, the Negro who had desegregated the University of Mississippi in 1962, fell writhing in pain and blood. His back, from head to legs, had been raked with 60 to 70 pellets of birdshot. Thus ended the first stage of the "march against fear." The shot from ambush echoed around the world.

Police closed in and arrested Aubrey James Norvell, 40, an unemployed white man from Memphis, Tenn., described by neighbors as "a very nice man." Meredith was taken to a hospital in Memphis, where the walk had started.

From his ranch in Texas, President Johnson deplored "this awful act of violence," and from around the nation civil rights leaders descended on Mississippi to continue the "march against fear."

The incident spurred efforts for passage of the administration's pending civil rights bill.

THE INDIAN legend said Topeka was safe from tornadoes because they could not cross Burnett's Mound to the south. But Wednesday night, just at supper hour, a tornado roared over Burnett's Mound and down into the city of Topeka, cutting a path of destruction four blocks wide and 15 miles long.

In a few terrifying minutes, the storm destroyed 300 homes, damaged 500 more, smashed every major building at Washburn University, and destroyed or severly damaged numberless buildings, including a new luxury apartment complex. At least 17 people were killed, more than 300 injured, and 4,000 made homeless. The mayor set damage at a minimum of $100 million.

Hurricane Alma, the first of the season, came in across Honduras and Cuba, hit Key West, Fla., roared up the west coast past St. Petersburg and Tallahassee and blew out over the Atlantic across Georgia. In its wake were 47 dead in three nations, most of them in Honduras, and heavy destruction of buildings and crops in Cuba and Florida.

RONALD REAGAN, the movie goodguy who never got the girl, at last emerged a winner. In the California primaries Tuesday he scored a smashing win in capturing the Republican nomination for governor over George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco.

So great was Reagan's margin — two out of every three Republican votes — that pundits quickly installed him as a favorite to beat Gov. Edmund G. Brown in November. Democrat Brown, seeking a third term, won renomination but by a narrower margin than expected.

In Viet Nam, the heaviest ground fighting of the war was shaping up 60 miles northwest of Pleiku. The U.S. 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division began its Tuesday as Operation Hawthorne, flushed and badly mauled a North Vietnamese battalion. Then the Communists stiffened and both sides threw in more men.

By week's end perhaps 5,000 troops were engaged, the North Vietnamese reckoned at one — possibly two regiments. By Thursday, North Vietnamese casualties were put at 266 known dead. But a Saigon spokesman admitted this count was far from complete: "Those people up there are more interested in killing North Vietnamese than in counting bodies."

"Hallelujah. It's a strange world out here," exclaimed Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan. He had just stepped out of Gemini 9 for man's longest walk in space -- 2 hours and 5 minutes. Then, after 44 orbits of the earth since Friday, Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, USAF, brought Gemini 9 down in the Atlantic at 10 a.m. Monday, less than three miles from the carrier Wasp. It was very nearly "right down the smokestack," as Stafford had promised — the closest landing ever made and relayed live to the world by television cameras on the carrier, via the Early Bird satellite.

At 25,000 feet over the Mojave Desert in California, the giant XB70A research bomber was completing an experimental flight. Suddenly it collided with a tiny chase plane, an F104 piloted by Joseph A. Walker, chief research pilot for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Both planes crashed, killing Walker, one of the nation's top test pilots, and Major Carl Cross, copilot of the XB70A. Al White, the bomber pilot, ejected in a seat pack on the way down and lived, with a broken arm and back injuries.

It has been a long trail for Samuel H. Sheppard of Bay Village, Ohio, and the end is not yet. On July 4, 1954, his wife Marilyn, was found beaten to death in their home. Dr. Sheppard — he was then an osteopath — was convicted of second degree murder and served nine years in prison.

He appealed his conviction on the grounds that he had not received a fair trial, and was released from prison July 16, 1964, to await the result of his appeal. Monday it came. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled, 8 to 1, that his trial had been unfair because "bedlam reigned at the courthouse during the trial and newsmen took over."

The court ordered that Sheppard be released from custody or retried "within a reasonable time." On Friday, the Cleveland prosecutor, John T. Corrigan, announced that Sheppard would be retried.

Said Sheppard, now 42, "I know I can prove my innocence." All along he had contended that a bushy haired intruder murdered Marilyn and escaped. By his side this time will be his second wife, Ariane Tebbenjohanns, 35, a blonde German divorcee he married in 1964.

Quote of the week:

"We seek and will continue to seek to build bridges to keep open the doors of communication to the Communist states of Asia and, in particular, Communist China." — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

THE FORCE of the devasting winds of a massive tornado that struck Topeka, Kans., the past week is illustrated here by an airplane propeller which was upended and driven into the ground. An estimated 15 persons were killed.

Klan On Trial

The invisible empire of the Ku Klux Klan has never seemed more visible or less imperial. Short of members, publicly ridiculed, the Klan is in a most parlous state. The trial of Robert M. Shelton Jr., head of the biggest Klan in the country, is the crowning indignity. It starts Monday in U. S. District Court in Washington.

What makes Shelton's indictment on contempt-of-Congress charges particularly galling is the fact that it arose from an investigation of the Klan by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. The Klan has always considered itself the repository and guardian of national virtue. Un-Americanism is to the Klansman as capitalism is to Mao Tse-tung.

Shelton's frustration and rage are a matter of record. After his indictment by a federal grand jury in Washington last March 3, he said that "It's popular in this country to be a pinko or a political prostitute, but not to stand up and be a patriotic American." He vowed to appeal the case, if need be, all the way to the Supreme Court, hardly one of the Klan's favorite institutions.

Once upon a time, the Klan enjoyed a certain respectability. It began as a vigilance committee after the Civil War, when law enforcement in the prostrate southern states left much to be desired. The original Klan disbanded in 1877, having achieved its twin goals of eliminating Negro political power and returning control of the South to ante-bellum leaders.

A NEW KNIGHTS of the Ku Klux Klan, claiming to be a reincarnation of the old, obtained a charter from the State of Georgia in 1916. Supposedly a fraternal and patriotic order, the revived K.K.K. actually was a hate group dedicated to the proposition that all men are created unequal.

The Klan reached its peak strength in 1924, when it had more than four million members in all sections of the country. At least 11 governors and 13 U.S. Senators were elected with Klan help in the 1920's. By the end of the decade, however only about 50,000 hooded knights were still active. Stories of corruption among Klan leaders hastened the decline.

The contempt citations against Shelton and six other Klan officials (who will be tried later) were based on failure to produce records subpoenaed by the Un-American Activities panel. The House vote of 344-28 in favor of Shelton's citation gives some indication of the Klan's popularity on Capitol Hill.

Legislation to curb Klan violence will soon be introduced by Rep. Edwin E. Willis (D-La.), chairman of HUAC. One of the legal weapons Willis has in mind is a federal court injunction prohibiting groups like the Klan from interfering with a person's constitutional rights.

Forty-five years ago, after a House Rules Committee investigation, the reigning Imperial Wizard could boast that "Congress made us" through publicity. This could be the year that Congress breaks the Klan.

Meeting In Korea

At a resort hotel named for an American hero of the Korean war, foreign ministers of non-Communist Asian and Pacific nations meet in Korea Tuesday to forge closer ties.

THEY WILL concentrate on exploring ways to increase economic and cultural cooperation.

The meeting already has brought fire from Moscow and Peking.

The ministers will be surrounded by a reminder of Communism's aggression against South Korea. The three-day meeting of 10 nations is being held at the Walker Hill resort hotel, named for Gen. Walton Walker, who commanded the U. S. 8th Army and who died in a jeep accident in Korea.

Seoul first proposed the conference for April 1965. Reportedly the South Koreans hoped to start the ball rolling for a new military alliance, possibly a "Northeast Asia Treaty Organization."

The proposed participants — South Korea, South Viet Nam, the Philippines, Malaysia, Thailand, Japan, Nationalist China, Australia and New Zealand — never agreed to a date or an agenda.

THE REAL stumbling block was opposition to any meeting that might result in a military alliance.

Korean diplomats continued to push the idea of a foreign ministers' meeting. Eventually they won agreement for the conference, and an 11th nation — Laos — agreed to send an observer. The Laotians said they were worried the meeting might turn out to be political.

It is still possible that a new alliance against Communist infiltration might be discussed informally outside of the conference by the eight ministers of South Korea, Nationalist China, South Viet Nam, Thailand and Australia.

Moscow has called the meeting "an attempt to knock together a new aggressive military and political alliance." North Korea says it is a "scheme of U. S. imperialism" to achieve another pact.

NATIONALIST Chinese newspapers have expressed disappointment at the sidetracking of a military alliance. However, Chinese officials say they have no plans to bring up any particular subject.

What is the meeting likely to accomplish if it dodges political and military questions?

Japanese sources say it will be beneficial in adding to the sense of cooperation among the nations concerned.

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia hopes it will find ways to promote peaceful cooperation.

"I attach great significance to the very fact that the foreign ministers of so many countries in this area will sit together to discuss their common problems," said Korean Foreign Minister Lee Tong Won. I am satisfied with that alone."

New Flirtation

Socialistic India, still hungry despite 19 years of government economic planning is launching a new flirtation with capitalists around the world.

New Delhi has decided India's internal resources and even the massive flow of foreign aid are not enough to feed the nation's 495 millions and rescue its sinking economy.

This has turned government eyes to the private foreign investor, with his dollars, pounds sterling or Japanese yen — plus his technical and managerial skills.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Local and area officials, to their credit, are not wheeler - dealers in the federal sense, but, even operating within the framework of sound business judgment, they have their moments.

Which is to say that, although they seldom get to function in the rareified atmosphere of multi-billions, multi-millions are not unknown to them. Stated still more directly, high finance was all the rage last week.

The Monroe City Council, for example, was selling a $7.5 million utilities bond issue Tuesday. Area school and governmental leaders were in Monroe Friday to consider a Fifth District sales tax that would mean $5 million in the tills. The Monroe School Board, working with the proceeds of a $6 million bond issue, was trying to make do that amount, as it advanced construction obligations against a tide of rising costs.

TYLER

More examples? The Ouachita Parish Police Jury, bobbing in the same tide, prepared to readvertise its $1.7 million courthouse expansion project, setting back a building start by at least a month. Large amounts also were involved in the proposed firemen's pay raise, a controversy over which continued to seethe in the added ferment of a possible inquiry into Monroe payroll records. Further, there was comment in the land relative to insurance rates and the likely effects of a bill which gained legislative approval to await the governor's signature.

More on these and other events and happenstances follows.

BOND ISSUE

The worsening money market — from the bond sellers' point of view — no doubt had its effect on the bids opened Tuesday at the Monroe City Hall, but on the whole officials agreed the effect was minimal and a compliment to the city's rating. The low bid accepted — averaging out to 4.28258 per cent over the life of the issue— in fact was more favorable than on two of the three issues sold in the last 10 years.

The bonds, to be delivered to New York early in August, are callable at any time, but if paid on schedule through 1996 will cost a total of nearly $6 million in interest. Not really extraordinary, with the market at the highest point in 30 years, bond attorneys advised.

Proceeds will be used principally to boost the city's electrical generating and water storage capabilities, in addition to the acquisition of new facilities and properties such as the land the council authorized purchase on Tuesday.

Being bought from the Kellogg interests are approximately 11 downtown acres, across from the utilities compound at 12th and Grammont. The price? $210,000, but called an excellent buy by Mayor W. L. Howard since the property contains a warehouse such as is called for in the issue's construction prospectus at a cost of $225,000.

The bond issue, by the way, will not affect taxes; repayment will be solely from earnings of the utilities commission.

Even so, from bonds to taxes normally is no long jump, and, as indicated, a tax was being considered during the week — of the one cent sales variety, to be applied districtwide, addressed to the further raising of school salaries and the provision certain educational improvements.

Franklin Rep. Lantz Womack, who introduced in Baton Rouge the measure which would permit the tax, spoke to a conclave Friday night of the district's school superintendents, school board presidents and legislators. As these lines were a-borning, the depth of favor given Womack's presentation was not known, but betting people were touting against the bill. Certainly, if Ouachita Parish winds up with a veto, it will be cast, while the other parishes probably like the tax.

Just over half the proceeds would be collected in Ouachita, which in turn would get back around 29 per cent. A division such as outlined above, therefore, was not unreasonable to expect. Lightly regarded, but gaining support, is a one-cent sales tax, applied statewide. The Monroe School Board spoke for it Tuesday, joining its influence in opposition to the district tax that of both Twin City Chambers of Commerce. Ouachita legislators, except for Sen. Jamar Adcock, are understood not to favor the Womack bill. The parish school board says it is not in favor as the measure stands — or stood, before the Friday meeting.

RISING COSTS

Rising costs also concerned the city school board Tuesday. A huddle behind closed doors, however, produced decisions to go ahead with bids over the amounts allocated on two projects, while bids on two other projects, also over the money, were taken under study.

The board accepted a $159,600 bid for additions and renovation at Lee Junior High, and a bid of $86,420 on stadium lights at Neville and Carroll High Schools. Only about $140,000 was allocated for the Lee job, and the lights cost about $9,000 more than was allocated, President W. S. Gannaway said.

Held under advisement were bids on the air conditioning of Jefferson and Carroll Junior High Schools — together running about $45,000 over the money. Bids on Jefferson deemed too high were thrown out approximately a month ago in a first effort at letting the job.

The Ouachita Police Jury, slammed at its last meeting by the same high cost of living, when the low bid on expansion of the courthouse soared almost a quarter-million dollars above the $1.7 million approved by the electorate, readied a re-advertisement on June 20. The project architect by last week had trimmed the project to a point believed within $100,000 of where the next bids, to be opened in July, will settle. In the interim, however, the planned movement of parish operations to temporary quarters to permit the work unobstructed was put back until around August 1.

Other officials were looking down the road to wonder how the market will affect bids on fire station construction in connection with the fixed-millage rural fire protection program. They added this to their worries over the possible firemen's pay raise, now in a Senate committee.

Speaking of the pay raise, it was a curtain-raiser on the week's news as Howard released salary figures listing all but 56 of Monroe's firemen as making $400 a month or more. The $400 is the new minimum sought in the bill, supported by Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George Wood, and the crux of colorful recent exchanges between Gibbs and the mayor.

But there were new turns in the pair's relationship. At the week's council meeting, it was disclosed that a local accountant, in the employ of the lawmaker, had inquired for payroll information of the city and of its utilities commission.

The council promised whatever was desired, but stipulated that an indemnity agreement be signed, freeing the city of liability should lawsuits result from use of the material. Gibbs, meantime, suffering from back trouble which may yet require an operation, had nothing further to say.

Howard Friday withdrew the requirement for an indemnity agreement in a curious development, stating a desire to "cooperate," but adding, in effect, that he felt the request for information politically motivated.

The representative, on his bed at the St. Francis, had the look of a man ready to say something.

POLITICS

Politics was rife during the week, including qualifications as several party committees met, announcements and impending elections.

The West Monroe and Sterlington general elections are on the boards for Tuesday and just ahead are the August 13 primaries for, among other posts, U.S. senator and representative. Rep. Otto Passman of Monroe announced and qualified with a matter of days, while the only early qualifier for the Senate seat of Allen Ellender was a surprise, south Louisiana state Sen. J. DeBlieux.

Five, however, qualified for the Public Service Commission being contested by incumbent John Hunt II of Monroe, and U.S. Rep. Speedy O. Long of the Eighth District announced that he will run again.

In closer-to-home politics, Sen. Adcock took a revived interest in the seating of Monroe residents on the Ouachita School Board and introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to take them off.

A subject that seemingly has been explored in every possible detail over the years — once recently, the question of divided responsibilities between the city and parish school boards appeared ready to be off and running again. The Monroe members on the board, however, who probably feel they belong there, were mostly without comment. Most likely referring to maintenance and operation taxes, the senator stressed that city residents do not pay taxes to the parish system. Residents in some annexed areas pay over $30,000 a year on parish school bond issues.

Still speaking politically, politics is a subject which Charles E. McKenzie Jr. of Monroe said he doesn't feel belongs in the insurance business, and he said a new bill on the governor's desk will combat its presence. McKenzie, president of the Louisiana Association of Insurance Agents, during the week, discussed "misconceptions" about the bill.

Not having the gift of prophecy, however, and understandably reluctant to make predictions he subsequently might dine upon, the official declined to speculate on how rates will rise. But, he emphasized, the bill specifically requires close auditing and permits hearings on suspicious ratings.

LOCAL, AREA

Of other local and area news during the week, there was a generous admixture, a statement backed up by the following sampling:

The nationwide strike of Western Union operations by Commercial Telegraphers' Union members — some 20,000 strong — had its local effect, as did the four-hour work stoppage last week when the existing contract expired. The walkout of about eight local workers idled the message lines, which, however, were humming again Friday after a 4.5 per cent a year pay boost for two years and fringe benefits were granted.

Meanwhile, unemployment in Ouachita Parish was reported as 3.9 per cent of the work force at the end of May — a little higher than April, a little lower than May a year ago.

Funeral services were held Saturday for Marine Lance Cpl. Carl D. Viola, West Monroe, killed in Viet Nam about a month before he was to have returned home.

Northeast Louisiana State College lost its first president while north Louisiana lost one of its better known and most admired citizens with the death of Monroe's Lewis C. Slater. Mr. Slater, associated with the college since 1938 and its president from 1950 to 1958, died Tuesday after a short illness. Classes and offices were closed Thursday in respect to his memory.

Meantime, the school he loved was honoring some students, signing up others— to begin another summer session. The past semester's honor roll — of students achieving at least a "B" average — included 617 names, 33 of them assigned perfect averages. Summer registration was Tuesday; classes began Wednesday.

Still looking at Northeast, the school hosted an important two-day Reading Conference, attacking a major problem in today's educational structure, Thursday and Friday.

The Columbus Social Club, an Italian-oriented group dating its activities from 1911, dedicated its new home at Armand and 30th Streets in Monroe.

An unofficial visitor to the Twin Cities was Rear Adm. James D. Craik, commander of the Eighth U.S. Coast Guard District, who with his wife and son spent several days locally. Son, Willis, plans to attend Northeast.

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. kicked off its summer program for all age groups, with near capacity enrollment in every category.

Marion E. Dupont, active in veterans' affairs, was elected president of Monroe's L. B. Faulk American Legion Post 13, succeeding Richard W. Sherman.

Major opportunities for expansion of the cotton market in the rug industry were outlined to area cotton leaders in a special meeting at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Lions from four local clubs went to their state convention in Baton Rouge, accompanied by Monroe Civic Center Director Bill Lillyman, and prepared to mount this weekend a key effort to bring the organization's 1968 convention to the civic center.

The Monroe Quota Club's speaker for the week was none other than Mrs. Ellen Bryan Moore, state lands registrar.

Meanwhile, on their respective meeting days, the Monroe and the West Monroe Kiwanis Clubs heard all about the work of Better Business Bureaus from R. A. Booth, executive director of the organization's Shreveport branch. A feature of the former session was an announcement by Monroe businessman Bernard Biedenharn of impending expansion of the Ouachita branch.

OTHER NEWS

There was still other news in equal abundance:

Area accidents were lethal during the period of coverage — a six-year-old El Dorado, Ark., girl, Charlotte Stubblefield, burned to death, a nine-year-old Ferriday boy, Charles Ray Nations, died when he ran in front of a car, and a Haynesville logging worker, Robert Kirk, was electrocuted.

The Lincoln Parish school system was named in an integration suit filed in Shreveport.

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe marked its 41st anniversary of operation, having come to the local location from Lake Charles in 1925.

W. L. Husted Jr. became the new president of the local Y.M.C.A., while Calton Yeager was installed as president of the Lakeshore Lions Club.

Four separate tax elections were held Saturday in Winn Parish for courthouse and health unit operation and road construction and maintenance. Lake Providence aldermen approved eight mill taxation — seven for general use, one for sewer bond retirement — in separate ordinances.

The Monroe Pilot Club observed its 25th anniversary with an appearance Saturday by Dr. Vilda Shuman, president of Pilot International.

A total 107 pharmacy school graduates from nine states passed the Louisiana Pharmacy Board examination administered Wednesday and Thursday at Northeast.

Activities for the 16th annual Louisiana Peach Festival at Ruston, June 23-26, were announced, and will feature for the first time a golf tourney.

And, finally, if you have half-dollars, you're lucky. An item during the week detailed a local coin shortage, particularly in the halfs — occasioned largely by collectors.

Sunday Poem

Let me remember on this day
That all I do or think or say
Will in some wondrous, magic way
Bring help or harm to others.
May my deeds be those of friendly cheer
Which bring a smile or dry a tear,
Give comfort and dispel a fear
Within the hearts of others.
In every thought may I pursue
A path both cleanly straight and true,
And find some star within the blue,
To which I may lead others.

A Glimpse?

Do you suppose Shakespeare, with his penetrating vision, had a glimpse of a world menaced by the possibility of atomic war? This is the inscription on the memorial to him in Westminster Abbey, those well-known lines from The Tempest:

The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous places,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve;
And, like this insubstantial pageant fade,
Leave not a rock behind.

Interesting Facts

DEFENSE SECRETARY Robert (Computer) McNamara claims there is "no clear need" for a newer, faster bomber, notes the Republican Congressional Committee newsletter. "He's going to wait until the need becomes clear — at which time we'll have 15 minutes to develop one." For our part, we're sorry he and Secretary of State Dean Rusk can't be ordered to participate in several engagements with our troops in Viet Nam. Both might change their concept about the situation there . . . .

DID YOU KNOW that Charles Green, an imaginary but typical American — married, the father of two, earning $10,000 a year — lost an estimated $268 because of inflation in the 12 months ending March 1966, according to the Tax Foundation, Inc. His brother, Joe, newly married and earning $7,500, lost an estimated $201 in the same period. Of course, there is always some good. If there was no inflation, how could President Johnson account for all the billions he's throwing into the "Great Society." . . . .

JUST IN CASE — Rep. Richard Roudebush of Indiana has discovered that the Administration is spending $12,700 to finance a University of Texas study of "Bird Life in Texas" and $29,000 for an Oklahoma State University project on the social behavior of fish. He suggests a more worthwhile study — the care and rehabilitation of beleaguered taxpayers . . .

Rickover May Go

The people in the know seem to think that Admiral Hyman Rickover will be torpedoed out of the Navy. Anyway many are somewhat pop-eyed at the blunt criticism Rickover made of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara recently.

Appearing not too long ago before the House Armed Services Committee, the father of the nuclear submarine sharply attacked the "cost-effectiveness people" — i.e., McNamara and his "Whiz-Kids" — for hiding behind a "facade of "scientific analysis." In actual fact, snapped the admiral, they are just as reluctant to change preconceived opinions as they say the military is.

"It is difficult for intellectuals," said Rickover, "when placed in positions of authority, to refrain from exercising power. Often theoretical people are being called upon to act as specialists, to make recommendations beyond their limited expertise. They tend to rely on their book knowledge in fields where technical competence, judgment, experience, wisdom and intuition are also necessary."

Even physicsts, said Rickover, "have been reluctant to accept new ideas. On a cost-effectiveness basis the colonists should not have revolted against King George III, nor should John Paul Jones have engaged the Serapis with an inferior ship, the Bon Homme Richard."

Claiming that the cost - effectiveness people had been proved dead-wrong by coming out against a nuclear Navy, Rickover remarked: "The primacy of politics should not again be subordinated to the doctrinaire and unproven claims of specialists — particularly when these specialists are in a position of overall authority and do not encourage or permit contrary views to be voiced or to be asserted."

Some people are now wondering if McNamara will move to torpedo Rickover out of the Navy.

The Flag - Then And Now

One hundred and eighty-nine years ago — on June 14, 1777 — the Continental Congress adopted a resolution which was brief, clear and to the point. It read:

"Resolved, that the Flag of the United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The 13 stripes of the flag were not new. The Continental Army had been fighting for a year and a half under the "Boston flag" raised by Gen. Washington at Charlestown, Mass., in January, 1776 — a banner with 13 stripes of alternating red and white, but with the familiar crosses of St. Andrew and St. George, as in the British Union Jack, in the upper left-hand corner where the stars now are.

The reason for the change obviously was a feeling that soldiers of the new American nation ought not to be fighting under the symbol of the kingdom to which they had renounced allegiance.

The new flag of the United States was raised in battle for the first time at Ft. Stanwix (or Ft. Schuyler), near the present city of Rome, N.Y., on Aug. 2, 1777. This, the first Stars and Stripes of whose fashioning there is contemporary historical record (with all due respect to the pleasant story of Betsy Ross), was strictly a home-made affair.

According to the diary of Col. Marinus Willett, one of the American officers at Stanwix, "the white stripes were cut out of an ammunition shirt; the blue out of the camlet cloak taken from the enemy at Peekskill, while the red stripes were made of different pieces of stuff procured from one and another of the garrison."

The American officer fortunate enough to have picked up a camlet cloak from the enemy at Peeksill was Capt. Abraham Swartout. As for the "different pieces of stuff procured from one and another of the garrison" for red stripes: Col. Willett was a gallant and reticent officer and gentleman; but legend says that the wife of one of the soldiers sacrificed her red flannel petticoat — and possibly other apparel — to complete that first flag.

The first American flag meant a great deal to the soldiers who raised it. Very soon after the breeze first caught its folds, these soldiers had opportunity to die for that flag. The British attacked on Aug. 3, the day after the flag was raised. The little American garrison stood off assault after assault for 19 days. On Aug. 22, reinforcements arrived and drove the British away.

The American troops who marched to the relief of Ft. Stanwix were led by a brilliant general; but the new flag apparently did not impress him as deeply as it ought to have done. His name was Arnold.

The flag has changed in 189 years. The "new constellation" of 1777 has grown from 13 to 50. The flag has gone to far places — places where the makers of the first flag never dreamed it would go. Does the flag today mean to Americans everywhere all that it meant symbolically to the brave little garrison at Ft. Stanwix in 1777?

We hope the answer is yes.

Hurricane And Tornadoes Set Pace In News

JAMES H. Meredith strode into Mississippi down U.S. Highway 51 at 9:15 Monday morning. He was on the second day of a "march against fear," to encourage Mississippi Negroes to vote. In late afternoon, near the little town of Hernando, eight miles inside Mississippi, a white man crouched in underbrush at the side of U.S. 51, raised a shotgun and called out "James Meredith, James Meredith. I want Meredith." Then he fired twice.

Meredith, the Negro who had desegregated the University of Mississippi in 1962, fell writhing in pain and blood. His back, from head to legs, had been raked with 60 to 70 pellets of birdshot. Thus ended the first stage of the "march against fear." The shot from ambush echoed around the world.

Police closed in and arrested Aubrey James Norvell, 40, an unemployed white man from Memphis, Tenn., described by neighbors as "a very nice man." Meredith was taken to a hospital in Memphis, where the walk had started.

From his ranch in Texas, President Johnson deplored "this awful act of violence," and from around the nation civil rights leaders descended on Mississippi to continue the "march against fear."

The incident spurred efforts for passage of the administration's pending civil rights bill.

THE INDIAN legend said Topeka was safe from tornadoes because they could not cross Burnett's Mound to the south. But Wednesday night, just at supper hour, a tornado roared over Burnett's Mound and down into the city of Topeka, cutting a path of destruction four blocks wide and 15 miles long.

In a few terrifying minutes, the storm destroyed 300 homes, damaged 500 more, smashed every major building at Washburn University, and destroyed or severly damaged numberless buildings, including a new luxury apartment complex. At least 17 people were killed, more than 300 injured, and 4,000 made homeless. The mayor set damage at a minimum of $100 million.

Hurricane Alma, the first of the season, came in across Honduras and Cuba, hit Key West, Fla., roared up the west coast past St. Petersburg and Tallahassee and blew out over the Atlantic across Georgia. In its wake were 47 dead in three nations, most of them in Honduras, and heavy destruction of buildings and crops in Cuba and Florida.

RONALD REAGAN, the movie goodguy who never got the girl, at last emerged a winner. In the California primaries Tuesday he scored a smashing win in capturing the Republican nomination for governor over George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco.

So great was Reagan's margin — two out of every three Republican votes — that pundits quickly installed him as a favorite to beat Gov. Edmund G. Brown in November. Democrat Brown, seeking a third term, won renomination but by a narrower margin than expected.

In Viet Nam, the heaviest ground fighting of the war was shaping up 60 miles northwest of Pleiku. The U.S. 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division began its Tuesday as Operation Hawthorne, flushed and badly mauled a North Vietnamese battalion. Then the Communists stiffened and both sides threw in more men.

By week's end perhaps 5,000 troops were engaged, the North Vietnamese reckoned at one — possibly two regiments. By Thursday, North Vietnamese casualties were put at 266 known dead. But a Saigon spokesman admitted this count was far from complete: "Those people up there are more interested in killing North Vietnamese than in counting bodies."

"Hallelujah. It's a strange world out here," exclaimed Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan. He had just stepped out of Gemini 9 for man's longest walk in space — 2 hours and 5 minutes. Then, after 44 orbits of the earth since Friday, Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, USAF, brought Gemini 9 down in the Atlantic at 10 a.m. Monday, less than three miles from the carrier Wasp. It was very nearly "right down the smokestack," as Stafford had promised — the closest landing ever made and relayed live to the world by television cameras on the carrier, via the Early Bird satellite.

At 25,000 feet over the Mojave Desert in California, the giant XB70A research bomber was completing an experimental flight. Suddenly it collided with a tiny chase plane, an F104 piloted by Joseph A. Walker, chief research pilot for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Both planes crashed, killing Walker, one of the nation's top test pilots, and Major Carl Cross, copilot of the XB70A. Al White, the bomber pilot, ejected in a seat pack on the way down and lived, with a broken arm and back injuries.

It has been a long trail for Samuel H. Sheppard of Bay Village, Ohio, and the end is not yet. On July 4, 1954, his wife Marilyn, was found beaten to death in their home. Dr. Sheppard — he was then an osteopath — was convicted of second degree murder and served nine years in prison.

He appealed his conviction on the grounds that he had not received a fair trial, and was released from prison July 16, 1964, to await the result of his appeal. Monday it came. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled, 8 to 1, that his trial had been unfair because "bedlam reigned at the courthouse during the trial and newsmen took over."

The court ordered that Sheppard be released from custody or retried "within a reasonable time." On Friday, the Cleveland prosecutor, John T. Corrigan, announced that Sheppard would be retried.

Said Sheppard, now 42, "I know I can prove my innocence." All along he had contended that a bushy haired intruder murdered Marilyn and escaped. By his side this time will be his second wife, Ariane Tebbenjohanns, 35, a blonde German divorcee he married in 1964.

THE FORCE of the devasting winds of a massive tornado that struck Topeka, Kans., the past week is illustrated here by an airplane propeller which was upended and driven into the ground. An estimated 15 persons were killed.

Quote of the week:

"We seek and will continue to seek to build bridges to keep open the doors of communication to the Communist states of Asia and, in particular, Communist China." — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Klan On Trial

The invisible empire of the Ku Klux Klan has never seemed more visible or less imperial. Short of members, publicly ridiculed, the Klan is in a most parlous state. The trial of Robert M. Shelton Jr., head of the biggest Klan in the country, is the crowning indignity. It starts Monday in U. S. District Court in Washington.

What makes Shelton's indictment on contempt-of-Congress charges particularly galling is the fact that it arose from an investigation of the Klan by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. The Klan has always considered itself the repository and guardian of national virtue. Un-Americanism is to the Klansman as capitalism is to Mao Tse-tung.

Shelton's frustration and rage are a matter of record. After his indictment by a federal grand jury in Washington last March 3, he said that "It's popular in this country to be a pinko or a political prostitute, but not to stand up and be a patriotic American." He vowed to appeal the case, if need be, all the way to the Supreme Court, hardly one of the Klan's favorite institutions.

Once upon a time, the Klan enjoyed a certain respectability. It began as a vigilance committee after the Civil War, when law enforcement in the prostrate southern states left much to be desired. The original Klan disbanded in 1877, having achieved its twin goals of eliminating Negro political power and returning control of the South to ante-bellum leaders.

A NEW KNIGHTS of the Ku Klux Klan, claiming to be a reincarnation of the old, obtained a charter from the State of Georgia in 1916. Supposedly a fraternal and patriotic order, the revived K.K.K. actually was a hate group dedicated to the proposition that all men are created unequal.

The Klan reached its peak strength in 1924, when it had more than four million members in all sections of the country. At least 11 governors and 13 U.S. Senators were elected with Klan help in the 1920's. By the end of the decade, however only about 50,000 hooded knights were still active. Stories of corruption among Klan leaders hastened the decline.

The contempt citations against Shelton and six other Klan officials (who will be tried later) were based on failure to produce records subpoenaed by the Un-American Activities panel. The House vote of 344-28 in favor of Shelton's citation gives some indication of the Klan's popularity on Capitol Hill.

Legislation to curb Klan violence will soon be introduced by Rep. Edwin E. Willis (D-La.), chairman of HUAC. One of the legal weapons Willis has in mind is a federal court injunction prohibiting groups like the Klan from interfering with a person's constitutional rights.

Forty-five years ago, after a House Rules Committee investigation, the reigning Imperial Wizard could boast that "Congress made us" through publicity. This could be the year that Congress breaks the Klan.

Meeting In Korea

At a resort hotel named for an American hero of the Korean war, foreign ministers of non-Communist Asian and Pacific nations meet in Korea Tuesday to forge closer ties.

THEY WILL concentrate on exploring ways to increase economic and cultural cooperation.

The meeting already has brought fire from Moscow and Peking.

The ministers will be surrounded by a reminder of Communism's aggression against South Korea. The three-day meeting of 10 nations is being held at the Walker Hill resort hotel, named for Gen. Walton Walker, who commanded the U. S. 8th Army and who died in a jeep accident in Korea.

Seoul first proposed the conference for April 1965. Reportedly the South Koreans hoped to start the ball rolling for a new military alliance, possibly a "Northeast Asia Treaty Organization."

The proposed participants — South Korea, South Viet Nam, the Philippines, Malaysia, Thailand, Japan, Nationalist China, Australia and New Zealand — never agreed to a date or an agenda.

THE REAL stumbling block was opposition to any meeting that might result in a military alliance.

Korean diplomats continued to push the idea of a foreign ministers' meeting. Eventually they won agreement for the conference, and an 11th nation — Laos — agreed to send an observer. The Laotians said they were worried the meeting might turn out to be political.

It is still possible that a new alliance against Communist infiltration might be discussed informally outside of the conference by the eight ministers of South Korea, Nationalist China, South Viet Nam, Thailand and Australia.

Moscow has called the meeting "an attempt to knock together a new aggressive military and political alliance." North Korea says it is a "scheme of U. S. imperialism" to achieve another pact.

NATIONALIST Chinese newspapers have expressed disappointment at the sidetracking of a military alliance. However, Chinese officials say they have no plans to bring up any particular subject.

What is the meeting likely to accomplish if it dodges political and military questions?

Japanese sources say it will be beneficial in adding to the sense of cooperation among the nations concerned.

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia hopes it will find ways to promote peaceful cooperation.

"I attach great significance to the very fact that the foreign ministers of so many countries in this area will sit together to discuss their common problems," said Korean Foreign Minister Lee Tong Won. I am satisfied with that alone."

New Flirtation

Socialistic India, still hungry despite 19 years of government economic planning is launching a new flirtation with capitalists around the world.

New Delhi has decided India's internal resources and even the massive flow of foreign aid are not enough to feed the nation's 495 millions and rescue its sinking economy.

This has turned government eyes to the private foreign investor, with his dollars, pounds sterling or Japanese yen — plus his technical and managerial skills.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Local and area officials, to their credit, are not wheeler - dealers in the federal sense, but, even operating within the framework of sound business judgment, they have their moments.

Which is to say that, although they seldom get to function in the rareified atmosphere of multi-billions, multi-millions are not unknown to them. Stated still more directly, high finance was all the rage last week.

The Monroe City Council, for example, was selling a $7.5 million utilities bond issue Tuesday. Area school and governmental leaders were in Monroe Friday to consider a Fifth District sales tax that would mean $5 million in the tills. The Monroe School Board, working with the proceeds of a $6 million bond issue, was trying to make do that amount, as it advanced construction obligations against a tide of rising costs.

TYLER

More examples? The Ouachita Parish Police Jury, bobbing in the same tide, prepared to readvertise its $1.7 million courthouse expansion project, setting back a building start by at least a month. Large amounts also were involved in the proposed firemen's pay raise, a controversy over which continued to seethe in the added ferment of a possible inquiry into Monroe payroll records. Further, there was comment in the land relative to insurance rates and the likely effects of a bill which gained legislative approval to await the governor's signature.

More on these and other events and happenstances follows.

BOND ISSUE

The worsening money market — from the bond sellers' point of view — no doubt had its effect on the bids opened Tuesday at the Monroe City Hall, but on the whole officials agreed the effect was minimal and a compliment to the city's rating. The low bid accepted — averaging out to 4.28258 per cent over the life of the issue— in fact was more favorable than on two of the three issues sold in the last 10 years.

The bonds, to be delivered to New York early in August, are callable at any time, but if paid on schedule through 1996 will cost a total of nearly $6 million in interest. Not really extraordinary, with the market at the highest point in 30 years, bond attorneys advised.

Proceeds will be used principally to boost the city's electrical generating and water storage capabilities, in addition to the acquisition of new facilities and properties such as the land the council authorized purchase on Tuesday.

Being bought from the Kellogg interests are approximately 11 downtown acres, across from the utilities compound at 12th and Grammont. The price? $210,000, but called an excellent buy by Mayor W. L. Howard since the property contains a warehouse such as is called for in the issue's construction prospectus at a cost of $225,000.

The bond issue, by the way, will not affect taxes; repayment will be solely from earnings of the utilities commission.

Even so, from bonds to taxes normally is no long jump, and, as indicated, a tax was being considered during the week — of the one cent sales variety, to be applied districtwide, addressed to the further raising of school salaries and the provision certain educational improvements.

Franklin Rep. Lantz Womack, who introduced in Baton Rouge the measure which would permit the tax, spoke to a conclave Friday night of the district's school superintendents, school board presidents and legislators. As these lines were a-borning, the depth of favor given Womack's presentation was not known, but betting people were touting against the bill. Certainly, if Ouachita Parish winds up with a veto, it will be cast, while the other parishes probably like the tax.

Just over half the proceeds would be collected in Ouachita, which in turn would get back around 29 per cent. A division such as outlined above, therefore, was not unreasonable to expect. Lightly regarded, but gaining support, is a one-cent sales tax, applied statewide. The Monroe School Board spoke for it Tuesday, joining its influence in opposition to the district tax that of both Twin City Chambers of Commerce. Ouachita legislators, except for Sen. Jamar Adcock, are understood not to favor the Womack bill. The parish school board says it is not in favor as the measure stands — or stood, before the Friday meeting.

RISING COSTS

Rising costs also concerned the city school board Tuesday. A huddle behind closed doors, however, produced decisions to go ahead with bids over the amounts allocated on two projects, while bids on two other projects, also over the money, were taken under study.

The board accepted a $159,600 bid for additions and renovation at Lee Junior High, and a bid of $86,420 on stadium lights at Neville and Carroll High Schools. Only about $140,000 was allocated for the Lee job, and the lights cost about $9,000 more than was allocated, President W. S. Gannaway said.

Held under advisement were bids on the air conditioning of Jefferson and Carroll Junior High Schools — together running about $45,000 over the money. Bids on Jefferson deemed too high were thrown out approximately a month ago in a first effort at letting the job.

The Ouachita Police Jury, slammed at its last meeting by the same high cost of living, when the low bid on expansion of the courthouse soared almost a quarter-million dollars above the $1.7 million approved by the electorate, readied a re-advertisement on June 20. The project architect by last week had trimmed the project to a point believed within $100,000 of where the next bids, to be opened in July, will settle. In the interim, however, the planned movement of parish operations to temporary quarters to permit the work unobstructed was put back until around August 1.

Other officials were looking down the road to wonder how the market will affect bids on fire station construction in connection with the fixed-millage rural fire protection program. They added this to their worries over the possible firemen's pay raise, now in a Senate committee.

Speaking of the pay raise, it was a curtain-raiser on the week's news as Howard released salary figures listing all but 56 of Monroe's firemen as making $400 a month or more. The $400 is the new minimum sought in the bill, supported by Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George Wood, and the crux of colorful recent exchanges between Gibbs and the mayor.

But there were new turns in the pair's relationship. At the week's council meeting, it was disclosed that a local accountant, in the employ of the lawmaker, had inquired for payroll information of the city and of its utilities commission.

The council promised whatever was desired, but stipulated that an indemnity agreement be signed, freeing the city of liability should lawsuits result from use of the material. Gibbs, meantime, suffering from back trouble which may yet require an operation, had nothing further to say.

Howard Friday withdrew the requirement for an indemnity agreement in a curious development, stating a desire to "cooperate," but adding, in effect, that he felt the request for information politically motivated.

The representative, on his bed at the St. Francis, had the look of a man ready to say something.

POLITICS

Politics was rife during the week, including qualifications as several party committees met, announcements and impending elections.

The West Monroe and Sterlington general elections are on the boards for Tuesday and just ahead are the August 13 primaries for, among other posts, U.S. senator and representative. Rep. Otto Passman of Monroe announced and qualified with a matter of days, while the only early qualifier for the Senate seat of Allen Ellender was a surprise, south Louisiana state Sen. J. DeBlieux.

Five, however, qualified for the Public Service Commission being contested by incumbent John Hunt II of Monroe, and U.S. Rep. Speedy O. Long of the Eighth District announced that he will run again.

In closer-to-home politics, Sen. Adcock took a revived interest in the seating of Monroe residents on the Ouachita School Board and introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to take them off.

A subject that seemingly has been explored in every possible detail over the years — once recently, the question of divided responsibilities between the city and parish school boards appeared ready to be off and running again. The Monroe members on the board, however, who probably feel they belong there, were mostly without comment. Most likely referring to maintenance and operation taxes, the senator stressed that city residents do not pay taxes to the parish system. Residents in some annexed areas pay over $30,000 a year on parish school bond issues.

Still speaking politically, politics is a subject which Charles E. McKenzie Jr. of Monroe said he doesn't feel belongs in the insurance business, and he said a new bill on the governor's desk will combat its presence. McKenzie, president of the Louisiana Association of Insurance Agents, during the week, discussed "misconceptions" about the bill.

Not having the gift of prophecy, however, and understandably reluctant to make predictions he subsequently might dine upon, the official declined to speculate on how rates will rise. But, he emphasized, the bill specifically requires close auditing and permits hearings on suspicious ratings.

LOCAL, AREA

Of other local and area news during the week, there was a generous admixture, a statement backed up by the following sampling:

The nationwide strike of Western Union operations by Commercial Telegraphers' Union members — some 20,000 strong — had its local effect, as did the four-hour work stoppage last week when the existing contract expired. The walkout of about eight local workers idled the message lines, which, however, were humming again Friday after a 4.5 per cent a year pay boost for two years and fringe benefits were granted.

Meanwhile, unemployment in Ouachita Parish was reported as 3.9 per cent of the work force at the end of May — a little higher than April, a little lower than May a year ago.

Funeral services were held Saturday for Marine Lance Cpl. Carl D. Viola, West Monroe, killed in Viet Nam about a month before he was to have returned home.

Northeast Louisiana State College lost its first president while north Louisiana lost one of its better known and most admired citizens with the death of Monroe's Lewis C. Slater. Mr. Slater, associated with the college since 1938 and its president from 1950 to 1958, died Tuesday after a short illness. Classes and offices were closed Thursday in respect to his memory.

Meantime, the school he loved was honoring some students, signing up others— to begin another summer session. The past semester's honor roll — of students achieving at least a "B" average — included 617 names, 33 of them assigned perfect averages. Summer registration was Tuesday; classes began Wednesday.

Still looking at Northeast, the school hosted an important two-day Reading Conference, attacking a major problem in today's educational structure, Thursday and Friday.

The Columbus Social Club, an Italian-oriented group dating its activities from 1911, dedicated its new home at Armand and 30th Streets in Monroe.

An unofficial visitor to the Twin Cities was Rear Adm. James D. Craik, commander of the Eighth U.S. Coast Guard District, who with his wife and son spent several days locally. Son, Willis, plans to attend Northeast.

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. kicked off its summer program for all age groups, with near capacity enrollment in every category.

Marion E. Dupont, active in veterans' affairs, was elected president of Monroe's L. B. Faulk American Legion Post 13, succeeding Richard W. Sherman.

Major opportunities for expansion of the cotton market in the rug industry were outlined to area cotton leaders in a special meeting at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Lions from four local clubs went to their state convention in Baton Rouge, accompanied by Monroe Civic Center Director Bill Lillyman, and prepared to mount this weekend a key effort to bring the organization's 1968 convention to the civic center.

The Monroe Quota Club's speaker for the week was none other than Mrs. Ellen Bryan Moore, state lands registrar.

Meanwhile, on their respective meeting days, the Monroe and the West Monroe Kiwanis Clubs heard all about the work of Better Business Bureaus from R. A. Booth, executive director of the organization's Shreveport branch. A feature of the former session was an announcement by Monroe businessman Bernard Biedenharn of impending expansion of the Ouachita branch.

OTHER NEWS

There was still other news in equal abundance:

Area accidents were lethal during the period of coverage — a six-year-old El Dorado, Ark., girl, Charlotte Stubblefield, burned to death, a nine-year-old Ferriday boy, Charles Ray Nations, died when he ran in front of a car, and a Haynesville logging worker, Robert Kirk, was electrocuted.

The Lincoln Parish school system was named in an integration suit filed in Shreveport.

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe marked its 41st anniversary of operation, having come to the local location from Lake Charles in 1925.

W. L. Husted Jr. became the new president of the local Y.M.C.A., while Calton Yeager was installed as president of the Lakeshore Lions Club.

Four separate tax elections were held Saturday in Winn Parish for courthouse and health unit operation and road construction and maintenance. Lake Providence aldermen approved eight mill taxation — seven for general use, one for sewer bond retirement — in separate ordinances.

The Monroe Pilot Club observed its 25th anniversary with an appearance Saturday by Dr. Vilda Shuman, president of Pilot International.

A total 107 pharmacy school graduates from nine states passed the Louisiana Pharmacy Board examination administered Wednesday and Thursday at Northeast.

Activities for the 16th annual Louisiana Peach Festival at Ruston, June 23-26, were announced, and will feature for the first time a golf tourney.

And, finally, if you have half-dollars, you're lucky. An item during the week detailed a local coin shortage, particularly in the halfs — occasioned largely by collectors.

Special Talents Combined In United Givers Committee

One of the difficult, but generally little publicized jobs in the United Givers Fund organization here, is handled by the 10-member Quota and Admissions Committee. Here is a report on the men and their work.

By TRAVIS MAYO
Staff Writer

Where could you hope to meet a man who never despairs of finding a better way, who has the courage to decide on things that have to be done, who believes children should have every opportunity to grow strong and develop maximum abilities, who has the skill to communicate situations and needs to the people, and who has the energy to solve a local problem in the context of the nation's problem?

Such a rare man may not exist. These traits may be found only among 10 men. But, we say, such men would be highly appreciated and hailed on the streets when they passed and widely supported by the entire community in every task they undertook.

But such is not human nature. We have these 10 men working among us today in the Twin Cities and they pass by, too often unappreciated, unsupported and misunderstood. They get no pay, little publicity, scarcely any public understanding and some misguided and even hostile criticism.

Theirs is the job of budgeting money for the United Givers Fund. As members of the UGF Quota and Admissions Committee they study and approve or modify all the local agency requests for United Givers Fund donations.

GROUP'S PURPOSE

Their purpose is to assure that the community gets maximum value out of every dollar donated to UGF. Yet their job is, in the words of one United Fund campaign chairman, "an arduous and somewhat thankless task."

The 10 men on the quota and admissions committee this month began wading into a sea of hard work and difficult, often unpopular, decisions — an assignment calling for many hours of their prime time.

Fred Cannon, executive director of the local United Givers Fund at 200 S. Grand, Monroe, sums up the organization's role when he says, "The committee's job is to make sure the contributor's dollar is spent wisely."

To assure thrift is a complicated and unpopular job for the committee must look at the big picture — the whole pattern of community needs and services, and dollars available to pay the bills. And in most cases the bills stack higher than the dollars.

Quota and admissions committee members fight hard to equalize the scales while hardly anybody outside the United Givers Fund in-group cheers them on.

By contrast, thousands of other volunteers who help the UGF and its 13 member agencies get more recognition. The people who make headlines with disaster relief, with youth programs and with camp shows for servicemen are clearly Good Joes of the community. Nearly everybody appreciates them.

Committee members in back rooms who pinch pennies are something else.

Perhaps they are the forgotten men when the cheers are passed out because they are not working directly with sick people or cute kids or lonely old folks, nor are they directly beating the drums for money.

Quota and Admissions committee members perspire over printed reports, cold columns of figures and the raw reality that "requests are increasing to beat the band while incoming funds are lagging." Statistics dramatize this quote by executive director Cannon. Six years ago the United Givers Fund contribution total was $212,000. Last year it was $238,000. Contributions, therefore, increased $26,000 in five years and on the surface that looks like real progress. But the bright picture dims when one considers the growth rate of the area during that same period and takes into consideration that demands on UGF have also rapidly increased.

JOB OF CAMPAIGN

So the job of this fall's fund campaign is to strike a more realistic balance between the money that the UGF agencies ask for and the amount likely to be raised in Ouachita Parish.

This is a sticky assignment. The scales are perpetually off balance, with requests always outweighing anticipated revenue.

These 10 men who review the budget requests of 13 agencies will have to do a lot of soul - searching before they meet with agency representatives and a lot of teeth-gritting when they have to deny funds to agencies which really deserve them.

The Quota and Admissions committee inevitably will have to deny funds to deserving agencies and to prune certain services which are good but are less urgent than others.

As they trim dollars from agency proposals they have to be impartial, even at the risk of offending a friend or a client who is passionately devoted to the one agency he knows best.

The UGF Quota and Admissions Committee is now in the process of totaling up agency requests. Decisions made now by the unsung committee will have much to do with determining the goal for next fall's UGF campaign. Each agency makes a request that is weighed in several balances. The total of all requests by 13 agencies becomes the UGF goal.

Since the need for funds is increasing the goal for federated fund-raising in Ouachita Parish will edge higher this year.

"All our agencies charge a small fee to persons who can afford to pay for the services," Cannon points out. "United Givers Fund grants make up the difference between an agency's income from fees and sustaining memberships and that agency's total spending."

YEAR-LONG TASK

Almost all agencies get some money from fees, sale of goods, membership costs, etc. Some of the local agents get as much as half of their operating expenses from fees and other income. "We collect and allocate funds throughout the year," Cannon says, "and it takes all year to collect on campaign pledges."

At present, the budgeting committee is assigning members to contact individual agencies, to talk with them about services offered, increases in services and subsequent increases in operating costs.

Agencies, in turn, are submitting to UGF a proposed budget for the fiscal year, including all anticipated income from all sources.

Of course, the picture of a budgeting committee member with a sharp pencil and an even sharper eye for trimming down columns of figures is not intended to conceal that these are men with warm hearts. Proof of generosity is simply their willingness to accept their unglamorous assignment.

The 10 members of the Quota and Admissions Committee are Chairman Harry Frazer Jr., T. O. Moses, Sidney Seegers, Larry Seab, John Mullens, Ben Marshall, Charles Womack, David Johnson, Saul Mintz, and M. J. Cook.

This committee must study the community needs as a whole and correlate its recommendations to achieve a balance of services.

J. C. (Mose) Loftin, UGF president, has high praise for the civic - minded committee members and reminds the public that "this campaign is our expression of the age-old tradition of people helping people — our neighbors, our friends, our own families."

Keeping in mind that change is a swift and continuous stream, the members of the budgeting committee must wrestle with such questions as these:

"How do Uncle Sam's new programs affect the big picture of community services? In the light of new developments, should some services be changed or cut back?

Should this agency be merged with other organizations to avoid overlaps and to save money in ministering to needs?

The Boy Scout Camp in West Monroe is an example of a possible merger. Scout executives feel there is much room for cooperation in camp use between Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. The quota committee is studying a possible merger in order to eliminate duplication. "UGF, of course," Cannon says, "does not offer services but gives ideas for greater efficiency."

INFORMATION ASSISTANCE

To help the budgeteers reach intelligent decisions, the national office of United Fund supplies the local committee with information about duplication of services, unmet needs, changing needs, comparable tax - supported services, property maintenance and other guidelines.

As a study of other United Funds across the nation shows, every individual agency has a high idea of its own value, and it is well that it does. But sometimes it can't see the forest for the trees and may make unrealistic demands when viewed in the perspective of all agency needs.

A budgeting committee must never let itself be dazzled by an agency's size or popularity or by the prominence of its board members. "One reason why the United Way was originated in the first place," Cannon says, "is because some appeals are more emotional than others and appear to the public to be more important than others actually just as important." In the past, some organizations received more donations that they needed in any one year, while others suffered. Givers today can make certain designations on their pledge cards, but the distribution of funds is much more realistic than in the past.

An agency may be small and still perform an essential servic. Popularity does not always mean excellence.

Whenever the budget committee reduces an agency's request, the reduction is referred to the UGF executive committee and the executive committee reports to the board of directors. Agencies must meet certain standards and must be rendering vital services to the community, Cannon said. Each agency has to have an elected board of directors from the community at large and must render each year a budget of their expenditures. Monthly statements must also be submitted on expenditures.

ADMISSIONS

Any final goal is, of course, also affected by admission of new agencies to UGF. Organizations applying for admission must prove they have been supported by the community in the past, and must meet other UGF standards.

National trends also affect local decisions. An eight per cent increase in gross national product is predicted this year over 1965.

Rising costs of living on a national scale will force United Givers Fund to increase its campaign goal to meet this increase.

Then, too, the needs constantly change. A cure for a disease may be found and funds for research no longer needed. Money freed in this way may be turned into assistance to new youth programs or Scouting work.

Finally, one of the gravest problems of UGF is the apathy of the people — or more correctly, their misguided ideas. The story is told of a World War I soldier who was asked by the Red Cross to pay a small fee for a package of cigarettes. He refused for the rest of his life to give money to the Red Cross, never realizing that the small fee he paid went to buy other services for other soldiers.

Today, there are more than 2,200 United Fund agencies in the United States which conduct annual campaigns for funds. In 1954 there were 1,627. Most of these are small, but they blanket the country and symbolize organized philanthropic giving outside the church by living donors. The amount of contributions nationwide was $273,503,300 in 1954 and has greatly increased in the subsequent decade.

As an attitude, such philanthropy may be defined as devotion to human welfare, and, as an act of good will, it is a manifestation of freedom of choice in the use of private resources for the benefit of one's fellow men. Loftin puts it this way: "Giving is not enough. Giving Enough is the answer."

In Ouachita Parish, the United Givers Fund agencies serve more than 36,000 persons. Broken down, the number of people served are 23,913 in the Monroe area; 10,689 in the West Monroe area, and 1,545 in the Sterlington area.

United Fund agencies are American Red Cross, Boy Scouts of America, Carolyn Strauss Rehabilitation Center, Colored Community Welfare, Girl Scouts of America, Monroe Area Guidance Center, Ouachita Association for Retarded Children, Salvation Army, Twin City Council on Alcoholism, Twin Cities YMCA, Twin Cities YWCA, USO, and West Monroe Boys' Club.

Some White South Africans are Part-Time Prisoners

EDITOR'S NOTE — The law is harsh, determined, unyielding. There are no exceptions once the banning order is issued — and so South Africa finds itself with white South Africans living an enforced exile in their own homes.

BY DENNIS LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — For most white South Africans lunchtime means sandwiches in the sun or a tasty snack at the restaurant around the corner.

For others it may mean a frantic lunch time dash to the police station to sign in and report their presence.

In the evening fashionably dressed women crowd the theater foyers, night club hostesses squeeze into seductive gowns, teen-agers battle for a seat in their favorite downtown coffee bar as Johannesburg'ds nightlife gets going.

But for some — the banned and restricted — darkness brings another night of endless boredom, frustration, silence and loneliness.

These are the people banned under this country's suppression of communism law. By law such people are deprived of movies, theater shows, church services. They cannot take an evening stroll through the flowered parks, entertain friends at home or even pop out of doors for a pack of cigarettes.

USUAL TERMS

House arrest and bannings orders generally are imposed for five years. While allowing banned individuals to work during the daytime, the law demands they remain at home from 6:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. and at weekends from 2:30 p.m. Saturday until 6:30 a.m. Monday.

Their restriction becomes day-long on all public holidays, including Christmas and Easter.

Each weekday around lunchtime they must report in person to a police station. Failure to do so is a criminal offense.

South Africa's far - reaching banning and house arrest laws have ensnared people from all walks of life — writers, political party members, university lecturers, lawyers, social workers and students — black, white and yellow.

They are forbidden to communicate with other banned friends, prepare material for publication or have political discussions in public.

BARRED FROM PARTY

They must seek government approval to step outside their area of confinement, even to attend a funeral or wedding. One woman was barred from her young daughter's birthday party.

So effective are the banning and house arrest orders that most restrictees find it difficult, if not impossible, to practice their trade or profession.

They can never appeal against the banning orders. There are no legal arguments, no charge, no trial, no defense.

A banning order is final. No official reason is given other than occasional suggestions that the restrictee has "furthered the aims of communism."

Most notorious of all South Africa's white house arrestees is graying British-born Helen Joseph, the first woman to be detained under the house arrest law.

A divorcee, she lives alone in a suburban villa close to Johannesburg. A cat and a dog are her only companions. Harsher restrictions added to her original banning order now make it impossible for her to continue social welfare work from her Johannesburg office. Her freedom has been restricted in one form or another for over nine years.

Architect of South Africa's banning laws is Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster, tipped by many as the country's next prime minister when Hendrik Verwoerd steps down.

RELENTLESS WAR

Outwardly an impassive, unemotional man, Vorster has waged relentless war against communism and what he terms the "sickly pink of liberalism."

White voters endorsed Vorster's handling of the country's security affairs during the recent all - white elections, sending his Nationalist party back to power with a second majority for another five years.

Shortly after the government's re-election in March, Vorster indicated there would be no weakening of his tough security policy.

LATEST LIST

"The time has come," he said, "to indict anybody spreading lies. I will see that it becomes law in South Africa."

The latest weekly list of bannings included: a secretary of the opposition Liberal party, an international television agency cameraman, a university lecturer and a prominent woman lawyer.

Some of the loudest outcries against South Africa's racial policies come from women.

Helen Suzman is an antigovernment fighter. The only parliamentary representative of the liberal - inclined Progressive party, her verbal clashes with Vorster are often the highlights of parliamentary debates.

Others are a band of white housewives who call themselves the Black Sash. Wearing a black sash of mourning across their shoulders, they parade placards silently on busy street corners protesting what they consider racial injustices.

One of their supporters, Ruth Hayman, an attorney, was missing recently. A five - year hours arrest ban was clamped on her.

BY DAY THEY may seem to be part of the crowd as they walk in the street. But by night and on weekends or holiday, South Africa's banned persons must stay at home, and cannot have friends in. There is no appeal from house arrest under the increasingly restrictive suppression of communism laws to enforce apartheid. This is Mrs. Helen Joseph, British-born, first woman detained under the laws, on her way to make her daily report to the police station in Johannesburg. For nine years she has lived with her freedom restricted in one way or another. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

9-Year-Old Area Pianist Called Prodigy

By DIANNE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

What is in store for a nine - year - old after he begins performing with symphony orchestras?

Doors to a certain measure of fame have already opened for a child prodigy from Grayson and those who have heard him play the piano expect many more doors to be opening for the youngster.

Willis Delony, a third grader at Grayson Elementeary School, auditioned recently for a spot in the program of the New Orleans Summer Pops — the summer program of New Orleans Symphony Orchestra — and won it.

It was no surprise to those who knew him. He had already performed with the Northwestern State College Symphony and had been scheduled to perform with the Northeast Louisiana Symphony recently until that concert was cancelled.

The child has taken piano lessons for only two years, one and a half years of which has been spent under the training of a Monroe piano instructor, J. Hamilton Monroe.

NEW ORLEANS

The prodigy will perform with the New Orleans Summer Pops on June 24 and 25, the opening nights, in the municipal auditorium.

Season tickets for the concerts may be obtained from the Summer Pops office, 203 Gallier Hall, New Orleans 70130, and individual concert tickets went on sale June 6 at Werlein's in New Orleans.

Also to appear in the opening concerts with Willis are the Four Freshmen, stars of the show.

In his short career as concert pianist, Willis has astounded his audiences.

REAL MUSICIAN

Dr. Joseph Carlucci, head of the music department at Northwestern, with whom he has performed, said, "He was very well received and earned a standing ovation.

"The audience in our packed auditorium had come to see an eight - year - old (he was eight when he played the Dec. 10, 1965 concert at Natchitoches) play, but I don't think they expected to see a musician as well."

Willis played the first movement of Joseph Hayden's Piano Concerto in D Major, with the NSC Symphony Orchestra in a formal evening concert.

"The thing that amazed all of us about this boy was his poise," said Dr. Carlucci. "The young fellow particularly impressed me because he knew his music so well. He responded to me as a director with admirable maturity. He was always ready to begin, when I cued him at rehearsals and during the performance. Very few children could manage all that smoothness.

'AMAZING JOB'

"For his age, he did an amazing job, technically, and played evenly. He, of course, had to make some technical adjustments, though," Dr. Carlucci laughed. "He couldn't make the octaves (eight notes apart on the piano keys) with his small hands, so he had to break the notes. And he played the entire concert without reaching the foot pedals. His legs were too short."

WILLIS DELONY

The NSC music professor said he heard of young Willis through Monroe, and came here to hear the musician play.

"I hired him for our concert after two minutes of hearing him play," he said.

LITTLE LIVE WIRE

Those who think of talented youngsters usually think of bookish little boys and girls, but Willis is "completely extroverted," his mother said.

Willis is the son of Mr and Mrs. Charles Delony, and has a 13 - year - old brother, Dennis.

An honor student (all A's) at Grayson Elementary, Willis especially loves history, biology and reading, Mrs. Delony said.

"He reads an awful lot, and likes the biographies of musicians," she said.

The youngster plays shortstop and pitcher on a Little League Team in Columbia during the summer and loves baseball. "He's a very normal little live wire his mother said.

She said Willis "is really looking forward to his concert in New Orleans."

"He loves to play his pieces," she said, "but he wouldn't be a little boy if he didn't have to be pushed at times to practice the routine work like running the scales. He has to be reminded to do that at times, but his music comes naturally to him, and he loves it."

Mrs. Delony said her son first began to play the piano a little over two years ago. When he began to play pieces by ear, the family realized he should develop his musical talent.

"We took him to Mrs. Doris Pollard at Columbia, at first," Mrs. Delony said, "but after two or three lessons, she realized he was better than the average player, so she suggested we find someone with more experience than herself. Then we took him to Mrs. DeWanna Pitts at Monroe. After she taught him a few months, she recommended Mr. Monroe. He has brought out a lot in Willis and we're happy with the results."

Commenting on his student, Monroe said, "There's no question that he's a child prodigy. He has the ability to go on to greater fame, and I believe he will."

The quota committee is studying a possible merger in order to eliminate duplication. "UGF, of course," Cannon says, "does not offer services but gives ideas for greater efficiency."

INFORMATION ASSISTANCE

To help the budgeteers reach intelligent decisions, the national office of United Fund supplies the local committee with information about duplication of services, unmet needs, changing needs, comparable tax - supported services, property maintenance and other guidelines.

As a study of other United Funds across the nation shows, every individual agency has a high idea of its own value, and it is well that it does. But sometimes it can't see the forest for the trees and may make unrealistic demands when viewed in the perspective of all agency needs.

A budgeting committee must never let itself be dazzled by an agency's size or popularity or by the prominence of its board members. "One reason why the United Way was originated in the first place," Cannon says, "is because some appeals are more emotional than others and appear to the public to be more important than others actually just as important." In the past, some organizations received more donations that they needed in any one year, while others suffered. Givers today can make certain designations on their pledge cards, but the distribution of funds is much more realistic than in the past.

An agency may be small and still perform an essential servic. Popularity does not always mean excellence.

Whenever the budget committee reduces an agency's request, the reduction is referred to the UGF executive committee and the executive committee reports to the board of directors. Agencies must meet certain standards and must be rendering vital services to the community, Cannon said. Each agency has to have an elected board of directors from the community at large and must render each year a budget of their expenditures. Monthly statements must also be submitted on expenditures.

ADMISSIONS

Any final goal is, of course, also affected by admission of new agencies to UGF. Organizations applying for admission must prove they have been supported by the community in the past, and must meet other UGF standards.

National trends also affect local decisions. An eight per cent increase in gross national product is predicted this year over 1965.

Rising costs of living on a national scale will force United Givers Fund to increase its campaign goal to meet this increase.

Then, too, the needs constantly change. A cure for a disease may be found and funds for research no longer needed. Money freed in this way may be turned into assistance to new youth programs or Scouting work.

Finally, one of the gravest problems of UGF is the apathy of the people — or more correctly, their misguided ideas. The story is told of a World War I soldier who was asked by the Red Cross to pay a small fee for a package of cigarettes. He refused for the rest of his life to give money to the Red Cross, never realizing that the small fee he paid went to buy other services for other soldiers.

Today, there are more than 2,200 United Fund agencies in the United States which conduct annual campaigns for funds. In 1954 there were 1,627. Most of these are small, but they blanket the country and symbolize organized philanthropic giving outside the church by living donors. The amount of contributions nationwide was $273,503,300 in 1954 and has greatly increased in the subsequent decade.

As an attitude, such philanthropy may be defined as devotion to human welfare, and, as an act of good will, it is a manifestation of freedom of choice in the use of private resources for the benefit of one's fellow men. Loftin puts it this way: "Giving is not enough. Giving Enough is the answer."

In Ouachita Parish, the United Givers Fund agencies serve more than 36,000 persons. Broken down, the number of people served are 23,913 in the Monroe area; 10,689 in the West Monroe area, and 1,545 in the Sterlington area.

United Fund agencies are American Red Cross, Boy Scouts of America, Carolyn Strauss Rehabilitation Center, Colored Community Welfare, Girl Scouts of America, Monroe Area Guidance Center, Ouachita Association for Retarded Children, Salvation Army, Twin City Council on Alcoholism, Twin Cities YMCA, Twin Cities YWCA, USO, and West Monroe Boys' Club.

Some White South Africans are Part-Time Prisoners

EDITOR'S NOTE — The law is harsh, determined, unyielding. There are no exceptions once the banning order is issued — and so South Africa finds itself with white South Africans living an enforced exile in their own homes.

BY DENNIS LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — For most white South Africans lunchtime means sandwiches in the sun or a tasty snack at the restaurant around the corner.

For others it may mean a frantic lunch time dash to the police station to sign in and report their presence.

In the evening fashionably dressed women crowd the theater foyers, night club hostesses squeeze into seductive gowns, teen-agers battle for a seat in their favorite downtown coffee bar as Johannesburg'ds nightlife gets going.

But for some — the banned and restricted — darkness brings another night of endless boredom, frustration, silence and loneliness.

These are the people banned under this country's suppression of communism law. By law such people are deprived of movies, theater shows, church services. They cannot take an evening stroll through the flowered parks, entertain friends at home or even pop out of doors for a pack of cigarettes.

USUAL TERMS

House arrest and bannings orders generally are imposed for five years. While allowing banned individuals to work during the daytime, the law demands they remain at home from 6:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. and at weekends from 2:30 p.m. Saturday until 6:30 a.m. Monday.

Their restriction becomes day-long on all public holidays, including Christmas and Easter.

Each weekday around lunchtime they must report in person to a police station. Failure to do so is a criminal offense.

South Africa's far - reaching banning and house arrest laws have ensnared people from all walks of life — writers, political party members, university lecturers, lawyers, social workers and students — black, white and yellow.

They are forbidden to communicate with other banned friends, prepare material for publication or have political discussions in public.

BARRED FROM PARTY

They must seek government approval to step outside their area of confinement, even to attend a funeral or wedding. One woman was barred from her young daughter's birthday party.

So effective are the banning and house arrest orders that most restrictees find it difficult, if not impossible, to practice their trade or profession.

They can never appeal against the banning orders. There are no legal arguments, no charge, no trial, no defense.

A banning order is final. No official reason is given other than occasional suggestions that the restrictee has "furthered the aims of communism."

Most notorious of all South Africa's white house arrestees is graying British-born Helen Joseph, the first woman to be detained under the house arrest law.

A divorcee, she lives alone in a suburban villa close to Johannesburg. A cat and a dog are her only companions. Harsher restrictions added to her original banning order now make it impossible for her to continue social welfare work from her Johannesburg office. Her freedom has been restricted in one form or another for over nine years.

Architect of South Africa's banning laws is Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster, tipped by many as the country's next prime minister when Hendrik Verwoerd steps down.

RELENTLESS WAR

Outwardly an impassive, unemotional man, Vorster has waged relentless war against communism and what he terms the "sickly pink of liberalism."

White voters endorsed Vorster's handling of the country's security affairs during the recent all - white elections, sending his Nationalist party back to power with a second majority for another five years.

Shortly after the government's re-election in March, Vorster indicated there would be no weakening of his tough security policy.

LATEST LIST

"The time has come," he said, "to indict anybody spreading lies. I will see that it becomes law in South Africa."

The latest weekly list of bannings included: a secretary of the opposition Liberal party, an international television agency cameraman, a university lecturer and a prominent woman lawyer.

Some of the loudest outcries against South Africa's racial policies come from women.

Helen Suzman is an antigovernment fighter. The only parliamentary representative of the liberal - inclined Progressive party, her verbal clashes with Vorster are often the highlights of parliamentary debates.

Others are a band of white housewives who call themselves the Black Sash. Wearing a black sash of mourning across their shoulders, they parade placards silently on busy street corners protesting what they consider racial injustices.

One of their supporters, Ruth Hayman, an attorney, was missing recently. A five - year hours arrest ban was clamped on her.

BY DAY THEY may seem to be part of the crowd as they walk in the street. But by night and on weekends or holiday, South Africa's banned persons must stay at home, and cannot have friends in. There is no appeal from house arrest under the increasingly restrictive suppression of communism laws to enforce apartheid. This is Mrs. Helen Joseph, British-born, first woman detained under the laws, on her way to make her daily report to the police station in Johannesburg. For nine years she has lived with her freedom restricted in one way or another. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

9-Year-Old Area Pianist Called Prodigy

By DIANNE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

What is in store for a nine - year - old after he begins performing with symphony orchestras?

Doors to a certain measure of fame have already opened for a child prodigy from Grayson and those who have heard him play the piano expect many more doors to be opening for the youngster.

Willis Delony, a third grader at Grayson Elementeary School, auditioned recently for a spot in the program of the New Orleans Summer Pops — the summer program of New Orleans Symphony Orchestra — and won it.

It was no surprise to those who knew him. He had already performed with the Northwestern State College Symphony and had been scheduled to perform with the Northeast Louisiana Symphony recently until that concert was cancelled.

The child has taken piano lessons for only two years, one and a half years of which has been spent under the training of a Monroe piano instructor, J. Hamilton Monroe.

NEW ORLEANS

The prodigy will perform with the New Orleans Summer Pops on June 24 and 25, the opening nights, in the municipal auditorium.

Season tickets for the concerts may be obtained from the Summer Pops office, 203 Gallier Hall, New Orleans 70130, and individual concert tickets went on sale June 6 at Werlein's in New Orleans.

Also to appear in the opening concerts with Willis are the Four Freshmen, stars of the show.

In his short career as concert pianist, Willis has astounded his audiences.

REAL MUSICIAN

Dr. Joseph Carlucci, head of the music department at Northwestern, with whom he has performed, said, "He was very well received and earned a standing ovation.

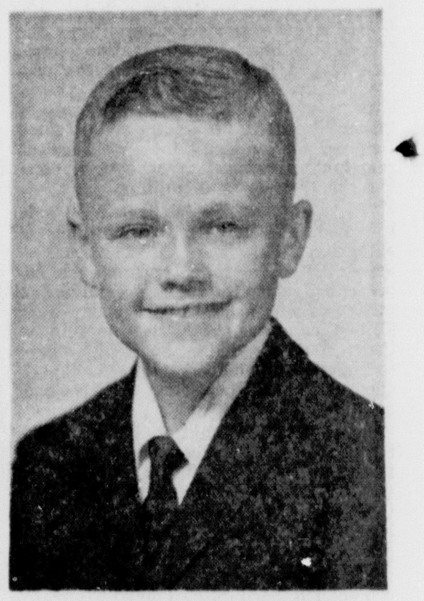
"The audience in our packed auditorium had come to see an eight - year - old (he was eight when he played the Dec. 10, 1965 concert at Natchitoches) play, but I don't think they expected to see a musician as well."

Willis played the first movement of Joseph Hayden's Piano Concerto in D Major, with the NSC Symphony Orchestra in a formal evening concert.

"The thing that amazed all of us about this boy was his poise," said Dr. Carlucci. "The young fellow particularly impressed me because he knew his music so well. He responded to me as a director with admirable maturity. He was always ready to begin, when I cued him at rehearsals and during the performance. Very few children could manage all that smoothness.

'AMAZING JOB'

"For his age, he did an amazing job, technically, and played evenly. He, of course, had to make some technical adjustments, though," Dr. Carlucci laughed. "He couldn't make the octaves (eight notes apart on the piano keys) with his small hands, so he had to break the notes. And he played the entire concert without reaching the foot pedals. His legs were too short."



WILLIS DELONY

The NSC music professor said he heard of young Willis through Monroe, and came here to hear the musician play.

"I hired him for our concert after two minutes of hearing him play," he said.

LITTLE LIVE WIRE

Those who think of talented youngsters usually think of bookish little boys and girls, but Willis is "completely extroverted," his mother said.

Willis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Delony, and has a 13 - year - old brother, Dennis.

An honor student (all A's) at Grayson Elementary, Willis especially loves history, biology and reading, Mrs. Delony said.

"He reads an awful lot, and likes the biographies of musicians," she said.

The youngster plays shortstop and pitcher on a Little League Team in Columbia during the summer and loves baseball. "He's a very normal little live wire his mother said.

She said Willis "is really looking forward to his concert in New Orleans."

"He loves to play his pieces," she said, "but he wouldn't be a little boy if he didn't have to be pushed at times to practice the routine work like running the scales. He has to be reminded to do that at times, but his music comes naturally to him, and he loves it."

Mrs. Delony said her son first began to play the piano a little over two years ago. When he began to play pieces by ear, the family realized he should develop his musical talent.

"We took him to Mrs. Doris Pollard at Columbia, at first," Mrs. Delony said, "but after two or three lessons, she realized he was better than the average player, so she suggested we find someone with more experience than herself. Then we took him to Mrs. DeWanna Pitts at Monroe. After she taught him a few months, she recommended Mr. Monroe. He has brought out a lot in Willis and we're happy with the results."

Commenting on his student, Monroe said, "There's no question that he's a child prodigy. He has the ability to go on to greater fame, and I believe he will."

CLEANUP PROJECTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says almost half a billion dollars is now at work in projects to clean up the waters of New York State.

He said grants to municipalities are providing $224 million in the construction of sewage treatment plants and waste intercepter systems. The state is setting up another $126 million for three more state aid pure water programs.

CURTAIN CALL

By CURTIS RAPE

Tryouts for our summer children's play, "Maggie's Magic Teapot," will be held at Strauss Playhouse this afternoon, 2 - 5. The production will be directed by Dr. George Brian, of the Northeast Louisiana State College Speech faculty, who has directed numerous successful children's plays at the theater.

The play, an Irish fantasy with music, has several character parts for adults and three parts for teenagers from junior high through high school age. If you haven't participated in a children's play, come on out and give it a try. You'll find yourself in for a rare and rewarding treat.

Assisting Dr. Brian with the production will be Miss Gertrude Sandrock, musical director, and Claude Fuller, stage manager. "Maggie's Magic Teapot" is scheduled to open about the middle of July.

CHILDREN'S THEATER

Murray Burfford, Children's Theater School director, ended the school year's activities last week with parties for students, their parents, and their guests. Highlighting the parties was the presentation of creative dramas, which the children had composed during the year.

According to Miss Burfford, "The Theater School had a most successful first year. The effort of all workers and progress of the students made the year most rewarding."

Executive Director George Black and wife Margaret journeyed this past weekend to Jackson, Mississippi, to the Jackson Little Theatre Association Conference.

George was honored by being asked to conduct several lecture sessions during the conference. He spoke on three aspects of modern theater -lighting, character makeup, and acting and directing.

A total of 17 Mississippi Little Theatres were represented at the conference.

While in Jackson, George visited the new Jackson Little Theater Building. He reported it as a really nice and attractive addition to the Jackson community.

We all wish Jo Brian a speedy recovery from her surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, Houston, Texas. Jo has given much time and effort in our Theater and will be best remembered for her recent rolls in "The Solid Gold Cadillac," "Janus," and "Ten Little Indians." We'll look forward to seeing Jo grace our stage again real soon.

Be sure to watch next week for exciting news about our big summer musical, "The Music Man."

"Gidget Goes to Rome" — AYC — Cynthia Carol in 1963 edition of the Gidget series of teen - age adventures.
Thursday through Saturday: "Pink Panther" — AMY — David Niven, Peter Sellers in satire on detective dramas. In color. A detective, ridiculously portrayed, chases a suave jewel thief in this gleeful take - off on the typical French bedroom farce.
"Shot In the Dark" — NRA — Peter Sellers and Elke Sommer in romantic comedy.

PARAMOUNT

Sunday through Thursday: "Blindfold" — AYC — Rock Hudson, Claudia Cardinale in suspense film. A psychiatrist is taken blindfolded to a secret hideaway by army security to treat a former patient, now a government scientist. Later, C.I.A. agents tell him the man has been kidnapped and ask for his cooperation in finding the hideaway. With the help of the scientist's sister, he attempts to rescue the scientist. Features at 1:15, 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, and 9:15 p.m. In theater color.
Starts Friday: "Big Hand for the Little Lady" — AMY — Henry Fonda, Joanne Woodward, Jason Robards, Kevin McCarthy in unusual Western. A once - a - year poker game in Laredo, Tex., which has become an obsession with the five wealthiest men in the territory, is the scene. Fonda plays a settler who is passing through town with his wife and young son. He is also a compulsive gambler who not only gets into the game but puts the family savings into the pot. When he is taken ill at a critical point, his wife demands that she be taught the game in order to play out the hand and try to win back their money. In theater color.
Coming Soon: "Nevada Smith" —A— Steve McQueen, Brian Keith in odyssey of revenge. Young, naive man spends five years tracking down three killers who murdered his parents. He turns into a hardened gunman in the process. In theater color.
Tuesday Special: "Popeye Prize Parties" — C— This week's feature is "The Big Circus," plus two cartoon Doors open 9 a.m.

Now Showing Through Week: "Cast a Giant Shadow" —AMY— Kirk Douglas, Sentia Berger, Angie Dickinson, Yul Brynner, John Wayne in biography of Col. David (Mickey) Marcus, who capped a career in American public affairs by becoming a military adviser in Israel's war for statehood. The Israelis desperately need competent advice in defending themselves from the Arab states and appeal to Col. Marcus for assistance. In color. Features at 1:10, 3:40, 6:10 and 8:40 p.m.

STAR DRIVE IN

Sunday through Tuesday: "Rare Breed" — AYC— James Stewart, Maureen O-Hara, Brian Keith in drama of the early West. The widow of a British cattlebreeder and her daughter attend the 1884 St. Louis Stockman's Exposition in order to sell their prize Hereford bull, which they hope will be crossbred with the traditional Texas longhorn stock, creating a fine new breed. The ladies then accompany a cowhand on the hazardous journey to a ranch owned by the bull's new owner.
"Ski Party" —NRA—
Wednesday through Friday: "Sands of the Kalahari"—A— Five men and a woman who attempt to live in the South West African desert.
"Heroes of Telmark" —AMY— Kirk Douglas, Richard Harris in World War II adventure film. Resistance forces seek to sabotage an important enemy plant in Norway. In color.
Saturday: "Under the Yum Yum Tree" —NRA— Jack Lemmon in comedy about the hi - jinks of a bachelor who owns an elaborate apartment.
"Notorious Landlady"—NRA— Kim Novak, Jack Lemmon in 1962 comedy - drama. Man who moves into the apartment rented by a widow falls in love with her, later to suspect she has murdered her husband. He is employed by Scotland Yard to spy on the landlady but he is a reluctant spy.
"Wackiest Ship in the Army" —NRA— Jack Lemmon in 1961 comedy.

STRAND

Sunday through Tuesday: "Promise Her Anything" — AMY — Warren Beatty, Leslie Caron, Keenan Wynn, Hermoine Gingold, Lionel Starder, Bob Cummings in romance. A widow with a young baby moves into a Greenwich Village apartment and takes a secretarial job with a child-psychologist, a most eligible bachelor. The young mother can think of no better solution to her family problems than to capture her employer as a husband. The widow entrusts the baby to the care of a struggling photographer who makes burlesque mail order movies to supplement his meager income.
Wednesday through Friday: "The Naked Prey" — NRA— Cornel Wilde, Ken Gampu, Gert Van Der Berg, Clint Johnston, Don Peters in drama. Weaponless and alone, a bearded man has only 10 seconds to get away from his killers.
Saturday: "Tammy Tell Me True" —AMY— Sandra Dee, John Gavin, Charles Drake, Beulah Bondi, Virginia Grey, Julia Meade in romantic comedy. Riverboat girl falls in love with a professor.
"Island of the Blue Dolphin" —AMY— Celia Kaye, Lary Domasin, Anne Danile and Ronto, son of "the Dog of Flanders," in adventure. In color. Winner of John Newbery medal for most distinguished contribution to American literature for children. Story tells of a girl's incredible adventure on a lost island.

NEW FRETCH BILL

PARIS (UPI) —A group of deputies of President Charles de Gaulle's Union for the New Republic (UNR) said Friday they will introduce a bill in the National Assembly to liberalize France's laws against contraception by permitting birth control clinics to explain contraceptive techniques.

ENVOY REASSIGNED

GENEVA (UPI) —U.S. disarmament negotiator Clare Timberlake has been reassigned to Washington and probably will not be replaced on a permanent basis, it was announced Friday. Timberlake will head a special inter-agency task force on Latin American questions.

CURTAIN CALL

By CURTIS RAPE

Tryouts for our summer children's play, "Maggie's Magic Teapot," will be held at Strauss Playhouse this afternoon, 2 - 5. The production will be directed by Dr. George Brian, of the Northeast Louisiana State College Speech faculty, who has directed numerous successful children's plays at the theater.

The play, an Irish fantasy with music, has several character parts for adults and three parts for teenagers from junior high through high school age. If you haven't participated in a children's play, come on out and give it a try. You'll find yourself in for a rare and rewarding treat.

Assisting Dr. Brian with the production will be Miss Gertrude Sandrock, musical director, and Claude Fuller, stage manager. "Maggie's Magic Teapot" is scheduled to open about the middle of July.

CHILDREN'S THEATER

Murray Burfford, Children's Theater School director, ended the school year's activities last week with parties for students, their parents, and their guests. Highlighting the parties was the presentation of creative dramas, which the children had composed during the year.

According to Miss Burfford, "The Theater School had a most successful first year. The effort of all workers and progress of the students made the year most rewarding."

Executive Director George Black and wife Margaret journeyed this past weekend to Jackson, Mississippi, to the Jackson Little Theatre Association Conference.

George was honored by being asked to conduct several lecture sessions during the conference. He spoke on three aspects of modern theater -lighting, character makeup, and acting and directing.

A total of 17 Mississippi Little Theatres were represented at the conference.

While in Jackson, George visited the new Jackson Little Theater Building. He reported it as a really nice and attractive addition to the Jackson community.

We all wish Jo Brian a speedy recovery from her surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, Houston, Texas. Jo has given much time and effort in our Theater and will be best remembered for her recent rolls in "The Solid Gold Cadillac," "Janus," and "Ten Little Indians." We'll look forward to seeing Jo grace our stage again real soon.

Be sure to watch next week for exciting news about our big summer musical, "The Music Man."

Bill Declaring Public's Right To Know Near Congress Okay

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the bases of U.S. democracy is the right of the people to know what its government is doing. But that hasn't always been the case. Over the years, government agencies have become more and more secretive and the barriers to free access of information have risen ever higher. Now the fight to tear down the barriers is coming to a climax.

By JOHN W. BECKLER and BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP)—A battle most Americans thought was won when the United States was founded is just now moving into its final stage in Congress.

It involves the right of Americans to know what their government is up to. It's a battle against secrecy, locked files and papers stamped "not for public inspection."

It's been a quiet fight, mainly because it has been led by a quiet, careful congressman, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., who has been waging it for 13 of the 14 years he has been in the House.

Now, the House is about to act on the product of the years of study, hearings, investigations and reports—a bill that in some quarters is regarded as a sort of new Magna Charta. It's called the freedom of information bill, or the right to know.

It would require federal agencies to make available information about the rules they operate under, the people who run them and their acts, decisions and policies that affect the public. Large areas of government activity that must of necessity be kept secret would remain secret.

CERTAIN

House approval is believed certain and since the Senate has already passed an identical bill, it should wind up on President Johnson's desk this month.

How it will be received at the White House is not clear. In 1960, as vice president-elect, Johnson told a convention of newspaper editors, "The executive branch must see that there is no smokescreen of secrecy." But the 27 federal departments and agencies that presented their views on the bill to Moss' Government Information subcommittee all opposed its passage.

Norbert A. Schlei, assistant attorney general, who presented the main government case against the bill, said the problem of releasing information to the public was "just too complicated, too ever-changing" to be dealt with in a single piece of legislation.

"If you have enough rules," he said, "'you end up with less information getting out because of the complexity of the rule system you establish.

"I do not think you can take the whole problem, federal government wide, and wrap it up in one package. That is the basic difficulty; that is why the federal agencies are ranged against this proposal."

Another government witness, Fred Burton Smith, acting general council of the Treasury Department, said if the bill was enacted "the executive branch will be unable to execute effectively many of the laws designed to protect the public and will be unable to prevent invasions of privacy and individuals whose records have become government records."

Smith said the exemptions contained in the bill were inadequate and its court provisions inappropriate. In addition, he said, persons without a legitimate interest in a matter would have access to records and the whole package was of doubtful constitutionality.

Far from deterring him, such testimony has only strengthened Moss' feeling that Congress had to do the job of making more information available to the public because the executive branch obviously wouldn't.

The bill he is bringing to the House floor, June 20, is actually a series of amendments to a law Congress passed in 1946 in the belief it was requiring greater disclosure of government information to the public. And that, for Moss, takes care of the constitutional question.

"If we could pass a weak public information law?" he asks, "why can't we strengthen it?"

The 1946 law is open to many interpretations. And the interpretations made by the executive agencies were such that the law, which was intended to open records to the public, is now the chief statutory authority cited by the agencies for keeping them closed.

LAW PERMITS

For the law permits withholding of records if secrecy "is required in the public interest," or if the records relate "solely to the internal management of an agency." If a record doesn't fit those categories it can be kept secret "for good cause found." And even if no good cause is found, the information can only be given to "persons properly and directly concerned."

Between 1946, when that law was enacted, and 1958 the amount of file space occupied by classified documents increased by one million cubic feet, and 24 new terms were added to "top secret," "secret," and "confidential," to hide documents from public view.

They ranged from simple "nonpublic," to, "While this document is unclassified, it is for use only in industry and not for public release."

The law has been used as authority for refusing to disclose cost estimates submitted by unsuccessful bidders on nonsecret contracts, for withholding names and salaries of federal employes, and keeping secret dissenting views of regulatory board members.

It has used by the Navy to stamp its Pentagon telephone directories as another public use on the ground they related to the internal management of the Navy.

S1160, as the bill now before the House is designated, list specifically the kind of information that can be withheld and says the rest must be made available promptly to "any" person.

The areas protected against public disclosure include national defense and foreign policy secrets, investigatory files of law enforcement agencies, trade secrets and information gathered in labor-management mediation efforts, reports of financial institutions, personnel and medical files and papers that are solely for the internal use of an agency.

In the view of many veterans of the fight for the right to know, its most important provision would require an agency to prove in court that it has authority to withhold a document that has been requested. Under the present law the situation is reversed and the person who wants the document has to prove that it is being improperly withheld.

Moss bumped his head on the government secrecy shield during his first term in Congress when the Civil Service Commission refused to open some records to him.

"I decided right then I had better find out about the ground rules," he said in a recent interview. "While I had no background of law, I had served in the California Legislature and such a thing was unheard of."

OPEN RECORDS

(California is one of 37 states that have open records laws).

Moss was given a unique opportunity to learn the ground rules in his second term in Congress when a special subcommittee of the Government Operations Committee was created to investigate complaints that government agencies were blocking the flow of information to the press and public.

Although only a junior member of the committee, Moss already had impressed House leaders with his diligence and seriousness of purpose and he was made chairman of the new subcommittee. His characteristics proved valuable in the venture he undertook.

The right of a free people to know how their elected representatives are conducting the public business has been taken for granted by most Americans. But the Constitution contains no requirement that the government keep the people informed.

The seeds of the secrecy controversy were sown during the first session of Congress when it gave the executive branch, in a "housekeeping" act, authority to prescribe rules for the custody, use and preservation of its records. They flourished in the climate created by the separation of the executive and legislative functions of government.

Since George Washington, presidents have relied on a vague concept called "executive privilege" to withhold from Congress information they feel should be kept secret in the national interest. There are constitutional problems involved in any move by Congress to deal with that issue, and S1160 seeks to avoid it entirely.

Moss, acting on the many complaints he receives, has clashed repeatedly with government officials far down the bureaucratic lines who have claimed "executive privilege" in refusing to divulge information, and in 1962 he succeeded in getting a letter from President John F. Kennedy stating that only the president would invoke it in the future. President Johnson gave Moss a similar pledge last year.

Until the Moss subcommittee entered the field, the battle against government secrecy had been borne mainly by newspapermen. In 1953, the American Society of Newspaper Editors published the first comprehensive study of the growing restrictions on public access to government records — a book by Harold L. Cross entitled "The People's Right to Know."

PROVIDES BASIS

The book provided the basis for the legislative remedy the subcommittee proceeded to seek, and Cross summed up the idea that has driven Moss ever since when he said, "The right to speak and the right to print, without the right to know, are pretty empty."

Now 53, Moss is a short, compactly built man whose hard work and party loyalty have brought him the reward of a leadership position — that of assistant majority whip, fourth in the hierarchy of important House posts. He has a powerful, resonant voice that makes him one of the best orators in the House when he chooses to speak, which is not often.

In public, his grave manner and serious way of speaking sometime make him appear stuffy, but Moss is known to his associates as a warm, friendly man with an admirable sense of duty. He takes little part in Washington's social life and spends most of his free time with his family — a wife and two teen-age daughters — and in his basement workshop making furniture.

When he took over the subcommittee Moss had little knowledge of any information problem. He had sold cars and real estate in Sacramento before entering politics and four years as a state legislator had left him unaware of what was happening in Washington.

Moss learned quickly, however, as the subcommittee opened hearings in 1955, calling on newsmen, lawyers, professors and information specialists in government.

Dodgers Defeat Giants, 4-2

Monroe Morning World

SPORTS

Eight-B Sunday, June 12, 1966

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Davis singled home one run and scored another on Lou Johnson's squeeze bunt in the ninth inning, lifting the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

The triumph gave the first-place Dodgers a one-game lead over the second-place Giants in the National League.

Jim Gilliam led off the ninth with a walk and was sacrificed to second. Frank Linzy retired Wes Parker on a fly, but Davis followed with a single to right field for the run that broke a 2-2 deadlock.

Davis wound at second on the throw-in, raced to third as Tommy Davis singled and scored when Johnson bunted safely along the third base line.

The Giants threatened in their half of the ninth when Don Landrum led off with a single and Willie McCovey reached first when Willie Davis dropped his fly ball. But Jim Brewer got Ollie Brown and Bob Barton on flies to Davis, then struck out pinch hitter Ossie Virgil.

North Produces 3 Most Valuable Men

RUSTON (Special) — The northern section of the state produced outstanding performers in three divisions while the southern part copped the overall team title in the State Joycee Junior Champ meet here Friday.

St. Bernard of New Orleans with 48½ points scored in the three divisions followed by Ruston with 24.

Host Ruston produced the outstanding performer in the 12 - 13 division in Kim Mitchell while Rodney Mize of Jonesboro - Hodge was awarded the honor for the 14 - 15 year old athletes.

West Monroe's Larry Beebe, a double winner like Mitchell and Mize, was named most outstanding in the top division, 16-18, where athletes were competing for a chance in the National meet to be held in Denver, Colo.

Shreveport followed Ruston scoring with 22 points. Jonesboro had 21 and Minden scored 20.

In all approximately 200 athletes from the various sections of the state covered by the 30 Jaycee chapters participated.

Mitchell won the broad jump with a 16 - 11 leap and came back to win the 220 dash in 25.8.

Mize also won the broad jump, in 19-7⅞ and come back to outdo all triple jumpers with a 40 - 10 leap.

Beebe, unpressured in either race, won the half mile in 1:58.9 and the quarter dash in 50.8.

West Monroe had another winner in Larry Ashley, a star pole vaulter who is entering his senior year of high school. Ashly won his speciality in 13 feet over Minden's Ronnie Chandler.

The top winners in each division were presented medals.

Coleman's Hit G-ives Reds Split

NEW YORK (AP) — Gordie Coleman's two-run pinch single keyed a three-run uprising in the 10th inning, giving the Cincinnati Reds a 5-2 victory over New York and a split of their doubleheader Saturday night.

The Mets won the first game 4-0 behind Dennis Ribant's five-hitter.

Coleman's bases-loaded single off Dick Selma, the third Met pitcher in the nightcap, broke a 2-2 tie. Selma then wild pitched another run across.

Selma replaced Larry Bearnarth in the 10th after one-out singles by Deron Johnson and Leo Cardenas. He walked pinch hitter Art Shamsky, filling the bases and setting the stage for Coleman.

Run-scoring singles by Tommy Harper and pinch hitter Vada Pinson with two out in the ninth pulled the Reds even in the nightcap and snapped a string of 28 consecutive scoreless innings by New York pitching — a club record.

Ribant's shutout victory followed a 5-0 four-hitter by Dick Rusteck Friday night. Rob Gardner then blanked the Reds on six hits through eight innings of Saturday's nightcap.

After getting two outs in the ninth, Gardner walked Jim Coker and yielded a single to pinch hitter Tommy Helms. Bearnarth replaced Gardner and Harper and Pinson came through with successive singles to left, tying the score.

Ken Boyer's two-run homer off Jim O'Toole in the third had given New York a 2-0 lead.

In the first game, the Mets gave Ribant all the help he needed with two runs in the fourth on singles by Ed Kranepool, John Stephenson and Ron Swoboda and Helms' error.

Johnny Lewis singled in the fifth and scored the third run, then wrapped it up with a seventh inning homer.

Gary Peters Walks Twins To 4-3 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Peters walked in what proved to be the winning run as the Minnesota Twins whipped Chicago 4-3 Saturday night for their seventh victory in as many meetings with the White Sox this season.

Minnesota jumped in front on Harmon Killebrew's run-scoring single in the first inning and Bob Allison's fourth homer in the second inning for a 2-0 lead.

Chicago cut the margin in the fifth on a double by Lee Elia and a single by pitcher Gary Peters, but the Twins locked it up in the seventh with two more runs.

Crossett Whips Beekman, 5-4

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Crossett came from behind to whip Beekman, 5 - 4 behind Gayle Deal and remain in contention for the Ark - La League lead.

Deal went the distance on the mound and slapped a solo homer and two other hits in support of the win.

Crossett tagged Paul Wallace, who was relieved by James Griffis in the sixth, for the loss.

Tommy Culp led Beekman at the plate with two hits, including a thre run homer.

Crossett was down, 4 - 0 in the third and came back to win with a run in the seventh.

Farmerville and Crossett are 2 - 0 in loop play and Bastrop and Beekman are now 0 - 2.

Locals Win Two From Olla Team

Burger Chef trimmed Le Chapeau of Olla in a fast pitch doubleheader Saturday night, 9-1 and 8 - 3.

Donna hurled the Monroe hosts to a 9 - 1 win in the opener on a three hitter as Wood and Carter each connected for two hits each. The Chefmen collected three runs in the fourth and six in the sixth.

Barnhill took the opening loss and Taylor got two hits while Davis doubled.

Ganaway gave up five hits in the nightcap but picked up two himself to aid the 8 - 3 victory.

A six run first inning got the Monroe squad off to a rolling start. Groves, Windham and Danna each has one hit for Burger Chef.

Mickey Wright In Front By 6

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Veteran Mickey Wright turned in a four-under par 68 Saturday in the Bluegross Invitational Golf Tournament for a strong six-stroke lead going into today's final round.

Miss Wright hit 16 of 18 greens on the 72-par Hunting Creek Country Club course. She was off fast with an eagle three on the second hole.

Carol Mann moved up from third to second place with a 71. She chipped in from 45 feet on the 18th hole for her one-under round and 145 total.

Close behind Miss Mann with 146 each, were Clifford Ann Creed and Kathy Whitworth.

Fred Marti Leads Buick Open By Two After Firing 3-Under

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Fred Marti put his hot putter to work again Saturday and fired a three-under-par 69 for the second round lead in the $100,000 Buick Open Golf Tournament.

Marti, tied at 70 with Phil Rodgers and Jim Ferrier for the first day lead, needed just 28 putts on his round and finished with a 20-foot birdie effort on the 18th hole.

His five-under par 139 gave him a two-stroke edge over Roger Ginsberg of Riverdale, N.Y., who topped the early finishers Saturday with a 70 and a 141 total.

Marti, of Baytown, Tex., said he got a big lift when he pitched to within one inch of the cup on the 464-yard fifth hole, just missing the birdie.

Following Marti and Ginsberg were Rodgers, Tom Wieskopf and former champion Julius Boros, who who here in 1963.

All had, etc.

All had 143s for the two rounds.

Defending champion Tony Lema, after his third straight Buick Open title, charged back into contention with a 66, giving him a two-round total of even par 144.

Bob Verwey and Doug Sanders also checked in at 144.

The 36-hole windup of the tourney on the 7,280-yard Warwick Hill course is scheduled today.

Harold Henning, Dudley Wysong and Don Fairfield were others matching even par.

Ginsberg, 27, who passed up a professional baseball offer to turn to golf, said:

"I really didn't hit the ball very well — my irons were bad. But I was scoring well. The putting was good and I was getting very close on my chip shot."

Ferrier skied almost out of contention when he shot a second round 79 after a miserable seven-over-par 43 front nine and came in at 149.

Lema said his first thought after his 66 was that he had to cancel airline reservations and unpack four suitcases.

"My putting was simply atrocious Friday," Lema said. "It made me lose confidence in my game. When you do that, you try too many other things which puts you in more trouble."

It took a score of 151 to survive the cut of the low 70 players, plus ties. Two eliminated were Mike Souchak, the champion here in 1960, and Bill Collins, the 1962 titlist, who were off the pace with 155.

Lionel Hebert also was eliminated when he shot a second round 80 for 158.

State Amateur Meet

Clayton Cole Moves Into Second Position

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—Defending champion Shirley Picard scrambled in and out of trouble Saturday in the third round of the 46th annual Louisiana State Amateur Golf Tournament but still maintained a four-stroke lead.

The Lafayette police detective posted a four-over-par 76 on the Lake Charles Country Club Golf Course to go along with his previous rounds of 69 and 71 for a 54-hole total of par 216.

Picard, who was assessed a two-stroke penalty on the par five 11th hole for removing an obstacle from the rough, was plagued by putts that rimmed the cup but would not fall.

Taking over the runner-up spot was 1964 champion Clayton Cole of Monroe with a 54-hole total of 220. He toured the course in a five-under-par 67, the lowest round of the tournament.

Cole had one of the few eagles in the tournament, taking a three on the par-five 480-yard 11th hole, the same hole that spelled trouble for Picard.

Alone at 221 was Mike Keck of New Orleans, who came in with a one-under-par 71 while Lake Charles's Tommy Elkins and Shreveport's John Bird were paired at 222.

The 72-hole tournament ends Sunday. The top ten finishers will make up the amateur team for the Louisiana Cup matches which will be held in August over this same course.

Pair Powers Chicago Past Astros, 8-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Three triples by Ernie Banks and a two-run homer by Byron Browne powered the Chicago Cubs to a 8-2 victory over Houston Saturday night.

Banks batted in three runs and scored another to give Billy Hands, who holds both Cub victories over Houston, his fifth victory of the season against four defeats.

However, Hands needed help in the seventh inning. John Bateman's eighth homer with the bases empty, Bob Aspromonte's double, Bill Heath's single and a walk brought Billy Hoeft in.

The Cubs shelled Bob Bruce for five runs in the third and fourth, including Browne's ninth home run of the season.

Chicago got two more runs off reliever Gary Kroll in the fifth.

Tom Smith Tops World 220 Mark

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Smith of San Jose State ran the fastest 220-yard dash in the world and Hungarian Gyula Zsivotsky tossed the hammer for an American mark Saturday night at the Sacramento Invitational Track and Field Championships.

Smith ran a blistering 220 around a curve in 20 seconds flat to better the world record of 20.2 set by Henry Carr of Arizona State in 1964.

"I really didn't get off to a great jump," Smith said. "I've had better starts." Today will be Smiths 22nd birthday.

Last month, Smith ran the 220 straight away in 19.5 which is pending for another world record.

Zsivotsky's longest toss of the evening was 235 feet, 10½ inches.

Indians Win As McDowell Beats Solons

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland ace Slam McDowell posted his first victory since May 1 but needed relief help from Bob Allen and Dick Radatz in the Indians' 6-4 victory over Washington Saturday.

The Senators, victim of a no-hitter by Cleveland's Sonny Siebert Friday night, were able to collect only one hit off McDowell over the first five innings. But the Indians' left-hander was forced out in the sixth when Frank Howard homered.

McDowell, who has been bothered by arm trouble, was making his first start since May 25. He allowed only three hits and wound up with his fifth victory against one loss.

The Indians put it out of reach with two runs in the fourth and a three-run sixth inning uprising.

Fred Whitfield's single, a double by Rocky Colavito, Dick Howser's sacrifice fly and a single by Joe Azcue produced the two fourth-inning runs. Jim Landis' bases-loaded single keyed the sixth-inning rally. Chico Salmon singled in the other run.

The Senators loaded the bases with one out in the ninth and Radatz came on and struck out Don Lock for the second out. He was touched for a run-scoring single by Howard, then ended it by striking out Jim King.

Dodgers Defeat Giants, 4-2

Monroe Morning World

SPORTS

Eight-B Sunday, June 12, 1966

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Davis singled home one run and scored another on Lou Johnson's squeeze bunt in the ninth inning, lifting the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

The triumph gave the first-place Dodgers a one-game lead over the second-place Giants in the National League.

Jim Gilliam led off the ninth with a walk and was sacrificed to second. Frank Linzy retired Wes Parker on a fly, but Davis followed with a single to right field for the run that broke a 2-2 deadlock.

Davis wound at second on the throw-in, raced to third as Tommy Davis singled and scored when Johnson bunted safely along the third base line.

The Giants threatened in their half of the ninth when Don Landrum led off with a single and Willie McCovey reached first when Willie Davis dropped his fly ball. But Jim Brewer got Ollie Brown and Bob Barton on flies to Davis, then struck out pinch hitter Ossie Virgil.

North Produces 3 Most Valuable Men

RUSTON (Special) — The northern section of the state produced outstanding performers in three divisions while the southern part copped the overall team title in the State Joycee Junior Champ meet here Friday.

St. Bernard of New Orleans with 48½ points scored in the three divisions followed by Ruston with 24.

Host Ruston produced the outstanding performer in the 12 - 13 division in Kim Mitchell while Rodney Mize of Jonesboro - Hodge was awarded the honor for the 14 - 15 year old athletes.

West Monroe's Larry Beebe, a double winner like Mitchell and Mize, was named most outstanding in the top division, 16-18, where athletes were competing for a chance in the National meet to be held in Denver, Colo.

Shreveport followed Ruston scoring with 22 points. Jonesboro had 21 and Minden scored 20.

In all approximately 200 athletes from the various sections of the state covered by the 30 Jaycee chapters participated.

Mitchell won the broad jump with a 16 - 11 leap and came back to win the 220 dash in 25.8.

Mize also won the broad jump, in 19-7⅞ and come back to outdo all triple jumpers with a 40 - 10 leap.

Beebe, unpressured in either race, won the half mile in 1:58.9 and the quarter dash in 50.8.

West Monroe had another winner in Larry Ashley, a star pole vaulter who is entering his senior year of high school. Ashly won his speciality in 13 feet over Minden's Ronnie Chandler.

The top winners in each division were presented medals.

Coleman's Hit G-ives Reds Split

NEW YORK (AP) — Gordie Coleman's two-run pinch single keyed a three-run uprising in the 10th inning, giving the Cincinnati Reds a 5-2 victory over New York and a split of their doubleheader Saturday night.

The Mets won the first game 4-0 behind Dennis Ribant's five-hitter.

Coleman's bases-loaded single off Dick Selma, the third Met pitcher in the nightcap, broke a 2-2 tie. Selma then wild pitched another run across.

Selma replaced Larry Bearnarth in the 10th after one-out singles by Deron Johnson and Leo Cardenas. He walked pinch hitter Art Shamsky, filling the bases and setting the stage for Coleman.

Run-scoring singles by Tommy Harper and pinch hitter Vada Pinson with two out in the ninth pulled the Reds even in the nightcap and snapped a string of 28 consecutive scoreless innings by New York pitching — a club record.

Ribant's shutout victory followed a 5-0 four-hitter by Dick Rusteck Friday night. Rob Gardner then blanked the Reds on six hits through eight innings of Saturday's nightcap.

After getting two outs in the ninth, Gardner walked Jim Coker and yielded a single to pinch hitter Tommy Helms. Bearnarth replaced Gardner and Harper and Pinson came through with successive singles to left, tying the score.

Ken Boyer's two-run homer off Jim O'Toole in the third had given New York a 2-0 lead.

In the first game, the Mets gave Ribant all the help he needed with two runs in the fourth on singles by Ed Kranepool, John Stephenson and Ron Swoboda and Helms' error.

Johnny Lewis singled in the fifth and scored the third run, then wrapped it up with a seventh inning homer.

Gary Peters Walks Twins To 4-3 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Peters walked in what proved to be the winning run as the Minnesota Twins whipped Chicago 4-3 Saturday night for their seventh victory in as many meetings with the White Sox this season.

Minnesota jumped in front on Harmon Killebrew's run-scoring single in the first inning and Bob Allison's fourth homer in the second inning for a 2-0 lead.

Chicago cut the margin in the fifth on a double by Lee Elia and a single by pitcher Gary Peters, but the Twins locked it up in the seventh with two more runs.

Crossett Whips Beekman, 5-4

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Crossett came from behind to whip Beekman, 5 - 4 behind Gayle Deal and remain in contention for the Ark - La League lead.

Deal went the distance on the mound and slapped a solo homer and two other hits in support of the win.

Crossett tagged Paul Wallace, who was relieved by James Griffis in the sixth, for the loss.

Tommy Culp led Beekman at the plate with two hits, including a thre run homer.

Crossett was down, 4 - 0 in the third and came back to win with a run in the seventh.

Farmerville and Crossett are 2 - 0 in loop play and Bastrop and Beekman are now 0 - 2.

Locals Win Two From Olla Team

Burger Chef trimmed Le Chapeau of Olla in a fast pitch doubleheader Saturday night, 9-1 and 8 - 3.

Donna hurled the Monroe hosts to a 9 - 1 win in the opener on a three hitter as Wood and Carter each connected for two hits each. The Chefmen collected three runs in the fourth and six in the sixth.

Barnhill took the opening loss and Taylor got two hits while Davis doubled.

Ganaway gave up five hits in the nightcap but picked up two himself to aid the 8 - 3 victory.

A six run first inning got the Monroe squad off to a rolling start. Groves, Windham and Danna each has one hit for Burger Chef.

Mickey Wright In Front By 6

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Veteran Mickey Wright turned in a four-under par 68 Saturday in the Bluegross Invitational Golf Tournament for a strong six-stroke lead going into today's final round.

Miss Wright hit 16 of 18 greens on the 72-par Hunting Creek Country Club course. She was off fast with an eagle three on the second hole.

Carol Mann moved up from third to second place with a 71. She chipped in from 45 feet on the 18th hole for her one-under round and 145 total.

Close behind Miss Mann with 146 each, were Clifford Ann Creed and Kathy Whitworth.

Cole Captures Amateur Title In Scotland

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Bobby Cole, 18-year-old protege of Gary Player, defeated Ronnie Shade of Scotland 3 and 2 Saturday for the British Amateur golf title in a final round cut to 18 holes because of midweek rains.

Cole, never behind in the abbreviated final, started his winning surge on the 14th hole by canning a 12-foot putt for a birdie 4 and a 1-up edge.

He took the 15th with a par and closed out the match on the 16th when Shade, a British Walker Cup player, drove into a trap and came out poorly.

In the morning's semifinal rounds over the 7,059-yard Carnoustie course, where par is 71, Cole defeated Henri De Lamaze of Paris 2 and 1 and Shade eliminated Gordon Cosh of Scotland by the same score.

Rains in midweek had washed out one-half day's play, and officials cut the final round to 18 holes for the first time since 1895.

The last Americans were eliminated in Friday morning's fifth round.

Cole joined John Beharrell of England as the youngster players ever to win the title. Beharrell was 18 years and 31 days old when he won in 1956. That was Cole's exact age Saturday.

Ryun Takes Mile Run In 4:02.8

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)— Jim Ryun, the fabulous Kansas freshman, slowed to a 4:02.8 mile effort Saturday and obviously was just breezing after his world record half-mile feat in the U.S. Track and Field Federation's National Meet.

The mile was run in two sections, with Ryun winning by 15 yards over Notre Dame's Ed Dean. Dick Romo of the University of Texas took the first section in 4:03.6.

The 19-year-old Ryun, world's second fastest miler, streaked Friday to a 1:44.9 half-mile triumph, shattering the world 880 mark of 1:45.1 set by New Zealand's Peter Snell in 1962.

Last Saturday, Ryun ran a 3:53.7 mile at Los Angeles, missing by one-tenth of a second the 3:53.6 world record set by Michael Jazy of France.

Compared with his great mile at Los Angeles, Ryun was clocked Saturday at 2:04.2 for his final half against 1:55.2 in nearly matching Jazy's world record. For his opening half-mile Saturday, Ryun hustled to a 1:58.6, one-tenth of a second slower than his opening half of 1:58.5 at Los Angeles.

Ryun, who later said "I'm a little bit tired today, I'm afraid," slackened to a closing half time of 2:04.2 compared with his 1:55.2 final half at Los Angeles.

His coach, Bob Timmons, said Ryun "just ran to win the mile today, thinking he could help in the closing mile relay on which the team title might depend."

It turned out the Jayhawk Track Club directed by Timmons didn't need help in the mile relay, in which Ryun ran an unofficial 47.8 quarter as his quartet finished third.

The Jayhawk Club won the Federation title with 77 points, followed by the University of New Mexico with 55 and Brigham Young with 50.

The two-day meet produced eight men's meet records, including three in Saturday's closing session — in the triple jump, high jump and discus, with the 100-yard dash meet record of 9.4 being tied.

As he predicted after his half-mile Friday, Ryun was not close in the mile to the federation meet record of 3:56.4 set by UCLA's Bob Day last year.

Brigham Young's Bob Delaney tried to serve as a "rabbit" for Ryun, stepping out a fast pace the first half-mile and trailed by Ryun in second.

But Delaney was forced to quit entering the final quarter and Ryun had to set his own pace the rest of the way. Dean, trailing well behind, finished second in this section with 4:05.0.

Third behind Ryun and Romo in the composite ranking of times for both sections was Big Ten champion Craig Boydston of Northwestern with 4:04.1.

The 100-yard dash produced a meet record-matching 9.4 victory by Murray State's Jim Freeman. Rene Matison of New Mexico, who was clocked in an unofficial world record-equalling 9.1 last Sunday, placed second with 9.5.

Ryun's splits for his comparatively slow 4:02.8 mile triumph were 57.9 for the quarter, 1:58.6 for the half, and 3:02.8 for the three-quarters.

In women's competition, Georgia Johnson, 17, a junior at Fidelity High School in Houston, Tex., scored her fourth victory of the two-day meet with an 11.1 triumph in the 100-yard dash.

Friday, Miss Johnson won the long jump, 220-dash and 80-meter hurdles, setting meet records in all three events.

Fred Marti Leads Buick Open By Two After Firing 3-Under

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Fred Marti put his hot putter to work again Saturday and fired a three-under-par 69 for the second round lead in the $100,000 Buick Open Golf Tournament.

Marti, tied at 70 with Phil Rodgers and Jim Ferrier for the first day lead, needed just 28 putts on his round and finished with a 20-foot birdie effort on the 18th hole.

His five-under par 139 gave him a two-stroke edge over Roger Ginsberg of Riverdale, N.Y., who topped the early finishers Saturday with a 70 and a 141 total.

Marti, of Baytown, Tex., said he got a big lift when he pitched to within one inch of the cup on the 464-yard fifth hole, just missing the birdie.

Following Marti and Ginsberg were Rodgers, Tom Wieskopf and former champion Julius Boros, who who here in 1963.

All had, etc.

All had 143s for the two rounds.

Defending champion Tony Lema, after his third straight Buick Open title, charged back into contention with a 66, giving him a two-round total of even par 144.

Bob Verwey and Doug Sanders also checked in at 144.

The 36-hole windup of the tourney on the 7,280-yard Warwick Hill course is scheduled today.

Harold Henning, Dudley Wysong and Don Fairfield were others matching even par.

Ginsberg, 27, who passed up a professional baseball offer to turn to golf, said:

"I really didn't hit the ball very well — my irons were bad. But I was scoring well. The putting was good and I was getting very close on my chip shot."

Ferrier skied almost out of contention when he shot a second round 79 after a miserable seven-over-par 43 front nine and came in at 149.

Lema said his first thought after his 66 was that he had to cancel airline reservations and unpack four suitcases.

"My putting was simply atrocious Friday," Lema said. "It made me lose confidence in my game. When you do that, you try too many other things which puts you in more trouble."

It took a score of 151 to survive the cut of the low 70 players, plus ties. Two eliminated were Mike Souchak, the champion here in 1960, and Bill Collins, the 1962 titlist, who were off the pace with 155.

Lionel Hebert also was eliminated when he shot a second round 80 for 158.

State Amateur Meet

Clayton Cole Moves Into Second Position

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)— Defending champion Shirley Picard scrambled in and out of trouble Saturday in the third round of the 46th annual Louisiana State Amateur Golf Tournament but still maintained a four-stroke lead.

The Lafayette police detective posted a four-over-par 76 on the Lake Charles Country Club Golf Course to go along with his previous rounds of 69 and 71 for a 54-hole total of par 216.

Picard, who was assessed a two-stroke penalty on the par five 11th hole for removing an obstacle from the rough, was plagued by putts that rimmed the cup but would not fall.

Taking over the runner-up spot was 1964 champion Clayton Cole of Monroe with a 54-hole total of 220. He toured the course in a five-under-par 67, the lowest round of the tournament.

Cole had one of the few eagles in the tournament, taking a three on the par-five 480-yard 11th hole, the same hole that spelled trouble for Picard.

Alone at 221 was Mike Keck of New Orleans, who came in with a one-under-par 71 while Lake Charles's Tommy Elkins and Shreveport's John Bird were paired at 222.

The 72-hole tournament ends Sunday. The top ten finishers will make up the amateur team for the Louisiana Cup matches which will be held in August over this same course.

Pair Powers Chicago Past Astros, 8-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Three triples by Ernie Banks and a two-run homer by Byron Browne powered the Chicago Cubs to a 8-2 victory over Houston Saturday night.

Banks batted in three runs and scored another to give Billy Hands, who holds both Cub victories over Houston, his fifth victory of the season against four defeats.

However, Hands needed help in the seventh inning. John Bateman's eighth homer with the bases empty, Bob Aspromonte's double, Bill Heath's single and a walk brought Billy Hoeft in.

The Cubs shelled Bob Bruce for five runs in the third and fourth, including Browne's ninth home run of the season.

Chicago got two more runs off reliever Gary Kroll in the fifth.

Groseclose Will Lecture Again For Northeast Coaching Clinic

Northeast State's successful track coach, Bob Groseclose, will again lecture on the sport at the College's annual Summer Coaching Clinic here June 24-25.

The clinic, free to coaches, trainers, physicians, officials, athletes and other interested persons, is sponsored by Northeast's Department of Health and Physical Education, the Athletic Department and the Ouachita Parish Medical Society. Jack Rowan of the H&PE faculty is clinic director.

Lecturers previously announced are Football Coach Glenn Dobbs of Tulsa, Basketball Coach Bob Bass of National Association for Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) champion Oklahoma Baptist, and Oklahoma University trainer Ken Rawlinson.

Groseclose, also on the lecture staff of last year's clinic, has just concluded his sixth year as Northeast's track and cross country coach. During that time he has coached some of the South's finest track teams and some of the world's finest athletes.

His track teams have won three Gulf States Conference championships and, with schedules that always include more relay and invitational meets involving large numbers of teams than dual meets, have a record of 47 victories in 71 meets. His 1962 Indian team was undefeated.

Among the outstanding athletes who have been coached by Groseclose at Northeast are the Styron twins, Dave and Don, John Pennel and Roger Morgan. Dave Stryon at one time shared to American sprint records, Don is still the world record holder in the 220 - yard low hurdles, Pennel held or shared the world pole vault record seven times and was the first man to scale 17 feet, and Morgan was twice NAIA champion in the 120 - year high hurdles.

Four Groseclose - coached Indian cross country teams have won GSC championships.

Prior to joining the Northeast staff in 1960, Groseclose was coach at Abilene High School in his native Texas. He guided Abilene teams to victory in 51 of 65 meets and won three state championships. His winning percentage in track and cross country at Abilene and Northeast is an even 700.

In 1965, Groseclose was chosen by the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union to coach an American team in an international meet in Brazil.

Groseclose is a graduate of Texas Christian where he lettered in football, basketball and track.

BOB GROSECLOSE, Northeast track coach who has enjoyed tremendous success during his six years at NLSC and at Abilene High School in Texas prior to coming here, will be among lecturers for the annual Summer Coaching Clinic at Northeast June 24-25.

No-Hit Hurler Once Felt Basketball Held Future

CLEVELAND (AP) — Wilfred Charles (Sonny) Sibert, the first Cleveland Indian pitcher to hurl a no-hitter since Bob Feller had his third one 15 years ago, once figured his future in sports was in professional basketball.

"I thought I was more of a basketball player than a baseball player," said Sonny Saturday. He has the build for a pro cager. His dark, curly hair is 6-foot-3 off the floor and he weighs a hefty 197.

At Bayless High School in South St. Louis, Siebert was an all-state guard on the basketball team, and he played later at the University of Missouri.

In 1960 Siebert had a three-week tryout with the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association. It was this that convinced him to give up the idea of playing for pay on the hardwood.

Actually, Siebert had cast his lot with baseball two years earlier, and had laid off basketball to play winter baseball. The tryout with the Hawks just settled the decision for Siebert who at the time was in the throes of switching from outfield to pitcher.

In his junior and final year at Missouri, Siebert played first base well enough to make the college all-star team.

Along with basketball, the 29-year-old Siebert has given up another activity of which he was fond in his college days — painting.

"I was a physical education major and an art minor," Sonny said. He said he liked to sketch landscapes and objects, rather than people, and his paintings were "not this modern stuff."

"I tried to make things look like they do," he explained. "Now, maybe I'll get back to doing something in art again — my wife's talking about some paintings for the house."

Siebert's wife, the former Carol Ann Buckner, lived only two blocks from the South St. Louis home where Sonny's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred C. Siebert Sr., still reside. But the pitcher first met his wife on a blind date arranged by his sister, Melba, while he was home from college for a weekend.

Married June 21, 1958, the Sieberts have a 7-year-old daughter, Sandi Lynn ,and a 5-year-old son, Charles.

The two youngsters were sitting with their mother in Cleveland Stadium Friday night when Siebert blanked the Washington Senators 2-0. One batter got to first on a walk in the fifth inning and another on an error in the eighth, and neither reached second.

The Siebert family cheering section — with some help from pitcher Gary Bell's wife, Barbara, who was sitting with them — shouted encouragement to Sonny.

"We had that last batter (Bob Saverine) struck out at least twice," Carol said.

The big pitcher said his wife "takes a great interest in baseball and knows a lot about the game."

"With five years playing summer and winter baseball, she had to get interested," he added.

2 Clubs Get Most Money On Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers will be about $14 million richer as a result of the merger of the American and National football leagues, Shirley Povich, Washington Post sports columnist reported Saturday night.

In his column for Sunday morning editions, Povich said that of the $18 million indemnity paid by AFL to the 15-team NFL about $14 million "was wrangled for themselves by a mere two NFL clubs, the Giants and the San Francisco 49ers."

He said they were "able to demand a high price for their consent to the merger because (1) their two votes were needed to meet the requirement of unanimous approval and (2) thy could validly claim they were the only two NFL clubs being asked to share a home territory with AFL teams."

Povich said the Giants will get about $8 million and the 49ers about $6 million. The other 13 clubs are taking shares of about $307,700 each.

Povich said that for several days the NFL vote for merger was 13-2 before club owners could persuade the Giants' Wellington Mara ond 49ers' Lou Spadia to capitulate.

Povich quotes a ranking NFL figure as describing stormy scenes at NFL meetings at which a majority of owners "seeking peace in the expensive talen war with the wild-spending AFL, raged at Mara and Spadia.

"Another target of the peace-minded NFL owners was league commissioner Pete Rozelle, who at one point was angrily accused by Vince Lombardi of Green Bay as being 'negligent in your duty to the league in the Gogolak case.'

"It was the Giants' raid on the Buffalo AFL team's roster and their signing of ace field-goal kicker Pete Gogolak that triggered the AFL's threats of massive retaliation, including offers to the NFL's' biggest stars."

Bosox Knock Birds From Loop Lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Boston Red Sox rallied for seven runs with two out in the seventh inning and walloped Baltimore 8-2 Saturday night, knocking the Orioles out of the American League lead.

The Orioles, whose five-game winning streak was snapped, dropped 11 percentage points below the Cleveland Indians.

Boston made only three hits during the big rally, but four consecutive walks forced in the first two runs and put the Red Sox ahead 3-2.

George Scott, who hit his 14th homer in the fourth, then singled in two runs, Dalton Jones tripled for two more, and a wild pitch scored Jones.

Baltimore starter John Miller struck out two batters after George Smith opened the inning with a double, but he walked two men to load the bases. Moe Drabowsky then forced in two runs with walks, and the final hits came off Eddie Watt.

The Orioles scored two unearned runs without hits.

Bucs Stop Braves' Victory Streak At 7

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher Steve Blass clouted a three-run double Saturday, launching Pittsburgh to a 5-3 victory over Atlanta. The loss halted the Braves' winning streak at seven.

Blass was coasting agong with a four-hitter until the ninth inning when he needed relief help from Roy Face. A two-run double by Ed Mathews brought on Face, who got Denis Menke to hit back to the mound for the final out.

Blass' big hit came in the second inning. Jim Pagliaroni led off with a walk but was forced at second by Donn Clendenon. Andre Rodgers sent Clendenon to third with a double, and Arnold Umbach walked Bill Mazeroski intentionally to get to Blass.

The pitcher, however, crossed up the strategy by lashing a double down the left field line.

The hit wiped out a 1-0 lead the Braves grabbed in the first on a walk to Woody Woodward, Hank Aaron's double and an infield grounder by Felipe Alou. Aaron went to third on the grounder, but Blass struck out Mack Jones, ending the inning.

The Pirate outfield cut short a potential Atlanta rally in the fifth. With one out and Menke at second with a double, center fielder Matty Alou raced into deep right-center for a fly ball hit by Woodward. Aaron followed with a hard liner to left, but Jerry Lynch came up with a running one-handed catch.

The Pirates added two runs in the eighth inning, Jose Pagan driving in the first with a single and scoring the second on Ted Abernathy's wild pitch.

The victory halted the Pirates' losing string at three.

Two Shreveport Stars Ink With Northeast State

Two outstanding Shreveport high school athletes, baseballer Wayne Burney of Fair Park and golfter Dave Traylor of Byrd, have signed Northeast State athletic scholarships.

Burney, signed by Coach Bill Dotson, is a two - time all-state choice, making the at - star team at first base last year and as a center fielder this spring. He hit .348 for the full season and had a .449 average in district 1 - AAA play.

Traylor played the No. 1 position on the Byrd golf team and was district medalist and co-medalist in the state tournament. He is a former Shreveport city junior champion and was twice junior champion of the East Ridge Country Club.

U.S. 'Net Nieces' Take Wightman

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A rally of desperation brought the United States three victories in a row Saturday and gave Uncle Sam's tennis playing nieces a 4-3 victory over Great Britain in the annual Wightman Cup competition.

Down three matches to one after Mary Ann Eisel's defeat in the first match of the second day, the Americans swept the final three encounters and won the cup for the sixth straight year. It was the 32nd time the United States has taken the trophy. Britain has won it only six times.

The clinching match was a lopsided doubles victory by Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., and Miss Eisel of St. Louis over Rita Bentley and Liz Starkie, 6-2, 6-1.

However, the dramatic turning point of the series came in the preceding match when Mrs. Billie Jean Moffit King of Long Beach, Calif., defeated Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, despite a severe cramp in her left leg.

From the fifth game in the final set on, Mrs. King hobbled about the No. 1 court in Wimbledon's famed tennis stadium. She was ahead 3-2 at the time, relied on lobs to win the match. Mrs. Jones became over-eager and lost her control, once netting a backhand that would have given her a vital service break.

Miss Richey, who shares the No. 1 ranking among U.S. women with Mrs. King, started the winning rally by standing up to some heavy pounding by Virginia Wade. Miss Wade's power gave her the first set 6-2 but then the American girl slashed back and won the next two 6-2 7-5 although she trailed by three games at one stage in the final set.

Miss Eisel, nervous in her international debut, made nine double-faults in her losing match with Winnie Shaw. Miss Shaw won 6-3, 6-3, gaining four games on her opponent's errors.

The British team, a definite underdog when play began Friday, took a 2-1 lead into Saturday's play.

Mrs. Jones, at the peak of her career, defeated Miss Richey in the opening encounter and then combined with Miss Wade to defeat Mrs. King and Jane Albert of Pebble Beach, Calif., in doubles. The lone U.S. triumph the first day came when Mrs. King downed Miss Wade.

Yanks Spill Detroit 6-3 With Howard

DETROIT (AP)—Elston Howard ended a Yankee jinx and a Detroit winning streak Saturday with a two-run homer that sparked New York to a 6-3 victory over the Tigers.

The defeat snapped a six-game winning streak for the Tigers, and it was the first time the Yankees ever have beaten Joe Sparma, who had whipped them five times in the last two seasons.

Howard's homer, his second of the year, landed in the lower left field seats in the sixth inning, breaking a 2-2 tie. Joe Pepitone was on base with a double.

The Yankees added two runs in the ninth on Pepitone's leadoff homer and Hal Reniff's single. Before the pitcher singled, Clete Boyer reached first when Jake Wood fumbled his grounder and continued to second when the second baseman threw the ball past first.

Reniff extended his streak of scoreless innings to 19 by halting the Tigers on two hits in the last 3 2-3 innings. He preserved Fritz Peterson's fifth victory against four defeats.

Peterson was lifted after giving up home runs to Dick McAuliffe in the fifth inning and Don Demeter in the sixth.

Sparma suffered his fourth defeat. He has won twice.

His track teams have won three Gulf States Conference championships and, with schedules that always include more relay and invitational meets involving large numbers of teams than dual meets, have a record of 47 victories in 71 meets. His 1962 Indian team was undefeated.

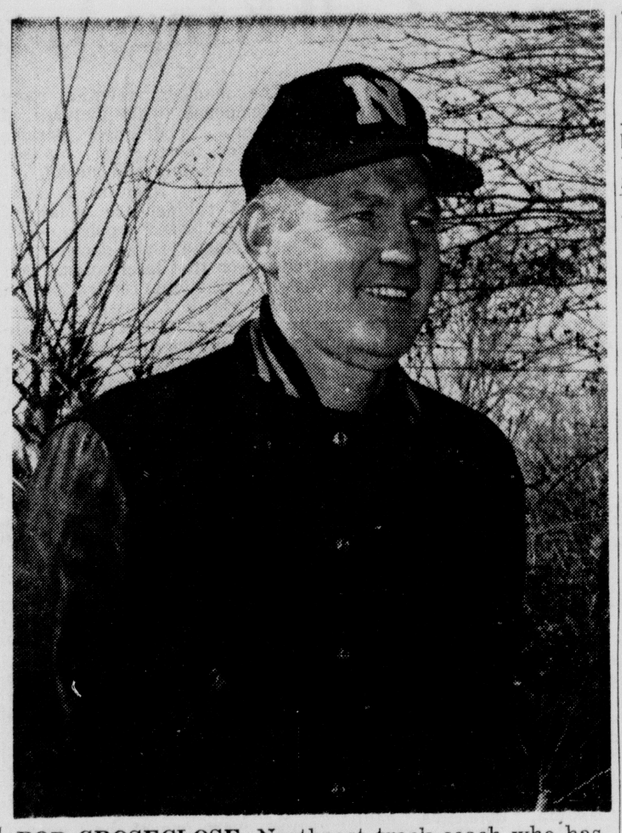
Among the outstanding athletes who have been coached by Groseclose at Northeast are the Styron twins, Dave and Don, John Pennel and Roger Morgan. Dave Stryon at one time shared to American sprint records, Don is still the world record holder in the 220 - yard low hurdles, Pennel held or shared the world pole vault record seven times and was the first man to scale 17 feet, and Morgan was twice NAIA champion in the 120 - year high hurdles.

Four Groseclose - coached Indian cross country teams have won GSC championships.

Prior to joining the Northeast staff in 1960, Groseclose was coach at Abilene High School in his native Texas. He guided Abilene teams to victory in 51 of 65 meets and won three state championships. His winning percentage in track and cross country at Abilene and Northeast is an even 700.

In 1965, Groseclose was chosen by the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union to coach an American team in an international meet in Brazil.

Groseclose is a graduate of Texas Christian where he lettered in football, basketball and track.



BOB GROSECLOSE, Northeast track coach who has enjoyed tremendous success during his six years at NLSC and at Abilene High School in Texas prior to coming here, will be among lecturers for the annual Summer Coaching Clinic at Northeast June 24-25.

No-Hit Hurler Once Felt Basketball Held Future

CLEVELAND (AP) — Wilfred Charles (Sonny) Sibert, the first Cleveland Indian pitcher to hurl a no-hitter since Bob Feller had his third one 15 years ago, once figured his future in sports was in professional basketball.

"I thought I was more of a basketball player than a baseball player," said Sonny Saturday. He has the build for a pro cager. His dark, curly hair is 6-foot-3 off the floor and he weighs a hefty 197.

At Bayless High School in South St. Louis, Siebert was an all-state guard on the basketball team, and he played later at the University of Missouri.

In 1960 Siebert had a three-week tryout with the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association. It was this that convinced him to give up the idea of playing for pay on the hardwood.

Actually, Siebert had cast his lot with baseball two years earlier, and had laid off basketball to play winter baseball. The tryout with the Hawks just settled the decision for Siebert who at the time was in the throes of switching from outfield to pitcher.

In his junior and final year at Missouri, Siebert played first base well enough to make the college all-star team.

Along with basketball, the 29-year-old Siebert has given up another activity of which he was fond in his college days — painting.

"I was a physical education major and an art minor," Sonny said. He said he liked to sketch landscapes and objects, rather than people, and his paintings were "not this modern stuff."

"I tried to make things look like they do," he explained. "Now, maybe I'll get back to doing something in art again — my wife's talking about some paintings for the house."

Siebert's wife, the former Carol Ann Buckner, lived only two blocks from the South St. Louis home where Sonny's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred C. Siebert Sr., still reside. But the pitcher first met his wife on a blind date arranged by his sister, Melba, while he was home from college for a weekend.

Married June 21, 1958, the Sieberts have a 7-year-old daughter, Sandi Lynn ,and a 5-year-old son, Charles.

The two youngsters were sitting with their mother in Cleveland Stadium Friday night when Siebert blanked the Washington Senators 2-0. One batter got to first on a walk in the fifth inning and another on an error in the eighth, and neither reached second.

The Siebert family cheering section — with some help from pitcher Gary Bell's wife, Barbara, who was sitting with them — shouted encouragement to Sonny.

"We had that last batter (Bob Saverine) struck out at least twice," Carol said.

The big pitcher said his wife "takes a great interest in baseball and knows a lot about the game."

"With five years playing summer and winter baseball, she had to get interested," he added.

2 Clubs Get Most Money On Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers will be about $14 million richer as a result of the merger of the American and National football leagues, Shirley Povich, Washington Post sports columnist reported Saturday night.

In his column for Sunday morning editions, Povich said that of the $18 million indemnity paid by AFL to the 15-team NFL about $14 million "was wrangled for themselves by a mere two NFL clubs, the Giants and the San Francisco 49ers."

He said they were "able to demand a high price for their consent to the merger because (1) their two votes were needed to meet the requirement of unanimous approval and (2) thy could validly claim they were the only two NFL clubs being asked to share a home territory with AFL teams."

Povich said the Giants will get about $8 million and the 49ers about $6 million. The other 13 clubs are taking shares of about $307,700 each.

Povich said that for several days the NFL vote for merger was 13-2 before club owners could persuade the Giants' Wellington Mara ond 49ers' Lou Spadia to capitulate.

Povich quotes a ranking NFL figure as describing stormy scenes at NFL meetings at which a majority of owners "seeking peace in the expensive talen war with the wild-spending AFL, raged at Mara and Spadia.

"Another target of the peace-minded NFL owners was league commissioner Pete Rozelle, who at one point was angrily accused by Vince Lombardi of Green Bay as being 'negligent in your duty to the league in the Gogolak case.'

"It was the Giants' raid on the Buffalo AFL team's roster and their signing of ace field-goal kicker Pete Gogolak that triggered the AFL's threats of massive retaliation, including offers to the NFL's' biggest stars."

Bosox Knock Birds From Loop Lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Boston Red Sox rallied for seven runs with two out in the seventh inning and walloped Baltimore 8-2 Saturday night, knocking the Orioles out of the American League lead.

The Orioles, whose five-game winning streak was snapped, dropped 11 percentage points below the Cleveland Indians.

Boston made only three hits during the big rally, but four consecutive walks forced in the first two runs and put the Red Sox ahead 3-2.

George Scott, who hit his 14th homer in the fourth, then singled in two runs, Dalton Jones tripled for two more, and a wild pitch scored Jones.

Baltimore starter John Miller struck out two batters after George Smith opened the inning with a double, but he walked two men to load the bases. Moe Drabowsky then forced in two runs with walks, and the final hits came off Eddie Watt.

The Orioles scored two unearned runs without hits.

Bucs Stop Braves' Victory Streak At 7

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher Steve Blass clouted a three-run double Saturday, launching Pittsburgh to a 5-3 victory over Atlanta. The loss halted the Braves' winning streak at seven.

Blass was coasting agong with a four-hitter until the ninth inning when he needed relief help from Roy Face. A two-run double by Ed Mathews brought on Face, who got Denis Menke to hit back to the mound for the final out.

Blass' big hit came in the second inning. Jim Pagliaroni led off with a walk but was forced at second by Donn Clendenon. Andre Rodgers sent Clendenon to third with a double, and Arnold Umbach walked Bill Mazeroski intentionally to get to Blass.

The pitcher, however, crossed up the strategy by lashing a double down the left field line.

The hit wiped out a 1-0 lead the Braves grabbed in the first on a walk to Woody Woodward, Hank Aaron's double and an infield grounder by Felipe Alou. Aaron went to third on the grounder, but Blass struck out Mack Jones, ending the inning.

The Pirate outfield cut short a potential Atlanta rally in the fifth. With one out and Menke at second with a double, center fielder Matty Alou raced into deep right-center for a fly ball hit by Woodward. Aaron followed with a hard liner to left, but Jerry Lynch came up with a running one-handed catch.

The Pirates added two runs in the eighth inning, Jose Pagan driving in the first with a single and scoring the second on Ted Abernathy's wild pitch.

The victory halted the Pirates' losing string at three.

Two Shreveport Stars Ink With Northeast State

Two outstanding Shreveport high school athletes, baseballer Wayne Burney of Fair Park and golfter Dave Traylor of Byrd, have signed Northeast State athletic scholarships.

Burney, signed by Coach Bill Dotson, is a two - time all-state choice, making the all - star team at first base last year and as a center fielder this spring. He hit .348 for the full season and had a .449 average in district 1 - AAA play.

Traylor played the No. 1 position on the Byrd golf team and was district medalist and comedalist in the state tournament. He is a former Shreveport city junior champion and was twice junior champion of the East Ridge Country Club.

U.S. 'Net Nieces' Take Wightman

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A rally of desperation brought the United States three victories in a row Saturday and gave Uncle Sam's tennis playing nieces a 4-3 victory over Great Britain in the annual Wightman Cup competition.

Down three matches to one after Mary Ann Eisel's defeat in the first match of the second day, the Americans swept the final three encounters and won the cup for the sixth straight year. It was the 32nd time the United States has taken the trophy. Britain has won it only six times.

The clinching match was a lopsided doubles victory by Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., and Miss Eisel of St. Louis over Rita Bentley and Liz Starkie, 6-2, 6-1.

However, the dramatic turning point of the series came in the preceding match when Mrs. Billie Jean Moffit King of Long Beach, Calif., defeated Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, despite a severe cramp in her left leg.

From the fifth game in the final set on, Mrs. King hobbled about the No. 1 court in Wimbledon's famed tennis stadium. She was ahead 3-2 at the time, relied on lobs to win the match. Mrs. Jones became over-eager and lost her control, once netting a backhand that would have given her a vital service break.

Miss Richey, who shares the No. 1 ranking among U.S. women with Mrs. King, started the winning rally by standing up to some heavy pounding by Virginia Wade. Miss Wade's power gave her the first set 6-2 but then the American girl slashed back and won the next two 6-2 7-5 although she trailed by three games at one stage in the final set.

Miss Eisel, nervous in her international debut, made nine double-faults in her losing match with Winnie Shaw. Miss Shaw won 6-3, 6-3, gaining four games on her opponent's errors.

The British team, a definite underdog when play began Friday, took a 2-1 lead into Saturday's play.

Mrs. Jones, at the peak of her career, defeated Miss Richey in the opening encounter and then combined with Miss Wade to defeat Mrs. King and Jane Albert of Pebble Beach, Calif., in doubles. The lone U.S. triumph the first day came when Mrs. King downed Miss Wade.

Yanks Spill Detroit 6-3 With Howard

DETROIT (AP)—Elston Howard ended a Yankee jinx and a Detroit winning streak Saturday with a two-run homer that sparked New York to a 6-3 victory over the Tigers.

The defeat snapped a six-game winning streak for the Tigers, and it was the first time the Yankees ever have beaten Joe Sparma, who had whipped them five times in the last two seasons.

Howard's homer, his second of the year, landed in the lower left field seats in the sixth inning, breaking a 2-2 tie. Joe Pepitone was on base with a double.

The Yankees added two runs in the ninth on Pepitone's lead-off homer and Hal Reniff's single. Before the pitcher singled, Clete Boyer reached first when Jake Wood fumbled his grounder and continued to second when the second baseman threw the ball past first.

Reniff extended his streak of scoreless innings to 19 by halting the Tigers on two hits in the last 3 2-3 innings. He preserved Fritz Peterson's fifth victory against four defeats.

Peterson was lifted after giving up home runs to Dick McAuliffe in the fifth inning and Don Demeter in the sixth.

Sparma suffered his fourth defeat. He has won twice.

Our Nation Of Spoilers

With Paul Martin

Editor's Note: Paul Martin is on vacation. Today's column is written by Richard Alden Knight, syndicated columnist and author of the fishing and hunting Solunar Tables founded by his late father, John Alden Knight)

Just the other day, I ran into a man on the street who I have known for years . . . . we had argued and fought at sportsmen's meeting; we have had our diffrences, believe me. We chatted, talked of this and that and then he said the one thing that made the whole chance meeting worth while.

"I would never, come atom bombs and the rest, fear the Russians as much as I fear my fellow Americans."

Fear our own? What do you mean?

He was speaking of water and land and game and fish. . . he was referring to the whole ball of wax that keeps men and women like us interested in what takes place, (to parrot a phrase) conservation wise, in our own nation.

We, my friends, are a nation of spoilers. We pollute and we overpopulate. We overbuild and we use the best garbage disposal at our immediate convenience, a stream of running (or still) water. We have loused up the Great Lakes where anyone taking a drink off their shores has a death wish. You would have to strain a glass of New York State's Hudson to drink it for residue therein. The immersion of a clean water fish in the lower Potomac (right smack in our President's back yard) would result in near - instant suffocation.

We, my friends, are a bunch of permissive, destructive slobs!

You know the guy I fear? He's the man, a member of a sportsman's association, who stands up and contradicts, one hundred per cent, the findings of a trained game biologist who spends his entire year in the field. This is the man who will buy a Doe Deer license in a state that sells them and then proudly tear it up in front of witnesses. He is the man who will condone the rape of a river by the Corps of Army Engineers.

Let's start a big move to burn home mortgages. Let's stop paying for the cars that we all buy on time. Let's register fly rods as deadly weapons.

A few years back, we had a dredging problem locally, one that affected the best trout stream in the area. The bulldozers were hitting the creek bottom and making pebble dikes . . . . those short - termed affairs that wind up building deltas of their own within two years. We screamed, the concerned ones, and we asked our local sportsman's group for a joint resolution. One member applied the crusher. "Don't you feel that this problem has too many political implications."

When it comes to saving a stream, a river. . . who gives much of a particular about politics? If I had plans of building a road right through your living room, would you much care about what a politician thinks? You would hit every hearing just to save the ottoman. But what about a river?

Give me not this conservation platitude. I have sat in enough sportsman's meetings to find out that we are a race of "get it while we can" individuals that really aren't interested in what our neighbor has happen to him. I have seen these groups scream for more fish when the stocking of their local streams could never make up for their own ineptitude and lack of stream improvement knowledge. I have seen them shout down a district forester who tells them that controlled timbering is the answer to saving their game crop. I have watched them tell trained, knowledgeable personnel from their own game commission that they did not know what they were talking about when they recommended a doe season. . . even an any - deer season.

Fellow sportsman . . . do your homework! Don't walk into a meeting and tell a man who spends twelve months of the year doing a job that he does not understand your problems. Get off your easy chair and follow him for one month and THEN tell him.

Or fire him!

Two years ago, I received in the daily mail a beautiful pamphlet from the lobby that supported strip mining. They showed me people waterskiing on lakes redone after the pits have been exhausted. . . they painted a picture of Utopia. I have never read such a pack of twisted lies in my life.

I can take you and show you what we, Americans all, have done to this land of ours. I can show you the crud, the absolute prostitution we have made of the land for the Almighty Dollar. Tell me no sad tales, my friend: I can match them in spades.

We, unfortunately, are a nation of destructors!

Arnold Palmer: Golf King And Millionaire Business Tycoon

EDITOR'S NOTE — It takes two secretaries just to answer the personal mail from Anire's army, but that's only one part of the many-faceted life of Arnold Palmer.

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The telephone rang in the 18th floor offices of a Manhattan skyscraper, and a brunette secretary swung into action.

"Hong Kong? Did you say Hong Kong?" the secretary said. "No, I'm sorry, Mr. Palmer isn't here now. I'll put Mr. Rosenthal on."

From another of the five bustling rooms came the troubled voice of another secretary: "Say, Stella, do you know what country Singapore is in?"

"It's a country by itself," Stella responded. "Just make it Singapore."

This is a normal, every-day scene at the headquarters of Arnold Palmer Enterprises in New York.

The spacious reception room is festooned with pictures of Palmer, modelling various styles of sports wear, blazers, shirts, sweaters and slacks.

Across the room in a glass-encased cabinet are a few of Palmer's prized trophies — a gold Canada Cup, showing he once won that international golf event; a silver replica of the clubhouse at Augusta, attesting to one of his four Masters victories; a plaque naming him the best long iron player in America for 1965, and a faded athletic certificate from Wake Forest College.

But these are clearly only incidental. The accent is on caps, shirts, slacks — and money.

This represents the other face of Arnold Palmer — touring golf professional, jet pilot, showman, television producer and millionaire business tycoon, the intimate of the kings of finance.

For about 25 weeks of the year, Palmer is just one of the 200-odd golfers who scramble for the rich purses on the Professional Golf Association circuit.

The rest of the time he is pulling the strings on a growing golf empire that, in one way or another, touches the lives of almost every one of the 7,000,000 devotees of the game in the United States — not to mention uncounted millions overseas.

Sometimes the two ventures clash, as last year when Palmer won only one tournament and dropped to tenth in the PGA official money list, the tour's measure of performance.

Palmer found himself in a tight squeeze. If he concentrated on golf he had to neglect his many business ventures. If he applied himself too much to business, his golf suffered. Then people would start buying other brand name golf equipment.

Troubled by his slump and the heightening pressure of the powerful, 26-year-old Jack Nicklaus, 10 years his junior, Arnie rearranged his schedule and hit upon an apparent compromise decision.

"For the last couple of years, I have been trying to handle my business and play golf at the same time," he explains. "The result was I went to every golf tournament tired.

"This year I decided to set certain periods aside when I would attend to all my business obligations. Then when I go to a golf tournament I shut out everything but golf. I tell my people I don't want to be disturbed. I disconnect the telephone."

The revised formula has paid dividends. Palmer won the Los Angeles Open, the first tournament on the season's tour; finished second in two other events, third in another and recently won the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas, Nev., for the second time in a row.

He will be one of the favorites in the National Open at San Francisco June 16-19.

"When I play golf now, I feel fresh and relaxed. I am eager again," he says. "My main aim is to win."

Many observers doubt that Palmer will be able successfully to isolate himself from his business responsibilities.

Nobody — except perhaps Uncle Sam and Palmer's business manager, Mack McCormack of Cleveland — knows exactly how much these businesses are worth. The best educated guess is that they turn over $5 to $10 million a year.

Palmer may be the wealthiest athlete of all time. His personal yearly income is placed at between $800,000 and $1 million.

The Arnold Palmer Enterprises, of which he is president, consists of five separate divisions.

The New York branch deals strictly with sports wear — shirts, slacks, jackets, sweaters and hats, all made by various manufacturers and distributed throughout the world under the Arnold Palmer label.

Three other divisions have headquarters in Cleveland, where they can be overlooked by McCormack and a staff of six lawyers. They include the TV-radio division, which produces and sells film clips, tips and golf shows. Another division promotes exhibition matches, about 20 a year averaging $5,000 an appearance. Still another is assigned to general products — 150 putting courses, 25 driving ranges and a chain of golf instruction schools.

One of the biggest money makers is the Arnold Palmer Co., located in Chattanooga, Tenn., which manufactures and distributes Arnold Palmer golf clubs, balls, bags, gloves and other equipment to pro shops through the country.

In addition, Palmer is vice president of an insurance agency in Chicago, consultant to a bank note firm on Wall Street in New York, part owner of a bank in Johnstown, Pa., and owner of a printing firm in Cleveland which puts out his own books and instruction material.

He has holdings in oil and real estate and is engaged in building golf courses in Florida, California and the Virgin Islands.

He has two secretaries whose only duties are to answer mail from his many fans, known as Arnie's army.

An indication of Palmer's mad merry-go-round was seen in his hectic schedule recently after his victory in the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas.

After collecting 20,000 silver dollars for beating Gay Brewer Jr., in a playoff on a Monday afternoon, Palmer went directly to the airport where he boarded his $750,000 jet for Oklahoma City. He met that evening with the board of directors of an airplane manufacturing firm.

Tuesday he conferred with officials of the Bolens Division of the billion-dollar FMC Corp. about investments in lawn and golf course equipment and later spent a few hours with a magazine preparing a profile — the appointment was set up last fall.

Wednesday and Thursday, Arnie was host to 40 advertising executives for two days of golf and socializing at Latrobe, Pa., where he comes from, the son of a greenskeeper professional. Friday he flew to Chattanooga to look over his golf plant. Saturday he attended the season's opening at the Laurel Valley Club.

Palmer managed to get in a few hours of relaxation with his wife, Winnie, and two young daughters Sunday before flying to New York for three days of business conferences. Then it was back to golf.

SEC, Big Ten Players Dominate East All-Stars

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Conference and the Big Ten dominated the East squad named Saturday for the annual All-America football game which will be played in Atlanta July 9.

Fifteen SEC players were named to the 29-man squad, and nine Big Ten players were chosen, including Illinois fullback Jim Grabowski.

Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State will coach the East, which will battle with players from West of the Mississippi River in the nationally televised game moved to Atlanta from Buffalo, N.Y.

The East squad includes seven Associated Press All-America players.

In addition to Grabowski, they are end Charlie Casey of Florida, guards Dick Arrington of Notre Dame and Karl Singer of Purdue, centers Frank Emanuel of Tennessee and Paul Crane of Alabama, defensive halfback Nick Rassas of Notre Dame and place kicker Charles Gogolak of Princeton.

Quarterback of the East will be Steve Sloan, the Atlanta Falcon rookie who guided Alabama to a second straight national college crown last fall. He will be backed up by Preston Ridlehuber, hard running quarterback for Georgia.

Speed will be provided by Louisiana State's little terror, Joe Labruzzo, and Rodger Bird of Kentucky, two of the six halfbacks picked for the game.

Two Louisiana State tackles, Dave McCormick and George Rice, also were chosen for the game, for which nearly 20,000 tickets already have been sold.

The West will be announced later, although game officials already have said that Donny Anderson of Texas Tech will play in the All-Star affair.

The East squad:

Ends — Tommy Tolleson, Alabama; Bill Malinchak, Indiana; Stan Hindman, Mississippi; Charles Casey, Florida; Robert Viney, Michigan State.

Tackles — Sam Ball, Kentucky; George Rice, Louisiana State; Dave McCormick, Louisiana State; Dave Ellis, North Carolina State.

Stargell Hurt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell, slugging outfielder-first baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was benched Saturday because of an ankle injury.

Stargell was struck on the left ankle by a line drive off the bat of Pirate pitcher Bob Veale during batting practice Friday night.

X rays Saturday were negative, but Stargell was advised not to play until treatments reduce the swelling.

Challenge Cup On Line At Club

Today the Bancroft Challenge Cup will be placed on the trap firing line, at the Pine Hills Gun Club on Cheniere Lake.

The challenge cup event will be shot from handicap yardage each gun club member being handicapped from 18 to 25 yards depending on his past shooting record.

The monthly Trap Challenge Cup Shoot always makes for spirited competition. Three wins, not necessarily in order, are required to obtain permanent possession of the sterling silver trophy.

No special program is scheduled for the skeet field, however it will be open for practice as usual.

The skeet program this past Sunday consisted of 100 registered targets. The winner was J. B. Hudson of Shreveport with 100 out of 100.

Class AA winner: Jim Dodier 97 out of 100; Class A, Marvin Williamson 97 out of 100; Class B, Howard H. Worrell Jr. 95 out of 100; Class C, R. F. Talton 92 out of 100; Class D, John Hargroves 89 out of 100; Class E, Hugh Spurlock 90 out of 100.

The trap field was open for practice only, however several fine scores were posted. Howard Lutz was high gun with 75 straight. T. O. Bancroft, Jess Cobb, Wood Sers, and Roy Pittard each broke 25 straight.

Club President, Jess Cobb, announced that the new shooting facility grounds have been sown with grass seed and are still in the process of settling and packing. Actual construction is to begin in the next few weeks.

Races Are Set For Traweek's

A full schedule of races are on tap today at Traweek's Raceway in West Monroe.

Action gets started at 1 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

Red Futch, winner of three events last week is expected back to continue his heavy assault on the victory purses. Futch won the trophy dash, fast heat and feature last Sunday.

Our Nation Of Spoilers

With Paul Martin

Editor's Note: Paul Martin is on vacation. Today's column is written by Richard Alden Knight, syndicated columnist and author of the fishing and hunting Solunar Tables founded by his late father, John Alden Knight)

Just the other day, I ran into a man on the street who I have known for years . . . . we had argued and fought at sportsmen's meeting; we have had our diffrences, believe me. We chatted, talked of this and that and then he said the one thing that made the whole chance meeting worth while.

"I would never, come atom bombs and the rest, fear the Russians as much as I fear my fellow Americans."

Fear our own? What do you mean?

He was speaking of water and land and game and fish. . . he was referring to the whole ball of wax that keeps men and women like us interested in what takes place, (to parrot a phrase) conservation wise, in our own nation.

We, my friends, are a nation of spoilers. We pollute and we overpopulate. We overbuild and we use the best garbage disposal at our immediate convenience, a stream of running (or still) water. We have loused up the Great Lakes where anyone taking a drink off their shores has a death wish. You would have to strain a glass of New York State's Hudson to drink it for residue therein. The immersion of a clean water fish in the lower Potomac (right smack in our President's back yard) would result in near - instant suffocation.

We, my friends, are a bunch of permissive, destructive slobs!

You know the guy I fear? He's the man, a member of a sportsman's association, who stands up and contradicts, one hundred per cent, the findings of a trained game biologist who spends his entire year in the field. This is the man who will buy a Doe Deer license in a state that sells them and then proudly tear it up in front of witnesses. He is the man who will condone the rape of a river by the Corps of Army Engineers.

Let's start a big move to burn home mortgages. Let's stop paying for the cars that we all buy on time. Let's register fly rods as deadly weapons.

A few years back, we had a dredging problem locally, one that affected the best trout stream in the area. The bulldozers were hitting the creek bottom and making pebble dikes . . . . those short - termed affairs that wind up building deltas of their own within two years. We screamed, the concerned ones, and we asked our local sportsman's group for a joint resolution. One member applied the crusher. "Don't you feel that this problem has too many political implications."

When it comes to saving a stream, a river. . . who gives much of a particular about politics? If I had plans of building a road right through your living room, would you much care about what a politician thinks? You would hit every hearing just to save the ottoman. But what about a river?

Give me not this conservation platitude. I have sat in enough sportsman's meetings to find out that we are a race of "get it while we can" individuals that really aren't interested in what our neighbor has happen to him. I have seen these groups scream for more fish when the stocking of their local streams could never make up for their own ineptitude and lack of stream improvement knowledge. I have seen them shout down a district forester who tells them that controlled timbering is the answer to saving their game crop. I have watched them tell trained, knowledgeable personnel from their own game commission that they did not know what they were talking about when they recommended a doe season. . . even an any - deer season.

Fellow sportsman . . . do your homework! Don't walk into a meeting and tell a man who spends twelve months of the year doing a job that he does not understand your problems. Get off your easy chair and follow him for one month and THEN tell him.

Or fire him!

Two years ago, I received in the daily mail a beautiful pamphlet from the lobby that supported strip mining. They showed me people waterskiing on lakes redone after the pits have been exhausted. . . they painted a picture of Utopia. I have never read such a pack of twisted lies in my life.

I can take you and show you what we, Americans all, have done to this land of ours. I can show you the crud, the absolute prostitution we have made of the land for the Almighty Dollar. Tell me no sad tales, my friend: I can match them in spades.

We, unfortunately, are a nation of destructors!

Sportsmen In Action

Looking at the week's catch, and catchers:

CARL K. CHAIN and BILLY GRAVES pulled 100 crappie out of Bussey while JAMES BROWN bagged 100 bream and MRS. W. M. LOVE of Monroe hooked a 5 and 8½ pound bass.

In Lake Darbonne the CHARILIE HILDETH party collected 200 bream above Hamilton Field, RICKY RYAN polled 15 bass and 76 bream, JAMES "BULLDOG" CALHOUN snagged 82 bream in three hours, the O. D. COX contigent collected over 200 bream and MERRILL and MINOR NICHOLLS and JAMES HAWKINS got 80 bream.

LEE HICKS took 100 blue gill from Black Bayou while HENRY COIN and his son and daughter snagged 225. JAMES DOSS caught nine bass totaling 36 pounds as SAM LADART combined with CHARLES DEAN for eight bass. LADART Came back to take in 11 bass that tipped the scale at 40 pounds. JERRY WHITE, REGGIE GUICE and SONNY PARKER made successful connections with 142 specs.

Also in Black Bayou Lake, MRS. BLANCH OWENS got the bream limit and MR. AND MRS. A. C. DRICOLL got 100. HENRY WILSON caught 100 and JOHNNY FOGGEY got 157 on two tries.

At Cheniere Lake ED VANDERFORD got 203 bream in three trips, MR. AND MRS. PEE WEE MARR made bream huals of 60, 52 and 42, BUCK ANDERSON got 82 bream in three tires, MR. AND MRS. ELMO HALE has bream bites of 64 and 94, LLOYD WILLIAMS took only one shot and landed 40 bream and BILL WILDER took in 60 at a sitting.

Astros To Hold Camp At Tyler

HOUSTON (Special) — The Houston Astros will have a baseball tryout camp Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 23 - 25, at Tyler municipal Baseball Park, Tyler, Texas, Tal Smith, Astros' Director of Player Personnel, has announced.

The camp will be directed by Al Hollingsworth, Gulf Coast area supervisor, assisted by Frank Martin, area scout for the Astros.

Registration will be at 9:00 a.m., Thursday, June 23.

Boys trying out are requested to bring their own uniform, shoes, socks and gloves. The Houston organization will provide baseballs and bats.

American Legion players must have written permission from their coach or Legion Commander in order to participate in the tryout camp, Smith said.

Arnold Palmer: Golf King And Millionaire Business Tycoon

EDITOR'S NOTE — It takes two secretaries just to answer the personal mail from Anire's army, but that's only one part of the many-faceted life of Arnold Palmer.

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The telephone rang in the 18th floor offices of a Manhattan skyscraper, and a brunette secretary swung into action.

"Hong Kong? Did you say Hong Kong?" the secretary said. "No, I'm sorry, Mr. Palmer isn't here now. I'll put Mr. Rosenthal on."

From another of the five bustling rooms came the troubled voice of another secretary: "Say, Stella, do you know what country Singapore is in?"

"It's a country by itself," Stella responded. "Just make it Singapore."

This is a normal, every-day scene at the headquarters of Arnold Palmer Enterprises in New York.

Stargell Hurt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell, slugging outfielder-first baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was benched Saturday because of an ankle injury.

Stargell was struck on the left ankle by a line drive off the bat of Pirate pitcher Bob Veale during batting practice Friday night.

X rays Saturday were negative, but Stargell was advised not to play until treatments reduce the swelling.

Challenge Cup On Line At Club

Today the Bancroft Challenge Cup will be placed on the trap firing line, at the Pine Hills Gun Club on Cheniere Lake.

The challenge cup event will be shot from handicap yardage each gun club member being handicapped from 18 to 25 yards depending on his past shooting record.

The monthly Trap Challenge Cup Shoot always makes for spirited competition. Three wins, not necessarily in order, are required to obtain permanent possession of the sterling silver trophy.

No special program is scheduled for the skeet field, however it will be open for practice as usual.

The skeet program this past Sunday consisted of 100 registered targets. The winner was J. B. Hudson of Shreveport with 100 out of 100.

Class AA winner: Jim Dodier 97 out of 100; Class A, Marvin Williamson 97 out of 100; Class B, Howard H. Worrell Jr. 95 out of 100; Class C, R. F. Talton 92 out of 100; Class D, John Hargroves 89 out of 100; Class E, Hugh Spurlock 90 out of 100.

The trap field was open for practice only, however several fine scores were posted. Howard Lutz was high gun with 75 straight. T. O. Bancroft, Jess Cobb, Wood Sers, and Roy Pittard each broke 25 straight.

Club President, Jess Cobb, announced that the new shooting facility grounds have been sown with grass seed and are still in the process of settling and packing. Actual construction is to begin in the next few weeks.

Races Are Set For Traweek's

A full schedule of races are on tap today at Traweek's Raceway in West Monroe.

Action gets started at 1 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

Red Futch, winner of three events last week is expected back to continue his heavy assault on the victory purses. Futch won the trophy dash, fast heat and feature last Sunday.

Guide To Good Reading

Slaughter's Book Now In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Frank G. Slaughter is certainly not a great writer, but he is a very popular one. His stories of Doctors at war are very popular with both men and women. His latest one is called "Surgeon U.S.A." and deals with the experiences of an army surgeon in World War II. A very excellent Post Civil War Western is "Maximilian's Gold" by Jane Barry. It deals with the search for a cache of gold, supposedly hidden by Maximilian before his fall. The searchers are a group of Confederate Soldiers. It is very well done and will appeal to many readers. Arthur Cavanaugh has written a gripping story of terror in "The Children Are Gone." It is an account of the experiences of a Mother, whose two young children disappeared in a supermarket. Books with a Louisiana setting are always popular and we predict that "The Fair Ladies of Chartes Street" by Christopher Blake will be in great demand. It is a book of short stories by a talented writer, which captures the flavor and feeling of the French Quarter. "Doomsday Square" by Ray Ward Taylor will appeal to those who enjoyed 'Seven Days in May." It is a story of international intrigue and government crisis. "The Old Man at The Railroad Crossing" by William Maxwell is a collection of 29 very excellent short stories in interest to the discriminating reader. "Up Abover The World" by Paul Bowles is a sinister story of an encounter with evil. "Laban's Will" by Albert Lebowitz is the story of a man who tormented his children by reading his will aloud. The ending is most surprising. For mystery story readers there are three new titles this week; "Time of Temptation" by Pierre Audemars, "At Some Forgotten Door" by Doris Miles Disney and "I Fear The Greeks" by Aaron Marc Stein.

Among the new books added in the past week, there are a number of additions to the science section. "A Parent's Guide To More New Math" by Evelyn Sharp should be useful to parents, teachers and students. "Lakes Monthly Installment and Interest Tables" is a book which fills a real need in the library collection. "The Neutrino" by Isaac Asimov is a discussion of one of the very small particles of the atom. "The Deepest Days" by Robert Stenuit is a most interesting account of underwater research. For bird watchers there are two interesting books, "The New Handbook of Attracting Birds" by Thomas P. McElroy and "Naming Birds at a Glance" by Lou Blachly.

The field of useful arts has also been enriched this week. "New Horizons In Medicine" by Jerry Bishop gives much hope for a longer and healthier life. "Basic Tables in Electrical Engineering" by Granino A. Korn should be very helpful to those in the building field. "The Automobile Quarterly" will interest those who study old cars. A book which every driver should read is "Unsafe At Any Speed" by Ralph Nader. He discusses in a very frank manner the built-in dangers in automobiles today. For farmers there is a very enlightening new book "Roots of the Farm Problem" by Earl O. Heady. The author discusses the importance of changing technology, changing use of capital and the changing labor picture. There are two books for gardeners, "Carnations For Everyman" by Montague Allwood and "Tropical Gardening" by T. M. Greensill. "All About Toy Dogs" by Viva Ricketts is a most useful manual.

The cookbook collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is a very excellent one and there are three additions this week; 'La Cuisine Chantraine" by Charles Chantraine is a collection from one of the fine restaurants of Brussels. "Cooking Plan and Fancy for Family and Friends" by Lois Katzenbach is a good basic cookbook, while for those who like Spanish food, there is "The Spanish Cookbook" by Barbara Norman.

There are also several new books in the fine arts category. "Beautiful Homes and Gardens in California" by Herbert Weisskamp is a very beautiful new book in the architecture collection.

MISS PAULA WINSTON PERRY

Paula Perry Engagement To John C. Blackman IV Announced At Tea June 9

Mr. and Mrs. John William Perry of Perryville, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Paula Winston Perry to John Calhoun Blackman IV, son of Mrs. Henry Bernstein Jr. and the late John Calhoun Blackman of Monroe.

Plans for the August 19 wedding were revealed at an announcement tea Thursday, June 9 in the home of Mrs. Ben B. Cobb, 2767 Point Drive. Hostesses for the occasion with Mrs. Cobb were Mrs. John Bishop Johnston Jr. and Mrs. John William Sherrouse Jr.

The wedding will take place in the First Methodist Church of Monroe at 7:30 p.m. with a reception to follow at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Sherrouse greeted guests in the entrance hall where an arrangement of Queen Elizabeth roses and stephanotis in an antique white epergne was used on a table with tall white tapers.

A pair of bone and gold Staffordshire containers holding low arrangements of tiffany roses on the mantel provided a background for the receiving line, composed of Miss Perry, her mother, the mother of her fiance and Mrs. Cobb. A brass epergne held a mass arrangement of pink roses on the piano.

For her party Miss Perry wore a two piece model of beige cotton lace over taffeta, with matching shoes and carried a nosegay of pink roses. Mrs. Perry, wore a dress of mauve silk with a cowl collar and flared hemline while Mrs. Bernstein, mother of the future groom, wore a dress of coral linen with overblouse of self-appliqued flowers on an organdy yoke.

Mrs. John S. Blackman Sr., grandmother of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. John W. Collens, Mrs. Parnell Lessenberry and Mrs. H. A. Mouk Sr. received guests in the family room.

Mrs. M. S. Dixon and Mrs. Robert Oliver invited guests into the dining room where the rose theme was carried out in an arrangement shading from light to deep pink in a silver and crystal epergne. Coffee was served by Mrs. R. R. Rhymes, Mrs. Mose Perry, Mrs. Gordon Cummings, Mrs. H. W. McDonald and Mrs. P. O. Clark. From the opposite ends of the table chilled white wine was poured from a silver container by Mrs. Lea Thompson, Mrs. Jack Knowles, Mrs. Albert Clowney, Mrs. Ted Allen, Mrs. Milling Bernstein and Mrs. Paul Tennis.

The family room overlooking Bayou DeSiard was decorated with a profusion of yellow daylilies in copper containers. Presiding at the silver punch bowl, wreathed with green grapes, ivy and lilies, were Mrs. Allen Barham, Mrs. John Bishop Johnston and Mrs. Victor Attwood. Punch was also served on the glassed porch where arrangements of daisies were used with green foliage. Alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. Hollis Venable, Mrs. Pete Godwin, Mrs. Fred Amman, Mrs. Henry Biedenharn Jr., Mrs. Corbin Turpin, Mrs. Conway Crossland and Mrs. Ken Breard.

Miss Amanda Cobb and Miss Susan Sherrouse invited guests to the covered patio where free standing turns of white gladioli were placed against the brick wall. Presiding at the bride's book were Misses Martha Perry, Roberta Cobb, Ann Sherrouse and Brenda Perry. Tea girls were Misses Nina and Ann Johnston, Caroline, Bibb and Janie Cobb, Barbara Venable and Jane Sherrouse. Others assisting were Gayle Kelly, Jan Conlin, Betty McCready, Til Smelser, Faye Cannon, Jan Touchstone, Nancy Crossland, Mary Lou Perry, Dana Mouk, Carolyn Thompson and Kathie Theus.

Attendants for their wedding have also been chosen by the betrothed couple. Miss Martha Perry will serve her sister as maid of honor and named as bridesmaids are Mrs. Harvey Parnell Perry, Miss Jan Conlin, Miss Susan Sherrouse and Miss Amanda Cobb. Margo Tennis, cousin of the future groom, will be flower girl.

Henry Bernstein Jr. will serve as best man. Groomsmen are Harvey Parnell Perry, George Smelser, R. L. Ewing, E. O. Spiller Jr., and named as ushers are Lyn McCready, Jim Theus, Jessie I. Heard Jr. and John William Perry Jr.

Miss Perry is the granddaughter of the late Governor and Mrs. Harvey Parnell of Halley, Ark., and the late Mr. and Mrs. James Atkins Perry of Perryville. A graduate of Neville high school, she will be a junior this fall at Louisiana State University, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta.

Mr. Blackman is descended from the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wharton Collens of Monroe and Mrs. John Calhoun Blackman Sr., and the late Mr. Blackman of Alexandria. He was also graduated from Neville and received his B.A. degree from Louisiana State University in May. He will enter LSU School of Law in the fall. His fraternity is Kappa Sigma.

Reception At Bayou DeSiard Country Club Follows Simonton-Irvin Wedding Saturday

Magnolia blossoms and foliage amid myriad lighted candles formed a setting at the altar of Parkview Baptist Church Saturday, June 11 for the wedding of Miss Sheila Ann Irvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Irvin, 1401 Speed Avenue, and Charles Thomas Simonton, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Simonton, 3902 Deborah Drive.

Centering the altar was a 30-branch candle tree with green hobnail votive lights and magnolia blossoms and foliage. Twin nine - branch candle trees were at either end and outside the altar rail were arrangements of the foliage and blossoms in white pedestaled cathedral urns.

Rev. H. L. Sampson performed the double ring ceremony at 11 a.m. with traditional nuptial music provided by Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson at the organ.

Wearing an A-line gown of ivory linen the bride was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage. The bodice, attached at an empire waistline, featured a bateau neckline, with sleeves and waist embellished with Venise lace. The square train, in chapel length, was bordered with lace. Her veil was a short mantilla, also edged in lace motifs. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of ivory butterfly roses and stephanotis blossoms.

Mrs. Robert S. Turner Jr. attended the bride as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Molly Shelton, Miss Julia Brumfield, Baton Rouge; Miss Carole Mosely, Baton Rouge and Miss Merrie Jo Simonton, sister of the groom. Their deep aqua linen floor length dresses were fashioned with bateau necked bodices. Venise lace adorned the short sleeves and marked the empire waist above bell skirts. A flat bow was placed at back of the waists. Bow - shaped half hats with circle veils formed their headdresses and they carried bouquets of Daisy Delight and miniature English ivy.

Dr. Simonton served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Nathaniel R. Troy of Slidell; Thomas A. Grant, III, Monroe; William King Stubbs Jr., New Orleans and William Michael Irvin, brother of the bride.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a reception at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. For the occasion Mrs. Irvin was wearing a two piece model of rose pink Italian silk, appliqued in matching lace. She wore harmonizing hat and shoes and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Simonton chose a two piece dress of beige linen with braided overblouse, featuring a roll collar. She wore matching shoes and hat and a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

Displayed in the entrance of the club was an arrangement of magnolia foliage and blossoms with a similar arrangement in a white urn atop a ribbed pedestal forming a background for the receiving line.

Matching tables from which punch was served held twin arrangements of white stock, iris, Majestic daisies and miniature chrysanthemums, and the silver punch bowls. A pyramid arrangement of white stock and pompons was also used on the grand piano. Guests registered at a table which held a bride's memory candle, wreathed with white Marguerite daisies and English ivy.

An heirloom cloth covered the bride's table where the tiered wedding cake was based with garlands of white blossoms and boxwood roping. White blossoms were also attached to the cake knife.

Assisting with courtesies at the reception were Mrs. Jack Masur, Mrs. Ernest Eaves, Mrs. James Kelly, Mrs. Arthur Barker, Mrs. Paul Ransom, Mrs. William C. Hines, Mrs. T. A. Grant II, Mrs. T. A. Grant III, Mrs. Edmund Brown, Mrs. Richard Pipes, Mrs. Clark Ransom, Mrs. George W. Wright, Mrs. Fred Sartor, Mrs. D. A. Stancil, Mrs. Wilton A. Braley, Springhill, Mrs. W. T. Frye of Springhill; Mrs. Mae Parker, Winnfield; Mrs. Jack Plummer, Lafayette and Mrs. Robert Clark.

For their wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the bride donned a sleeveless suit of white linen, featuring double breasted gold buttons and low back belt. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1027 Royal in New Orleans.

Mrs. Simonton was graduated from Neville high school and from Louisiana State University and is a member of Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Simonton graduated from Neville high school and Tulane University and is now a senior at Tulane Medical school. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi and Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Pants Styles Range From Hipsters To Ruffled 'Jellies'

Pants carry the youth message for spring and summer: the salty, British - buttoned sailor bells; the straight, slightly widened hem of elephant pants; the above - and - below - the - knee railroad "jams," chugging merrily along in stripes, brass buckles and contrast stitching; the ankle - ruffled 'jellies."

Keeping pants non - masculine property are the pretty, lowered shirts; stitched sweaters; deeply V'd pullovers, stopped at the midriff; and black vinyl halter tops.

Youthful, wide, knee - length pants and britches are suited to smock tops in shocking colors or striped jackets.

Other pants reflect the look of the Thirties, with the longer hunting jacket in white cotton will and pique, or the three-quarter, belted camel - hair coat.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Paula Irene Eggleston to Ensign James Edward Haddox Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Haddox of Leesville, is announced by her parents, Major and Mrs. Aldrich G. Eggleston, 3600 Bon Aire Drive. A late July wedding is planned at Our Lady of Fatima Church. Miss Eggleston graduated in mathematics from Louisiana Tech where Ensign Haddox received his degree in chemical engineering. He is presently serving a tour of duty with the United States Navy. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Charleston, S. C.

MRS. JAMES J. VANDERHOEVEN JR.

Cherie Martin Becomes Bride Of James J. Vanderhoeven Jr.

Miss Cherie Jean Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Martin of Fort Worth, Texas, became the bride of James J. Vanderhoeven Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jesse Vanderhoeven Sr., of Alexandria, in a double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Saturday, June 11 in St. Patrick's Co - Cathedral in Fort Worth.

The Rev. Edmund Moore of Monroe, cousin of the groom, officiated at the ceremony with organ music by Michael Hobson.

Mr. Martin gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown of white silk organza over taffeta featured a sweetheart neckline and cap sleeves. Chantilly lace appliques encrusted with seed pearls cascaded down the front of the gown. A chapel length train swept from a band of Chantilly lace and her veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls, crystals and lace. She carried a traditional bouquet of white blossoms centered with an orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Francis Collins, her cousin, as maid of honor; Mrs. Robert P. Rachal, matron of honor and Mrs. James F. Trotter, sister of the groom and Miss Doris Nell Barron, as bridesmaids. Their floor length gowns of yellow organza over taffeta were fashioned on empire lines and highlighted by white embroidered flower motifs. Their yellow tulle headpieces were held in place by two Majestic daisies and they carried nosegays of matching daisies encircled with greenery.

The bridegroom's father served as best man and groomsmen were Robert Bruce Jordan, James D. Davis, and Dan Vanderhoeven. Ushers were Jerry Polk, James F. Trotter, Emile P. Campbell and Clark Martin.

Mrs. Martin chose a dress in shades of aqua for her daughter's wedding. The silk shantung skirt was highlighted by a bodice of Chantilly lace over taffeta. She wore matching accessories, white kid gloves and a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Vanderhoeven wore a sheer crepe sheath with Alencon lace overblouse in cloud blue with a nylon tulle hat in matching shade, blue accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at Ridglea Country Club in Fort Worth.

For travel when the couple departed on a wedding trip the bride donned an aqua tweed suit with matching hat, beige accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home in Alexandria.

Mrs. Vanderhoeven, who graduated from Pineville high school, is a 1966 graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College. A member of Phi Mu sorority, past president of Student Teacher's Association and a former Miss Louisiana of 1964, she is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. The bridegroom was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College School of Pharmacy in 1964 and is an active member of Kappa Psi pharmaceutical fraternity.

Assisting with courtesies at the reception were Mrs. Jack Masur, Mrs. Ernest Eaves, Mrs. James Kelly, Mrs. Arthur Barker, Mrs. Paul Ransom, Mrs. William C. Hines, Mrs. T. A. Grant II, Mrs. T. A. Grant III, Mrs. Edmund Brown, Mrs. Richard Pipes, Mrs. Clark Ransom, Mrs. George W. Wright, Mrs. Fred Sartor, Mrs. D. A. Stancil, Mrs. Wilton A. Braley, Springhill, Mrs. W. T. Frye of Springhill; Mrs. Mae Parker, Winnfield; Mrs. Jack Plummer, Lafayette and Mrs. Robert Clark.

For their wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the bride donned a sleeveless suit of white linen, featuring double breasted gold buttons and low back belt. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1027 Royal in New Orleans.

Mrs. Simonton was graduated from Neville high school and from Louisiana State University and is a member of Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Simonton graduated from Neville high school and Tulane University and is now a senior at Tulane Medical school. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi and Phi Chi medical fraternity.

MRS. JAMES J. VANDERHOEVEN JR.

Cherie Martin Becomes Bride Of James J. Vanderhoeven Jr.

Miss Cherie Jean Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Martin of Fort Worth, Texas, became the bride of James J. Vanderhoeven Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jesse Vanderhoeven Sr., of Alexandria, in a double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Saturday, June 11 in St. Patrick's Co - Cathedral in Fort Worth.

The Rev. Edmund Moore of Monroe, cousin of the groom, officiated at the ceremony with organ music by Michael Hobson.

Mr. Martin gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown of white silk organza over taffeta featured a sweetheart neckline and cap sleeves. Chantilly lace appliques encrusted with seed pearls cascaded down the front of the gown. A chapel length train swept from a band of Chantilly lace and her veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls, crystals and lace. She carried a traditional bouquet of white blossoms centered with an orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Francis Collins, her cousin, as maid of honor; Mrs. Robert P. Rachal, matron of honor and Mrs. James F. Trotter, sister of the groom and Miss Doris Nell Barron, as bridesmaids. Their floor length gowns of yellow organza over taffeta were fashioned on empire lines and highlighted by white embroidered flower motifs. Their yellow tulle headpieces were held in place by two Majestic daisies and they carried nosegays of matching daisies encircled with greenery.

The bridegroom's father served as best man and groomsmen were Robert Bruce Jordan, James D. Davis, and Dan Vanderhoeven. Ushers were Jerry Polk, James F. Trotter, Emile P. Campbell and Clark Martin.

Mrs. Martin chose a dress in shades of aqua for her daughter's wedding. The silk shantung skirt was highlighted by a bodice of Chantilly lace over taffeta. She wore matching accessories, white kid gloves and a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Vanderhoeven wore a sheer crepe sheath with Alencon lace overblouse in cloud blue with a nylon tulle hat in matching shade, blue accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at Ridglea Country Club in Fort Worth.

For travel when the couple departed on a wedding trip the bride donned an aqua tweed suit with matching hat, beige accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home in Alexandria.

Mrs. Vanderhoeven, who graduated from Pineville high school, is a 1966 graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College. A member of Phi Mu sorority, past president of Student Teacher's Association and a former Miss Louisiana of 1964, she is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. The bridegroom was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College School of Pharmacy in 1964 and is an active member of Kappa Psi pharmaceutical fraternity.

MISS DEANNA KAY FURLOW

Deanna Kay Furlow, Fiance Calendar August 12 Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Robert Furlow, 213 Hamilton, West Monroe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Deanna Kay to Walten Alvin Fava, of Huntsville, Alabama. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmo Fava, 506 Auburn, Monroe.

The wedding is calendared for Friday, August 12 in the First Baptist Church of West Monroe at 7 p.m. Dr. Clifton Tennison will officiate.

Miss Furlow has chosen Miss Dianne Bell, West Monroe, as her maid of honor, and Mrs. Billie Joseph of Monroe, matron of honor. Bridesmaid will be Miss Linda Tolbird, Monroe.

Dennis Lamar Joseph, Monroe, will attend Mr. Fava as best man and serving as ushers will be Phillip Carpenter, Bastrop and Monroe; Guy Parker, Mer Rouge; Richard Granier, New Orleans and Richard Peel, Huntsville, Ala.

A graduate of West Monroe high school the bride - elect is scheduled to graduate August 6 from Northeast Louisiana State College with a degree in home economics. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

Mr. Fava graduated from St. Joseph Academy, Greenville, Miss., and attended George Washington University, Washington D. C. and the University of Maryland. He is presently employed as a contract negotiator for NASA in Huntsville, Ala., where the couple will reside following their marriage.

Pants Styles Range From Hipsters To Ruffled 'Jellies'

Pants carry the youth message for spring and summer: the salty, British - buttoned sailor bells; the straight, slightly widened hem of elephant pants; the above - and - below - the - knee railroad "jams," chugging merrily along in stripes, brass buckles and contrast stitching; the ankle - ruffled 'jellies."

Keeping pants non - masculine property are the pretty, lowered shirts; stitched sweaters; deeply V'd pullovers, stopped at the midriff; and black vinyl halter tops.

Youthful, wide, knee - length pants and britches are suited to smock tops in shocking colors or striped jackets.

Other pants reflect the look of the Thirties, with the longer hunting jacket in white cotton will and pique, or the three-quarter, belted camel - hair coat.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Paula Irene Eggleston to Ensign James Edward Haddox Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Haddox of Leesville, is announced by her parents, Major and Mrs. Aldrich G. Eggleston, 3600 Bon Aire Drive. A late July wedding is planned at Our Lady of Fatima Church. Miss Eggleston graduated in mathematics from Louisiana Tech where Ensign Haddox received his degree in chemical engineering. He is presently serving a tour of duty with the United States Navy. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Charleston, S. C.

Massive Summer Jewelry Makes Up For Skimpy Dress

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The less dress the more jewelry. In fact, with the skimpiest summer dance dresses, there's almost more jewelry than there is dress.

Earrings are more than dangling. Many, especially those in colorful plastics, are so large they have been dubbed "doopy-do," and are sometimes worn only one at a time.

At the other end of the jewelry spectrum, even classic pearls have been adapted to the swingy new looks. Imperial Pearl Syndicate reports that more cultured pearl ropes are being bought, instead of traditional necklaces.

With these ropes a new kind of pearl earring is worn, seven cultured pearls dangling on a chain of gold loops. This is perhaps the simplest design in a collection of dangling darlings, some mingling colored stones or gems with the pearls, others featuring baroque drops at the ends.

Cocktail rings continue to rise in popularity as dresses get ever simpler. Big baroque pearls are set free-form in gold wire designs or smooth half-round mabe pearls are ringed with several rows of beaded gold wire.

While some women will want some of the striking new plastic jewely for summer, cultured pearls remain, as always, the most generally useful of all jewelry. But they come now in quite unclassic designs, many of which can be changed to suit the dress or costume, as with necklaces which become ropes when the detachable clasp is removed.

MRS. THOMAS ALBERT BERRY III

Sheila Dyer Becomes Bride Of Thomas Albert Berry III

A large ball arrangement of white gladioli and Majestic daisies flanked by candle trees and giant palms formed a setting in Grace Baptist Church, Rayville for the wedding Saturday, June 11 of Miss Sheila Gail Dyer and Thomas Albert Berry III.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Dyer of Rayville and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Albert Berry Jr., of Shreveport.

Rev. H. L. Weeks officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. for which nuptial music was provided by Miss Eleanor Parker, pianist and Richard Rockett, soloist.

Escorted by her father the bride was wearing a gown of eyelet batiste over cotton satin fashioned on empire lines with long pointed sleeves and a detachable train. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a tiara of pearls. She carried a nosegay of white phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and velvet maidenhair fern.

Maid of honor was Miss Reba Dyer, sister of the bride, who wore a street length dress of pale blue eyelet batiste over blue cotton satin designed with the empire bodice and bell sleeves. A circlet of the fabric held her matching veil of tulle and she wore matching shoes. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Lenora Green, cousin of the bride; Miss Katherine Miller and Miss Darla Branch and the flower girl, Miss Vivian Dyer niece of the bride. They carried wicker baskets of white majestic daisies and leatherleaf fern.

Candles were lighted by R. B. Green Jr. and Raymond Green, cousins of the bride.

Ronny Lee Berry served his brother as best man and groomsmen were David Cassity, Gene Shull and Walter Reed. Alan Whitman was ring bearer.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pale blue crepe dress with matching accessories and the groom's mother chose a pale orchid lace model with purple accessories.

A reception followed in the church recreation room where the bride's table held a pyramid arrangement of white gladioli and daisies. Garlands of white daisies in leatherleaf ferm encircled the cake and punch bowl.

Assisting in courtesies were Mrs. Stuart Dyer, Mrs. Kenneth Crawford, Miss Annette Green, Miss Andrea McKinney, Miss Margaret Smith and Miss Anita Byrd.

The couple will be at home at 213 East Ratcliff in Shreveport.

For travel the bride changed into a two piece ensemble of crestella with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. A graduate of Rayville high School. the bride attended Louisiana Tech. Mr. Berry graduated from Fair Park high school and from Louisiana Tech where he received his B. S. degree in business and finance.

Carolyn Causey, Mr. Sterne Wed In Coral, White Scene

In a twilight ceremony solemnized Saturday, June 11 at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church, Miss Carolyn Dianne Causey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivvin Lawrence Causey Jr., 902 Glenmar Ave., became the bride of Emmett Larence Sterne Jr., son of Mrs. Emmett L. Sterne Sr., of Alexandria and the late Mr. Sterne.

Lighted cathedral tapers in branched and spiral candelabra illuminated the altar which was banked with greenery. Hurricane lamps with greenery and coral ribbon lined the aisles and three fan - shaped arrangements of coral gladioli interspersed with greenery completed the decor.

The Rev. James T. Horton performed the double ring ceremony which was preceded by a violin solo by David Smith and a vocal selection by Miss Gayle Smith. Traditional wedding marches were rendered by Ronny Brothers, organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of ivory satin featuring a scoop neck, semi - fitted bodice and corded satin midriff. An obi sash formed center interest for the semi - belled skirt which terminated in a voluminous double cathedral train. Her cathedral length veil of silk illusion, bordered with Alencon lace was mounted on a matching pillbox and extended past the hemline of her gown. The bride carried a bouquet of coral roses in cascade design interspersed with stephanotis blossoms and satin streamers.

Attending the bride were Mrs. James Opdyke, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, Mrs. Billy Futch, and Mrs. William Haynes Ober, cousins of the bride and Mrs. Frank Rodney Wallace, bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of coral peau de soie featuring a midriff overlay of organza and seed pearls with controlled bell skirts Their small pillbox hats were of matching coral peau encrusted with seed pearls and overlaid with short illusion veils. They wore coral satin shoes and carried cascade bouquets of white gladioli.

Miss Debra Opdyke, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and wore a floor length frock of ivory organza with puffed sleeves and bouffant skirt, accented at the waist by a coral peau de soie sash. Her hat was identical to those of the other attendants and she carried a white basket of coral rose petals.

Serving as best man for Mr. Sterne was James Opdyke and groomsmen were Don Sampson, Ken Nichols and Bill Ober. Candles were lighted by Bill Causey and Walter Causey, both cousins of the bride and acting as ring bearer was Jimmy Opdyke, nephew of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Causey chose a two piece yellow Italian silk ensemble with pillbox hat of matching silk, crested with small yellow flowers and silk illusion. Her corsage was of white roses. Mrs. Sterne, mother of the groom, wore a blue Italian silk model with matching accessories and a hat of blue flowers and illusion, with a corsage of white roses.

RECEPTION

The coral and white theme of the wedding was further carried out in appointments for the reception which followed in the church social room. A silver bowl of white chrysanthemums with coral accents centered the punch table with the tiered wedding cake decorated with coral roses served opposite.

Groom's cake served from another table was in the shape of an artist's palette with a small brush in the center. All tables were covered in ivory net and caught up with garlands of coral satin ribbons.

Mrs. Pat Golliher served the bride's cake assisted by Mrs. Henry Donohoe, and serving groom's cake was Mrs. Dale Hutsell. Alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. W. O. Causey and Mrs. Nick Hamilton. Miss Cherry Hawkins presided at the bride's book and assisting with courtesies were Mrs. Alfred Adams, and Miss Marilyn Denny.

After a wedding trip to Six Flags, Texas the couple will be at home at 4043 Heyman Lane in Alexandria. For travel the bride changed into a blue silk suit with ruffled sleeves overlaid with lace in a cutaway design. She wore matching accessories and a white rose corsage.

Mrs. Sterne finished Neville high school and is a recent graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Sterne was graduated from Bolton high school and Louisiana College, where he was a member of Kappa Pi honorary art fraternity.

Carolyn Causey, Mr. Sterne Wed In Coral, White Scene

In a twilight ceremony solemnized Saturday, June 11 at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church, Miss Carolyn Dianne Causey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivvin Lawrence Causey Jr., 902 Glenmar Ave., became the bride of Emmett Larence Sterne Jr., son of Mrs. Emmett L. Sterne Sr., of Alexandria and the late Mr. Sterne.

Lighted cathedral tapers in branched and spiral candelabra illuminated the altar which was banked with greenery. Hurricane lamps with greenery and coral ribbon lined the aisles and three fan - shaped arrangements of coral gladioli interspersed with greenery completed the decor.

The Rev. James T. Horton performed the double ring ceremony which was preceded by a violin solo by David Smith and a vocal selection by Miss Gayle Smith. Traditional wedding marches were rendered by Ronny Brothers, organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of ivory satin featuring a scoop neck, semi - fitted bodice and corded satin midriff. An obi sash formed center interest for the semi - belled skirt which terminated in a voluminous double cathedral train. Her cathedral length veil of silk illusion, bordered with Alencon lace was mounted on a matching pillbox and extended past the hemline of her gown. The bride carried a bouquet of coral roses in cascade design interspersed with stephanotis blossoms and satin streamers.

Attending the bride were Mrs. James Opdyke, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, Mrs. Billy Futch, and Mrs. William Haynes Ober, cousins of the bride and Mrs. Frank Rodney Wallace, bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of coral peau de soie featuring a midriff overlay of organza and seed pearls with controlled bell skirts Their small pillbox hats were of matching coral peau encrusted with seed pearls and overlaid with short illusion veils. They wore coral satin shoes and carried cascade bouquets of white gladioli.

Miss Debra Opdyke, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and wore a floor length frock of ivory organza with puffed sleeves and bouffant skirt, accented at the waist by a coral peau de soie sash. Her hat was identical to those of the other attendants and she carried a white basket of coral rose petals.

Serving as best man for Mr. Sterne was James Opdyke and groomsmen were Don Sampson, Ken Nichols and Bill Ober. Candles were lighted by Bill Causey and Walter Causey, both cousins of the bride and acting as ring bearer was Jimmy Opdyke, nephew of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Causey chose a two piece yellow Italian silk ensemble with pillbox hat of matching silk, crested with small yellow flowers and silk illusion. Her corsage was of white roses. Mrs. Sterne, mother of the groom, wore a blue Italian silk model with matching accessories and a hat of blue flowers and illusion, with a corsage of white roses.

RECEPTION

The coral and white theme of the wedding was further carried out in appointments for the reception which followed in the church social room. A silver bowl of white chrysanthemums with coral accents centered the punch table with the tiered wedding cake decorated with coral roses served opposite.

Groom's cake served from another table was in the shape of an artist's palette with a small brush in the center. All tables were covered in ivory net and caught up with garlands of coral satin ribbons.

Mrs. Pat Golliher served the bride's cake assisted by Mrs. Henry Donohoe, and serving groom's cake was Mrs. Dale Hutsell. Alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. W. O. Causey and Mrs. Nick Hamilton. Miss Cherry Hawkins presided at the bride's book and assisting with courtesies were Mrs. Alfred Adams, and Miss Marilyn Denny.

After a wedding trip to Six Flags, Texas the couple will be at home at 4043 Heyman Lane in Alexandria. For travel the bride changed into a blue silk suit with ruffled sleeves overlaid with lace in a cutaway design. She wore matching accessories and a white rose corsage.

Mrs. Sterne finished Neville high school and is a recent graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Sterne was graduated from Bolton high school and Louisiana College, where he was a member of Kappa Pi honorary art fraternity.

MRS. EDMUND MAZYCK THOMAS

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Patsy Williams, Mr. Thomas

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Patsy Laverne Williams and Edmund Mazyck Thomas, both of Baton Rouge on Sunday, June 5 in Trinity Episcopal Church at Baton Rouge. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Douglas Williams of Monroe and parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. James Donald Thomas of Shreveport.

Rev. David Coughlin performed the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m.

Mr. Williams gave his daughter in marriage. She was wearing a full length gown of white silk organza styled with long sleeves and draped bateau neckline. Reembroidered brocade appliques embellished the bodice and extended to the hemline. A flowing train of silk organza was topped with a bustle bow at the back waistline. Her full length veil of shadow tulle was held in place by a wedding band of lace encrusted with pearls and crystal beads. The bride carried a bouquet of stephanotis surrounding a white orchid.

Mrs. Paul Daniel Moore, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and Miss Ida Lee Hamilton, New Orleans, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. James Cantrell, New Orleans, bridesmaid; Miss Lisa Thomas, niece of the groom, junior bridesmaid and Miss Merry Moore, niece of the bride, flower girl. They wore full length gowns of aqua peau de soie with bustle bows at the back waistline. Their veils were held in place by wedding bands of aqua peau styled similar to the bride's headpiece. White marguerite daisies entwined with English ivy comprised their bouquets.

Albert C. Mills III served as best man and groomsmen ushers were Donald Thomas, brother of the groom; Robert Ammons of Many, Douglas Williams, brother of the bride, and Tommy Hughes, cousin of the groom.

For the wedding and reception which followed in the Woman's Club House, Mrs. Williams was wearing a pink lace suit with pink accessories. The groom's mother chose an aqua lace model with accessories to match and both wore pink orchid corsages.

Assisting with reception courtesies were Miss Joyce Yeldell, Mrs. Mike Kopfler, Mrs. Albert C. Mills III, Mrs. Charles Adams, Mrs. Ray C. James and Mrs. Donald Thomas at the bride's book.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge. A graduate of Ouachita Parish high school, the bride attended Northeast Louisiana State College and Louisiana State University. She is a member of Phi Mu social sorority. Mr. Thomas graduated from Byrd high school and LSU and is presently attending LSU Law school. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity and Phi Alpha Delta honorary law fraternity.

R. T. Lolley Jr. Claims Bride In New Orleans

The marriage of Miss Patricia Ruth Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lucky Campbell of Coushatta to Russell Thomas Lolley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas Lolley of West Monroe, was celebrated Wednesday, June 8 in Holy Name of Jesus Church in New Orleans.

The ceremony at 10 a.m. was attended by immediate families of the bride and groom.

For her wedding the bride wore a dress of white silk appliqued with Belgian lace which matched her shoulder length mantilla veil. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Robert A. Connell of Baton Rouge was the bride's matron of honor. She wore a dress of blue pique and a short veil of matching shade. Her bouquet was an old fashioned nosegay of white carnations.

Robert A. Connell of Baton Rouge attended Mr. Lolley as best man. Joseph Michael Lynch of West Monroe served as acolyte for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Sidney Tonsmeire, pastor of Holy Name of Jesus Church.

Varieties of white flowers were used to decorate the church and also for the wedding breakfast that followed at a French Quarter restaurant. For the breakfast the wedding party was seated around a table that held the traditional wedding cake as a centerpiece.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Florida the couple will be at home in New Orleans, where Mr. Lolley will complete his study of medicine.

The night before the wedding, the groom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner in a restaurant in the Garden district. Deep shades of pink were used in the decorations.

James Gilliland Jr. Claims Sarah Johnston As Bride

Pink cathedral tapers in candelabra entwined with woodwardia fern and urns of pink gladioli banked with woodwardia formed a setting in the First Methodist Church, West Monroe Saturday, June 11 for the wedding at 7:30 p.m. of Miss Sarah Francis Johnston and James Walter Gilliland Jr. Family pews were marked with pink satin bows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Pipes Andrew Johnston, 1110 N. 2nd, and Dr. and Mrs. James Walter Gilliland, 1503 N. 3rd, all of West Monroe.

Rev. Kenneth G. McDowell officiated at the double ring ceremony with traditional wedding music by Mrs. Jack Willis, organist and Mrs. Roy C. Brooks and Mrs. Earl Cox, vocalists.

Escorted by her uncle, Louie Clayton Calhoun, the bride wore a traditional gown of peau taffeta and Alencon lace, embroidered in seed pearls. The fitted basque featured a Sabrina neckline and elbow sleeves with accents of the lace. The easy sheath skirt was embellished with pearl and lace motifs extending down the front. Falling in voluminous folds from the skirt in back was a chapel train of peau taffeta. Her veil of silk illusion drifted from a two tier crown of pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade of stephanotis and ivy centered with a removable white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Charles H. Tarver, matron of honor, wore a formal length gown of chiffon and Cluny lace in petal pink. Ruffles of the lace encircled the elbow sleeves of the empire bodice of lace. The slim skirt was accented at the waist by a narrow satin band ending in a petite bow, with panels of lace falling from the shoulders to the floor in back. A matching pillbox hat and shoes completed her costume, and she carried a pink glamellia bouquet tied with blue ribbon and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Marilyn Ann McKee and bridesmaids, Miss Judy McNeil, Hereford, Texas, cousin of the groom; Mrs. Richard C. Rousseau, Mrs. Gary K. Bright, Savannah, Ga., sister of the groom; Mrs. Marvin L. Kitchens, cousin of the bride and Mrs. Reginald E. Pleasant, wore gowns and accessories styled identically to that of the honor attendant, in aqua and carried pendant bouquets of pink gladioli and ivy garlands, tied with pink satin ribbon.

Flower girls were Kim Norman, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Ralph Norman, Monroe and Mary Clair Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Pollard, Baton Rouge. They wore long pink chiffon frocks with pink satin hair bows and carried baskets of feathered pink carnations.

Barry Harold Odom attended Mr. Gilliland as best man and groomsmen were Larry Bright, Ken May, Joe Hoff Jr., Robert Ballard, Jimmy Calhoun and Herbert Spencer. Ushers, who also served as candlelighters were Richard Crockett and Ronnie Miletello. Ring bearers were Christopher Kitchens and Lee Carpenter Hoff.

Mrs. Johnston was wearing a pink crepe model with bodice of matching Alencon lace and a floating back panel. Her accessories were of pink and she wore a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. The groom's mother, Mrs. Gilliland, chose a two piece bone lace over blue, accented at the waist with a blue chiffon bow and piping. A blue silk organza pillbox and matching shoes completed her attire and she wore a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids.

At the reception which followed in the church social room, the bride's table was covered with a floor length white taffeta cloth, overlaid with a full nylon net skirt, edged with southern smilax and caught up at the corners with stephanotis clusters. Flanking the bride's cake were pink tapers and flowers in crystal candelabra. A memory candle was displayed on the bride's book table also covered in white and adorned with smilax and stephanotis. The groom's table was covered with a gold floor length cloth, bordered with gold cord and featuring brass candelabra on either side of his cake.

For going - away when the couple left on a wedding trip to Savannah, Ga., the bride was wearing a sleeveless sheath of pink bonded crepe with coat and lace trim on collar and cuffs, matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. Both graduated from West Monroe high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. Upon their return they will be at home at 1605 Cole Ave., Monroe.

MRS. WILLIAM SAWYER FILES JR.

Files-Wilson Vows Read In Shreveport

Broadmoor Methodist Church in Shreveport was scene of the ceremony Saturday, June 11 which united in marriage Miss Georgia Carol Wilson and William Sawyer Files Jr. A reception followed the ceremony at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyman Wilson of Shreveport and Mr. Files is the son of Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. William Sawyer Files of Oak Ridge.

Miss Diane Dees of Shreveport served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Paula Eggleston of Monroe and Helen Shaffer, Baton Rouge.

Col. Files attended his son as best man and groomsmen were Joe Files, Bastrop, Neil Mott, Oak Grove, both cousins of the groom; Glynn Wilson, brother of the bride and James Owens, Houston, Texas.

The bride received the B.S. degree May 30 from Louisiana Tech where she was a member of Sigma Kappa sorority and was on the Dean's list. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Charles Browning Thomasson and the late Mr. Thomasson of Murfreesboro, Ark., and Mrs. Grace Ira Wilson and the late Mr. Wilson, Shreveport.

Mr. Files is descended from Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Limerick and the late Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Files, all of Oak Ridge. He was graduated from Fayetteville high school, Fayetteville, N.C., and received his B.S. degree in electrical engineering and commission in the air force at graduation from Louisiana Tech May 30. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Arnold Air Society and the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers.

NEW PLASTIC PAIL

A new narrow "skinny" plastic pail is designed to accommodate those elongated sponge mops which reduce the number of strokes required to suds off floor surfaces. It has a pointed spout at one end, and opposite is a convenient built-in grip for tipping the colorful pail.

Miss Judy Sharon Cobb Weds Edward Taylor Heard Jr. In Candlelight Ceremony

In a double ring ceremony at the First Methodist Church of Monroe on Saturday, June 11 at 7 p.m., Miss Judy Sharon Cobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Bishop Cobb, 804 Auburn Ave., became the bride of Edward Taylor Heard III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor Heard Jr., 1701 Auburn Ave.

Myriad lighted tapers in seven-branched candelabra and candle trees entwined with Southern smilax formed an arch for the exchange of vows with Rev. George W. Harbuck officiating. Pedestal jardiniers held massive arrangements of all white California gladioli, stock, agapantha, roses, Majestic daisies and pompons. Southern smilax garlanded the chancel rail.

Preceding the exchange of vows appropriate nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Jack White as the candles were lighted by Miss Vickie Ethel Moreland, Ringgold, cousin of the bride and Miss Susan Alice Denny, Houston, Texas, cousin of the groom. They wore ankle length frocks of moss green peau de soie with matching shoes and moss green bows of peau de soie attached to shadow brims of matching maline. Mrs. Joe W. Caskey sang during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a regal gown of white silk peau de soie with a wide oval neckline. Imported French Alencon lace bands created the empire design of the moulded bodice and formed bell sleeves. The fluid A-line skirt was enhanced with wide scalloped bands of the lace at the hemline and was complemented by a full length Watteau train. Her bouffant veil of English silk illusion drifted elbow length from a coronet of seed pearls. She wore an heirloom pin belonging to her great, great grandmother, and carried a handkerchief of embroidered silk belonging to the groom's great, great grandmother. Stephanotis and orchids comprised her bridal bouquet in crescent design with showers of satin ribbons.

Mrs. Harvey Parnell Perry, Baton Rouge, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. James Lannis Roberts, Baton Rouge; Mrs. Billy Ray Bryant, Miss Carol Jean Cahn and Miss Marretta Heidenreich, all of Monroe. Their floor length gowns of mint green chiffon over taffeta featured low scoop necklines and French circular sleeves. Embroidered ribbon band defined the empire bodice and floating chiffon panels attached by a flat bow at the back neckline, drifted to the hem of the skirts. Their headpieces were open crown toques with back bows and illusion veils. Wrist length kid gloves and matching slippers completed their attire and they carried cascades of feathered chrysanthemums and English ivy.

Mr. Heard attended his son as best man. Serving as groomsmen were Jay Dixon Johnson, Houston, Texas; Richard Evans Ethridge Jr., Henry Alvin Biedenharn III and Barre Christopher Tanguis, all of Monroe. Ushers included John Alan Cobb, Magnolia, Ark., brother of the bride; Billy Ray Bryant, Henry Hill Hinkle Jr. and Robert Osburn Koontz, also of Monroe.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Cobb chose an original design of powder blue Chantilly lace over silk peau de soie. A flowing cape of matching lace enhanced the Sabrina neckline and sheath skirt of the gown. Her accessories were of matching hue. Mrs. Heard was wearing a daffodil yellow sheath of chiffon over peau de soie with a yellow organdy cloche and matching accessories. Both mothers wore white Japhet orchids.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the ballroom of the Paragon club which was transformed into a garden setting for the occasion. Topiary trees flanked the entrance where Mrs. Curtis Cook Jr., Mrs. Doyle R. Hamilton and Mrs. Orin Casper Jones, alternated in greeting guests.

White urns atop pedestals held massive twin arrangements of all white flowers, at either side of the receiving line. The bride's book table, covered in white satin, held a traditional memory candle, garlanded with leather leaf fern. Presiding at the book were Mrs. John Alan Cobb, Magnolia, Ark., and Mrs. Michael Smith, Ringgold, cousin of the bride.

A bisque cherub compote, overflowing with an all white arrangement of tuberoses, daisies, stock and gladioli flanked by five-branch candelabra centered the reception table which was covered in white satin and garlanded with smilax. Alternating at the silver punch bowl were Mrs. William Driskell McGee, Mrs. John Boyd McKinley and Mrs. Dhu Thompson while Mrs. John Collins, Mrs. George Cox and Mrs. Charles Elliot Thompson alternated at the silver coffee service.

The bridal table was also covered with white satin and garlanded with smilax, and held the tiered wedding cake, wreathed in fern, which was served by Mrs. Marlan Mike Moreland, Mrs. John Newton Wimberly, Mrs. Ila Phelps, and Mrs. Rodney Smith, all aunts of the bride. The groom's cake, symbolic of his chosen profession, geology, was appropriately inscribed with a geologists' pick. A miniature oil well interspersed with English ivy decorated the table. Mrs. Otway Broad Denny, Mrs. Harold Oakmail, Mrs. Franklin Heard and Mrs. Wade Dick, all aunts of the groom, served the cake.

Other members of the houseparty were Mrs. Victor Cahn, Mrs. Guy M. Heidenreich, Mrs. Thomas Hyland, Mrs. Joseph Eugene Heard, aunt of the groom; Mrs. Joe Heard and Mrs. Frank Colvett.

Silver trays of sandwiches were passed among guests by Mrs. Jay Dixon Johnston, Mrs. Hank Biedenharn, Miss Pat Ainsworth, Miss Iva Nell Hilburn and Miss Janet Wimberly, Ringgold, cousin of the bride. Distributing rice bags were Misses Debbie Hamilton, Brenda Hamilton, Leah Smith, Paula Gaiennie and Wesley Jean Heard.

Prior to their departure for a wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed to a three-piece ensemble of peony pink linen with A-line skirt and cutaway jacket. A pink straw toque with pale pink chiffon band and matching accessories completed her attire and she wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Heard finished Neville high school and graduated in May from Northeast Louisiana State College, with a degree in office administration. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority, National Collegiate Association for Secretaries and Sigma Tau Delta English fraternity. A graduate of Neville and Northeast with a degree in geology, Mr. Heard is presently working on his MS in geology at Northeast where he is an alumnus of Kappa Alpha Order and has served as president of the Northeast Geological Society.

MRS. DONALD JACK CROCKER

Capt. Donald Jack Crocker Claims Texas Girl As Bride

Miss Star Stephanie Bobys and Captain Donald Jack Crocker, United States Army, Corps of Engineers, were married Saturday evening, June 4 in a military ceremony in the Battalion Avenue West Chapel at Fort Hood, Texas. Chaplain Black officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Everett Bobys of Corpus Christi, Texas and parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Crocker, 116 Selman Drive, Monroe.

Arrangements of white stock and Majestic daisies decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was wearing a full length gown of candlelight peau de soie. The empire bodice, lavishly embellished with pearls, featured a Sabrina neckline and lantern sleeves in elbow length. A watteau detachable train fell from two shoulder bows over the sheath skirt. Her matching veil of English silk illusion fell from a large peau de soie bow encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pale pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis centered with a white cattleya orchid, showered with pink and white streamers.

Mrs. Bruce K. Bobys, Oklahoma City, Okla., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of pale pink silk linen and waist and bell sleeves of hot pink lace. Her matching headpiece was of hot pink petals with pale pink seed pearls. She carried a basket-styled bouquet of pale pink pompons tied with matching satin streamers.

Lloyd Crocker, Morgan City attended his brother as best man.

A reception was held in the Officers' Club at Fort Hood following the ceremony. Mrs. Crocker mother of the groom, was wearing for the occasion a silk of pastel pink with pink lace trim and a matching headpiece. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The bride's table was decorated with arrangements of pink sensation roses and white Majestic daisies. The traditional saber was placed beside the tiered wedding cake. Assisting with the reception were Mrs. Allan K. Bobys, Corpus Christi, Texas and Mrs. Lloyd Crocker, Morgan City, both of whom were presented corsages of white daisies.

The bride was graduated from W. B. Ray high school in Corpus Christi and attended the University of Houston, Texas. Capt. Crocker was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school. He received his B. S. degree in geology from Northeast Louisiana State College and did graduate study at the University of Oklahoma in Norman, Okla.

Howle-Clanton Wedding Held In Candlelight Scene

In a double ring ceremony Saturday, June 11, Miss Donna Lynn Clanton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin O. Clanton of Lake Providence, became the bride of William Stanley Howle, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howle of Lubbock, Texas.

Rev. Paul Young performed the vows at 7:30 p.m. in First Assembly of God Church, Lake Providence. Baskets of white gladioli against a background of white tapers in branched candelabra formed the altar setting and candles with greenery were used in the windows.

Mrs. Paul Young, organist and Miss Jane Thomas, soloist, presented wedding music.

Mr. Clanton gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown was an elegant A - line design of French Chantilly lace with medallions of lace appliqued at the Sabrina neckline, highlighted with marquis pearls. Long sleeves of the empire bodice, tapered to lily points. A court train of lace combined with tulle fell from the shoulders. Her veil of illusion was attached to a crown of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with a white orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Jean Bearden, maid of honor; Miss Jo Cumpton, Monroe and Miss Ann Kennedy, Lake Providence, bridesmaids; Miss Patricia Howle, Lubbock, sister of the groom, junior bridesmaid and Miss Rhonda Crnkovic, flower girl. They wore floor length empire style gowns of parrot blue embossed peau de soie, featured cap sleeves, and back bows at the round necklines from which fell floor length trains. Their veiled pillboxes were of matching peau and they carried nosegays of white carnations.

Mr. Howle served his son as best man and groomsmen were Melvin Clanton, brother of the bride; Pat Jackson and Steve Honeycutt, all of Lake Providence. Ushers were Lionel Styron, Bastrop and Johnny Kirksey, Lake Providence.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Clanton wore a pink crepe dress with jacket of white lace, matching lace hat and pink accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. The groom's mother chose an aqua silk shantung sheath with lace jacket, white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The social room of Lake Providence Bank was scene of the reception which followed. Covered with a lace cloth the bride's table was adorned with pink tapers in silver candelabra and the bridesmaids' bouquets. Presiding at the punch bowl were Miss Jane Bearden and Miss Mildred Lee and serving cake was Mrs. Clara Lendeman of Vidalia. Miss Kay Young was at the bride's book and rice bags were presented guests by Cynthia Crnkovic and Robin Young.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Lubbock, where Mr. Howle is employed. For travel the bride wore a mint green suit, white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Both are graduates of Lake Providence high school and Mr. Howle attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe.

Paintings Screen Television Sets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Where would you place 20 television sets around the house? Mrs. David Sarmoff, wife of the board chairman of Radio Corporation of America and "father of television," has that problem.

So she devised a decorative answer. The faces of the 20 sets are concealed behind original paintings. When viewing on a particular set is in order, a button is pressed and the picture slides away from the television face. Press the button again at show's end and the picture slides back over the set.

MRS. DOUGLAS BAZSINSKY LEWIS

Home Reception Follows Lewis-Knotts Wedding Vows

Miss Nancy Rutledge Knotts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Christopher Knotts of Sicily Island, became the bride of Douglas Bazsinsky Lewis, son of Dr. and Mrs. Nathan Ben Lewis, Vicksburg, Miss., in a double ring ceremony Saturday, June 11 at 7:30 p.m. in First Methodist Church of Wisner.

White tapers in wrought iron candelabra illuminated the arched stained glass window to provide a background setting, for a pyramid arrangement of white gladioli, stock and chrysanthemums placed with brass candle holders on the communion table. Completing the setting were balanced designs of the same white flowers amid green commadore foliage.

Rev. Ira A. Love officiated at the ceremony with appropriate music by the organist, Mrs. James R. Williams and soloist, Miss Joyce Tisdale.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride was wearing a gown of ivory peau de soie and Alencon lace fashioned on princess lines. The high bodice of lace was encrusted with pearls and sequins which were repeated at wrists of the long tapered sleeves. Side panels of Alencon lace extended to the hemline of the belled skirt with full bloom peau de soie roses accenting back fullness which terminated in a chapel train. Her tiered veil of imported illusion cascaded from an ivory crown of pearls, sequins and lace. She carried a bouquet of white brides roses centered with a yellow throated white hybrid orchid, in cascade design.

Mrs. Joe Henry Baughman, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and brides maids were Miss Karen Burnside, Miss Nancy Kay Brown, Mrs. Gary Newchurch and Mrs. Charles K. Thornhill. Their gowns of maize imported Irish linen were styled with low scoop necklines, empire waists and A line skirts, highlighted by moss green velvet ribbons with long streamers at the back. Circular lace cuffs edged the three quarter length sleeves and they wore large picture hats of horsehair braid with tulle streamers encircling the tall crowns. Their bouquets were of white Majestic daisies accented with moss green silk.

Dr. Lewis served his son as best man and groomsmen were Honorable Richard Baxter Wilson Jr., Dr. John C. Stepan, Richard Fenstermacher II and John Wayne Jabour.

Flickering votive lights in wought iron hurricane stands lighted the grounds of the Knotts family home which was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Knotts received her guests wearing a mint green chiffon model with bodice of embroidered lace and matching petal hat of silk organza. Her corsage was of citron orchids. Mrs. Lewis, mother of the groom, chose a sheath of aqua silk linen and Chantilly lace with matching maline bow headpiece. A pink hybrid orchid formed her corsage.

The bridal motif of the church decorations was repeated in the reception area. A silver epergne holding a large arrangement of pink roses and white stock centered the refreshment table which was covered with pink sat in overlaid with a creme lace cloth. The round cake table was also draped in pink satin overlaid with a gathered net cloth, caught up with satin ribbon and rosebuds.

Mrs. Charles E. Neely, San Diego, Calif., aunt of the bride and Mrs. Lee Elledge of Oakdale, served the cake and alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. E. B. Knotts and Mrs. C. H. Foster. Miss Amanda Burnside presided at the bride's book.

For travel when the counle left on a wedding trip to the Mssissippi Gulf Coast the bride was wearing a light blue and chartreuse three piece silk linen suit with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. They will reside temporarily in Vicksburg.

Kappa Delta Sorority To Be Colonized On NLSC Campus

Scheduled to colonize on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus this fall is Kappa Delta Sorority, the fourth national order to be installed at the local college. Kappa Delta was invited officially to the campus by President George T. Walker upon the recommendation of the Sororities and Fraternities Committee which had studied applications and proposals of several National Panhellenic members before sending its findings to the college Panhellenic Board for approval. Kappa Delta joins Alpha Omicron Pi, Phi Mu, and Zeta Tau Alpha, all National Panhellenic Member Sororities.

In accepting the invitation to establish a Kappa Delta chapter at Northeast Louisiana State College, Mrs. Emery A. Good, National Chapterian, wrote, "Kappa Delta is very appreciative of the careful analysis and consideration given in reaching a decision to add a fourth sorority on your campus. We look forward to working with the college administration and the local Panhellenic, and we welcome the opportunity of contributing to the campus life at Northeast Louisiana State College."

Founded in 1897 at Longwood College in Farmville, Virginia, Kappa Delta presently has 104 collegiate chapters and 345 chartered alumnae associations. The national president of the sorority, a graduate of Louisiana Tech, is Mrs. Frederick T. Morse of Charlottesville, Virginia. Province president is Miss Ann Dodson, also a Louisiana Tech graduate. According to sorority records, approximately 75 women in the Monroe area are Kappa Delta alumnae.

Through the sale of Christmas seals designed by and sold to Kappa Deltas as well as by memorial gifts, Kappa Delta supports its national philanthropy, work with the Crippled Childrens' Hospital of Richmond, Virginia, where for many years Kappa Delta has supported six beds at the hospital and made annual gifts to provide and improve facilities and staff. The sorority gives three annual awards for Orthopedic Research and college and alumnae associations work locally with crippled children.

The NLSC Chapter will join three others in Louisiana, those at LSU, Louisiana Tech, and USL. There are four college chapters in Mississippi and eight in Texas.

Howle-Clanton Wedding Held In Candlelight Scene

In a double ring ceremony Saturday, June 11, Miss Donna Lynn Clanton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin O. Clanton of Lake Providence, became the bride of William Stanley Howle, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howle of Lubbock, Texas.

Rev. Paul Young performed the vows at 7:30 p.m. in First Assembly of God Church, Lake Providence. Baskets of white gladioli against a background of white tapers in branched candelabra formed the altar setting and candles with greenery were used in the windows.

Mrs. Paul Young, organist and Miss Jane Thomas, soloist, presented wedding music.

Mr. Clanton gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown was an elegant A - line design of French Chantilly lace with medallions of lace appliqued at the Sabrina neckline, highlighted with marquis pearls. Long sleeves of the empire bodice, tapered to lily points. A court train of lace combined with tulle fell from the shoulders. Her veil of illusion was attached to a crown of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with a white orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Jean Bearden, maid of honor; Miss Jo Cumpton, Monroe and Miss Ann Kennedy, Lake Providence, bridesmaids; Miss Patricia Howle, Lubbock, sister of the groom, junior bridesmaid and Miss Rhonda Crnkovic, flower girl. They wore floor length empire style gowns of parrot blue embossed peau de soie, featured cap sleeves, and back bows at the round necklines from which fell floor length trains. Their veiled pillboxes were of matching peau and they carried nosegays of white carnations.

Mr. Howle served his son as best man and groomsmen were Melvin Clanton, brother of the bride; Pat Jackson and Steve Honeycutt, all of Lake Providence. Ushers were Lionel Styron, Bastrop and Johnny Kirksey, Lake Providence.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Clanton wore a pink crepe dress with jacket of white lace, matching lace hat and pink accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. The groom's mother chose an aqua silk shantung sheath with lace jacket, white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The social room of Lake Providence Bank was scene of the reception which followed. Covered with a lace cloth the bride's table was adorned with pink tapers in silver candelabra and the bridesmaids' bouquets. Presiding at the punch bowl were Miss Jane Bearden and Miss Mildred Lee and serving cake was Mrs. Clara Lendeman of Vidalia. Miss Kay Young was at the bride's book and rice bags were presented guests by Cynthia Crnkovic and Robin Young.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Lubbock, where Mr. Howle is employed. For travel the bride wore a mint green suit, white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Both are graduates of Lake Providence high school and Mr. Howle attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe.

MRS. RONALD WAYNE HENDRICKS

Hendricks-House Vows Read In Green, White Setting

In an early afternoon ceremony Friday, June 10 in the First Methodist Church of Winnsboro, Miss Barbara Ruth House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wade House of Winnsboro, became the bride of Ronald Wayne Hendricks, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Olan Hendricks of Plains, Texas.

Glowing white tapers in wrought iron candelabra amid a background of jade greenery formed a setting for the wedding. At the base of the large brass cross on the communion table was an asymetrical design of white stock, gladioli and chrysanthemums. White raffia baskets of the blossoms completed the altar setting.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Edwin H. House Jr., uncle of the bride, following a piano prelude by Miss Suzanne Walter and vocal selections by Miss Nelda Zeagler.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length empire gown of white peau de soie with the lace bodice featuring a scalloped neckline. Back interest was created by a flowing lace train in chapel length. Her tiered veil of illusion fell from a white beaded pillbox. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis blossoms and garlands of miniature ivy centered with a white hybrid orchid and cresting a small white testament.

Miss Frances Evelyn Wiltshire of Winnsboro, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Gay Walter of Winnsboro and Mrs. Jerry Hartfield of Memphis, Tenn. They wore identical full length gowns of pale yellow crepe featuring lace bodices and long lace trains. Completing their ensembles were wrist length gloves and headpieces of matching satin bows. Their bouquets of modified crescent design were of white Majestic daisies accented by ivy foliage and touches of emerald satin.

Candles were lighted by Miss Rene Hendricks, sister of the groom and Billy Wade House, brother of the bride. Miss Hendricks wore a formal length dress of yellow embroidered silk organza and a wreath of white daisies comprised her headpiece.

Wayne Walker of Bossier City served Mr. Hendricks as best man. Groomsmen were Dick Reiding of Bossier City and Bill Marioneaux of Winnsboro.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. House wore a mint green two piece model with matching accessories. Mrs. Hendricks wore a blue silk shantung dress with blue accessories. Both mothers wore cymbidium orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church parlor. The bride's table held an arrangement of her chosen flower, the Majestic daisy, in a white ceramic cherub compote. Baker's fern and ivy garlands also enhanced the white tulle covered table, which held the crystal punch service and the bride's cake.

Tea girls were Misses Kathy Parker, Cretia Parker, Dee Ann Dickerson, Cheryll Brooks, Marion Mixon and Mrs. Micky Phillips. Miss Eileen Parker was seated at the guest book. Rice bags were presented guests by Christy Parker, cousin of the bride and John Walter and Robert Craig House, her brothers.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. W. D. Parker of Ferriday; Mrs. E. H. House Jr., of Gibsland, Mrs. Carl E. Dickerson of Las Vegas, Nev., Mrs. Leo Bruce and Mrs. Woody Posey of Winnsboro.

Following their wedding trip the couple will be at home in Plains, Texas for the summer. In the fall both will resume their studies at Northwestern State College. For travel the bride wore a pale blue ensemble with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Tropical Fruits Get Treatment To Lengthen Life

In the past, only people who traveled to Hawaii had a chance to sample the island's delicate tropical fruits at their best. Very little fresh fruit has been exported because it is so perishable. But, thanks to a gamma-ray treatment from a cobalt irradiator, Hawaiian fruits will soon be plentiful in all 50 states, says Nucleonics.

Normally, papayas are fresh for 4 to 5 days. But, with a gamma shot in the skin, papayas will last 10 days or more. And, a good dose of gamma considerably lengthens the shelf life of pineapples, mangoes, and bananas.

Other Hawaiian crops will also be tested under gamma irradiation. But don't get your hopes up if you're an avocado aficionado — as yet, they aren't responding to treatment.

MRS. DAVID WARREN SMITH

Linda Louise Price Bride Of David Warren Smith

Miss Linda Louise Price, daughter of Mrs. Leroy G. Price and the late Mr. Price of Baton Rouge, became the bride of David Warren Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilford D. Smith of Monroe, in a 2 o'clock ceremony Saturday, June 4 in North Highland Hills Baptist Church, Baton Rouge.

The Rev. Bruce Lowe officiated at the double ring vows following an organ prelude by Mrs. Bruce Lowe, who also accompanied the vocalist, James Watts.

The bride is a graduate of Istrouma high school in Baton Rouge and was graduated with honors in May from Northeast Louisiana State College. At Northeast she was a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, the Northeast Honor Society, Delta Omicron Music sorority and Senior Board.

Mr. Smith, a graduate of Neville high school, is a senior at Northeast, where he is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Music fraternity; Northeast Honor Society, Scabbard and Blade Military Society, Omicron Delta Kappa and was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Following a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Monroe where Mr. Smith will continue his studies at Northeast.

Given in marriage by her brother, James G. Price, the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie fashioned with bell sleeves. Appliques of lace re-embroidered with tiny seed pearls accented the neckline and sleeves and cascaded down front of the A - line skirt. Her bouffant veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of peau de soie roses appliqued with lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Ann Adams of Monroe served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Gayle Smith, sister of the groom, Miss Ellen Walker, both of Monroe and Miss Brenda Lewis of Greenup, Kentucky. They wore sleeveless gowns of frosted aqua fashioned with floor length A - line skirts. Two aqua roses formed their headpieces and each carried a crescent bouquet of yellow carnations.

Miss Barbara Russell, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She also wore a frosted aqua dress with matching hair bow and carried a basket of yellow carnations. Serving as ring bearer was Daren Appleby, also a cousin of the bride.

Dr. Smith served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Bobby L. Price, and Glenn G. Price, brothers of the bride, and William Porter, Bastrop. Ushers were Thomas Porter of Bastrop and John Russell of Poplarville, Miss.

For the reception which followed the church parlor was decorated with large baskets of white and yellow gladioli and greenery. Mrs. Price was wearing an aqua lace ensemble with matching accessories and a lavender orchid corsage. Mrs. Smith wore a pink lace sheath with accessories to match and a lavender orchid. Mrs. J. L. Whittington, grandmother of the bride, chose a pink lace model with a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

The circular bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over floor length organdy. Mrs Thelma Boyte, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Bobby Price, sister-in-law of the bride, were at the guest book table, on which was displayed a memory candle.

Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Lewis Appleby, aunt of the bride; Mrs. George T. Walker, Monroe, and Mrs. Roy Taylor. Serving the wedding cake were Mrs. Leonard G. Adams and Mrs. B. Mack Hearne, both of Monroe. Also in the house party were Mrs. Annie Martin of Columbia and Mrs. Paul Russell of Monticello, Miss. Tea girls were Misses Janet Brown, Myra Brown, Nancy Taylor, Elaine Turner and Sandra Brumfield. Rice bags were distributed by Miss Debra Courville.

Coin Shape Is Popular Shoe Toe In Fashion

NEW YORK (UPI) — Quarters dollars and half-dollars have a new meaning in women's fashions this spring.

The coins have been converted into terms for the newest toe shapes in women's shoes, according to E. E. Joiner, styling director for Mears Division of the United Shoe Machinery Corp. He said the half - dollar tip is going to be the season's most popular shape.

Crossett Couple Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Penelope Nason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oxford Nason became the bride Saturday, June 11 at 7:30 p.m. of Dennis E. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Jones all of Crossett.

Rev. John B. Hefley of Little Rock, performed the double ring ceremony in the First Methodist Church against a background of banked greenery with white tapers in branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli.

Mrs. W. B. Anderson was organist and vocalists were Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Carter.

Escorted by her father the bride was wearing a sanki suit of white raw silk. The fitted jacket with three-quarter sleeves was fashioned with a roll collar forming a portrait neckline caught at the side with a rhinestone and pearl clasp. The sheath skirt was street length. A pillbox of matching fabric held her short white veil. She carried a white Bible, gift of her father on which rested a bouquet of lily of the valley centered with white orchids.

Mrs. Joe K. Bridgforth, sister of the groom, of Rogers, Ark., who served as matron of honor, wore an A-line ensemble of shell pink silk linen with matching veiled pillbox. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink cymbidium orchids.

Mr. Jones attended his son as best man. Ushers were Robert O. Nason Jr., Stephen S. Nason brothers of the bride; Richard S. Jones Jr.; brother of the groom and Joe K. Bridgforth.

A reception followed in Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was draped with peau de soie and centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons and pink roses in a silver compote flanked by lighted pink tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. Stephen Nason presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Billy Joe Holder served the tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Richard Jones Jr. was at the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast the couple will be at home in Atlanta, Ga., where Mr. Jones will be a graduate student at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

MRS. RONALD WAYNE HENDRICKS

Hendricks-House Vows Read In Green, White Setting

In an early afternoon ceremony Friday, June 10 in the First Methodist Church of Winnsboro, Miss Barbara Ruth House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wade House of Winnsboro, became the bride of Ronald Wayne Hendricks, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Olan Hendricks of Plains, Texas.

Glowing white tapers in wrought iron candelabra amid a background of jade greenery formed a setting for the wedding. At the base of the large brass cross on the communion table was an asymetrical design of white stock, gladioli and chrysanthemums. White raffia baskets of the blossoms completed the altar setting.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Edwin H. House Jr., uncle of the bride, following a piano prelude by Miss Suzanne Walter and vocal selections by Miss Nelda Zeagler.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length empire gown of white peau de soie with the lace bodice featuring a scalloped neckline. Back interest was created by a flowing lace train in chapel length. Her tiered veil of illusion fell from a white beaded pillbox. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis blossoms and garlands of miniature ivy centered with a white hybrid orchid and cresting a small white testament.

Miss Frances Evelyn Wiltshire of Winnsboro, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Gay Walter of Winnsboro and Mrs. Jerry Hartfield of Memphis, Tenn. They wore identical full length gowns of pale yellow crepe featuring lace bodices and long lace trains. Completing their ensembles were wrist length gloves and headpieces of matching satin bows. Their bouquets of modified crescent design were of white Majestic daisies accented by ivy foliage and touches of emerald satin.

Candles were lighted by Miss Rene Hendricks, sister of the groom and Billy Wade House, brother of the bride. Miss Hendricks wore a formal length dress of yellow embroidered silk organza and a wreath of white daisies comprised her headpiece.

Wayne Walker of Bossier City served Mr. Hendricks as best man. Groomsmen were Dick Reiding of Bossier City and Bill Marioneaux of Winnsboro.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. House wore a mint green two piece model with matching accessories. Mrs. Hendricks wore a blue silk shantung dress with blue accessories. Both mothers wore cymbidium orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church parlor. The bride's table held an arrangement of her chosen flower, the Majestic daisy, in a white ceramic cherub compote. Baker's fern and ivy garlands also enhanced the white tulle covered table, which held the crystal punch service and the bride's cake.

Tea girls were Misses Kathy Parker, Cretia Parker, Dee Ann Dickerson, Cheryll Brooks, Marion Mixon and Mrs. Micky Phillips. Miss Eileen Parker was seated at the guest book. Rice bags were presented guests by Christy Parker, cousin of the bride and John Walter and Robert Craig House, her brothers.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. W. D. Parker of Ferriday; Mrs. E. H. House Jr., of Gibsland, Mrs. Carl E. Dickerson of Las Vegas, Nev., Mrs. Leo Bruce and Mrs. Woody Posey of Winnsboro.

Following their wedding trip the couple will be at home in Plains, Texas for the summer. In the fall both will resume their studies at Northwestern State College. For travel the bride wore a pale blue ensemble with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Tropical Fruits Get Treatment To Lengthen Life

In the past, only people who traveled to Hawaii had a chance to sample the island's delicate tropical fruits at their best. Very little fresh fruit has been exported because it is so perishable. But, thanks to a gamma-ray treatment from a cobalt irradiator, Hawaiian fruits will soon be plentiful in all 50 states, says Nucleonics.

Normally, papayas are fresh for 4 to 5 days. But, with a gamma shot in the skin, papayas will last 10 days or more. And, a good dose of gamma considerably lengthens the shelf life of pineapples, mangoes, and bananas.

Other Hawaiian crops will also be tested under gamma irradiation. But don't get your hopes up if you're an avocado aficionado — as yet, they aren't responding to treatment.

MRS. DAVID WARREN SMITH

Linda Louise Price Bride Of David Warren Smith

Miss Linda Louise Price, daughter of Mrs. Leroy G. Price and the late Mr. Price of Baton Rouge, became the bride of David Warren Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilford D. Smith of Monroe, in a 2 o'clock ceremony Saturday, June 4 in North Highland Hills Baptist Church, Baton Rouge.

The Rev. Bruce Lowe officiated at the double ring vows following an organ prelude by Mrs. Bruce Lowe, who also accompanied the vocalist, James Watts.

The bride is a graduate of Istrouma high school in Baton Rouge and was graduated with honors in May from Northeast Louisiana State College. At Northeast she was a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, the Northeast Honor Society, Delta Omicron Music sorority and Senior Board.

Mr. Smith, a graduate of Neville high school, is a senior at Northeast, where he is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Music fraternity; Northeast Honor Society, Scabbard and Blade Military Society, Omicron Delta Kappa and was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Following a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Monroe where Mr. Smith will continue his studies at Northeast.

Given in marriage by her brother, James G. Price, the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie fashioned with bell sleeves. Appliques of lace re-embroidered with tiny seed pearls accented the neckline and sleeves and cascaded down front of the A - line skirt. Her bouffant veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of peau de soie roses appliqued with lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Ann Adams of Monroe served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Gayle Smith, sister of the groom, Miss Ellen Walker, both of Monroe and Miss Brenda Lewis of Greenup, Kentucky. They wore sleeveless gowns of frosted aqua fashioned with floor length A - line skirts. Two aqua roses formed their headpieces and each carried a crescent bouquet of yellow carnations.

Miss Barbara Russell, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She also wore a frosted aqua dress with matching hair bow and carried a basket of yellow carnations. Serving as ring bearer was Daren Appleby, also a cousin of the bride.

Dr. Smith served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Bobby L. Price, and Glenn G. Price, brothers of the bride, and William Porter, Bastrop. Ushers were Thomas Porter of Bastrop and John Russell of Poplarville, Miss.

For the reception which followed the church parlor was decorated with large baskets of white and yellow gladioli and greenery. Mrs. Price was wearing an aqua lace ensemble with matching accessories and a lavender orchid corsage. Mrs. Smith wore a pink lace sheath with accessories to match and a lavender orchid. Mrs. J. L. Whittington, grandmother of the bride, chose a pink lace model with a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

The circular bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over floor length organdy. Mrs Thelma Boyte, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Bobby Price, sister-in-law of the bride, were at the guest book table, on which was displayed a memory candle.

Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Lewis Appleby, aunt of the bride; Mrs. George T. Walker, Monroe, and Mrs. Roy Taylor. Serving the wedding cake were Mrs. Leonard G. Adams and Mrs. B. Mack Hearne, both of Monroe. Also in the house party were Mrs. Annie Martin of Columbia and Mrs. Paul Russell of Monticello, Miss. Tea girls were Misses Janet Brown, Myra Brown, Nancy Taylor, Elaine Turner and Sandra Brumfield. Rice bags were distributed by Miss Debra Courville.

Coin Shape Is Popular Shoe Toe In Fashion

NEW YORK (UPI) — Quarters dollars and half-dollars have a new meaning in women's fashions this spring.

The coins have been converted into terms for the newest toe shapes in women's shoes, according to E. E. Joiner, styling director for Mears Division of the United Shoe Machinery Corp. He said the half - dollar tip is going to be the season's most popular shape.

Crossett Couple Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Penelope Nason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oxford Nason became the bride Saturday, June 11 at 7:30 p.m. of Dennis E. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Jones all of Crossett.

Rev. John B. Hefley of Little Rock, performed the double ring ceremony in the First Methodist Church against a background of banked greenery with white tapers in branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli.

Mrs. W. B. Anderson was organist and vocalists were Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Carter.

Escorted by her father the bride was wearing a sanki suit of white raw silk. The fitted jacket with three-quarter sleeves was fashioned with a roll collar forming a portrait neckline caught at the side with a rhinestone and pearl clasp. The sheath skirt was street length. A pillbox of matching fabric held her short white veil. She carried a white Bible, gift of her father on which rested a bouquet of lily of the valley centered with white orchids.

Mrs. Joe K. Bridgforth, sister of the groom, of Rogers, Ark., who served as matron of honor, wore an A-line ensemble of shell pink silk linen with matching veiled pillbox. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink cymbidium orchids.

Mr. Jones attended his son as best man. Ushers were Robert O. Nason Jr., Stephen S. Nason brothers of the bride; Richard S. Jones Jr.; brother of the groom and Joe K. Bridgforth.

A reception followed in Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was draped with peau de soie and centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons and pink roses in a silver compote flanked by lighted pink tapers in silver candelabra. MRS. J. L. SPILLER JR.

Spiller-Jordan Vows Exchanged In Sterlington

St. Andrew's Methodist Church in Sterlington was scene of the wedding of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Jordan and J. L. Spiller Jr., on Friday, June 3 at 10 a.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Jordan of Sterlington and Mr. Spiller is the son of Mrs. J. L. Spiller of Lake Charles and the late Mr. Spiller.

Rev. Minns Robertson performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli and majestic daisies. Appropriate music was provided by the organist, Miss Jenny Perry.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a dress of white pique featuring a godet skirt and long jacket. Her headpiece was a Dior bow and she wore white accessories and carried a bouquet of gardenias and ivy.

Miss Rita Camp, maid of honor, wore a dress of yellow embossed pique with a matching Dior bow and carried a bouquet of daisies.

Charles Robert attended Mr. Spiller as best man.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a beige embroidered linen costume suit with matching accessories and a corsage of brown orchids. The groom's mother chose a blue linen dress with matching accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the church social room where the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and Shasta daisies. Miss Wilma Jordan of Mer Rouge, aunt of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. John Doles of Sterlington. Mrs. Bill Thompson of Kingsville, Texas was in charge of the guest book.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Houston, Texas the bride was wearing a white linen suit with yellow blouse, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. They will be at home in Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Spiller is the granddaughter of T. J. Chambers and the late Willa Bird Chambers of Monroe and Mrs. W. C. Jordan and the late Mr. Jordan of Mer Rouge. She was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College and is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Spiller attended McNeese State College.

Leather Linings Keep Feet In Cold Storage

NEW YORK — This summer, your feet — like your furs — can be kept in cold storage. In porous leather - lined shoes, you'll feel cool and frosty - footed as a polar bear.

When summer sun and sizzling sidewalks threaten to give you a "hot foot", seek the protection of a leather lining in a leather shoe, recommends Leather Industries of America. All footwear styles are available with wafer - thin leather linings — weightless, smooth to the touch and attractive to the eye.

Many leathers are used for linings — kid leather, sheep leather, "split" cowhide leather. All are ultra - flexible and long - wearing. All help a shoe keep its shape longer. Sleek and wrinkle - free, leather linings prevent snags and save sheer hose — a welcome budget bonus for career girl or housewife. Leather linings add value to a shoe, without increasing the price.

THE WEDDING of Miss Martha Kay Cobb, daughter of Mrs. Johnny Mae Cobb, 3517 South Grand, Monroe and E. B. Cobb of Columbia, to George Sanders Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders Booth, also of Monroe, will be solemnized Friday, July 15 at 7 p.m. in Central Baptist Church. Following a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Monroe where both are employed.

Sicily Island Church Scene Of Peace-Franks Nuptials

Amid a setting of banked green ferns and white roses before the altar of Sicily Island Methodist Church, Miss Pamela Jeane Franks became the bride of Joe Raymond Peace Jr. on Saturday, June 11. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Franks and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Peace Sr., all of Sicily Island.

Tall baskets of white gladioli flanked the altar where Rev. L. W. Taylor performed the double ring vows. Nuptial music was provided by Rev. B. K. Miller Jr., of West Monroe, who was accompanied by Mrs. Garland Barron.

Candles were lighted by Misses Karen and Connie Franks of Baton Rouge, cousins of the bride. Their dresses were of pale silk linen and they wore corsages of split pink carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white silk organza, featuring an empire waist, bell shaped sleeves and bodice of Alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls. Appliques of the lace and pearls extended over the front of the A - line skirt and edged the organza train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a flower shaped headdress of peau de soie appliqued with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a brown-throated white orchid.

Miss Deborah Catha of Cameron, cousin of the groom, was maid of honor and wore a dress of petal pink crepe with bell-shaped sleeves and an empire waist banded in darker pink satin. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and her headdress of pink illusion was held in place by a cluster of pink roses.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Charlotte Davis of Shreveport and Mrs. A. E. Krauss Jr., Sicily Island. Lori Jones of Cameron, cousin of the groom, and JoHanna Peck, Sicily Island, serving as flower girls, were attired in frocks of white pique accented with scalloped border at the hem and empire waist. Their headdresses were pink peau de soie roses with brief illusion veils and they carried white baskets edged with ruffles of pink net.

Mr. Peace served his son as best man and groomsmen were Jack Shaffer of New Orleans and Bob McKinnon of Junction City, Ark. Joe Bondurant and Craig Brooks of Sicily Island and Alden Reeves of Jonesboro, acted as ushers with Jerry G. Jones Jr., of Cameron, cousin of the groom, as ring bearer.

Mrs. Franks was wearing a dress of crystal mint Alaskine with bodice of Alencon lace and matching jacket edged with lace. Her accessories were of matching shade and she wore a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a dress of bone lace over mint green crystalline with bone accessories and an orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Hurricane lamps were placed at vantage points around the lawn and lighted the drive leading to the Franks home where the reception was held. The receiving line was formed before a background of palmetto and fern interspersed with spring flowers while colored spotlights enhanced the spring flowers blooming in the garden.

Mrs. Betty Shaffer of New Orleans registered guests at a table covered with a white linen cloth and adorned with a memory candle, wreathed in fern.

Pink satin ribbon caught at intervals with nosegays of small spring blossoms edged the imported cutwork cloth on the bride's table. At one end of the table was a fountain from which flowed pink punch and in the center was an arrangement of magnolias, white daisies and gladioli in a crystal compote. Placed at the opposite end of the table was the tiered pink wedding cake. The groom's table was also covered in white linen and centered with two tall green tapers entwined with spring flowers and satin ribbon.

Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Willie Knight, Miss Dorris Chambers, and Miss Lurline Norris. Tea girls were Misses Nan Brooks, Barbara Peck Gilbert, Betty Chisum, and Mrs. Joe Bondurant.

For their wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss., the bride chose a black and white linen ensemble with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home in Ruston where both will continue studies at Louisiana Tech.

Water Minerals Stain Utensils

NEW YORK (UPI) — High mineral content in water can cause discoloration of utensils during cooking.

With aluminum cookware, these stains can be removed by boiling a solution of vinegar or cream of tartar and water, or by simply cooking acid-content foods such as tomatoes or sauerkraut.

Bottled Green Salad Dressing Is Old Adaptation

United Press International

A tangy new bottled salad dressing called green goddess is adapted from a dressing of the same name created in 1915 at a San Francisco hotel.

The bottled variety, pale green and flecked with spices, also contains anchovies and dehydrated sour cream.

It tastes especially good with seafood and raw vegetables.

Spiller-Jordan Vows Exchanged In Sterlington

St. Andrew's Methodist Church in Sterlington was scene of the wedding of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Jordan and J. L. Spiller Jr., on Friday, June 3 at 10 a.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Jordan of Sterlington and Mr. Spiller is the son of Mrs. J. L. Spiller of Lake Charles and the late Mr. Spiller.

Rev. Minns Robertson performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli and majestic daisies. Appropriate music was provided by the organist, Miss Jenny Perry.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a dress of white pique featuring a godet skirt and long jacket. Her headpiece was a Dior bow and she wore white accessories and carried a bouquet of gardenias and ivy.

Miss Rita Camp, maid of honor, wore a dress of yellow embossed pique with a matching Dior bow and carried a bouquet of daisies.

Charles Robert attended Mr. Spiller as best man.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a beige embroidered linen costume suit with matching accessories and a corsage of brown orchids. The groom's mother chose a blue linen dress with matching accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the church social room where the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and Shasta daisies. Miss Wilma Jordan of Mer Rouge, aunt of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. John Doles of Sterlington. Mrs. Bill Thompson of Kingsville, Texas was in charge of the guest book.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Houston, Texas the bride was wearing a white linen suit with yellow blouse, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. They will be at home in Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Spiller is the granddaughter of T. J. Chambers and the late Willa Bird Chambers of Monroe and Mrs. W. C. Jordan and the late Mr. Jordan of Mer Rouge. She was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College and is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Spiller attended McNeese State College.

Leather Linings Keep Feet In Cold Storage

NEW YORK — This summer, your feet — like your furs — can be kept in cold storage. In porous leather - lined shoes, you'll feel cool and frosty - footed as a polar bear.

When summer sun and sizzling sidewalks threaten to give you a "hot foot", seek the protection of a leather lining in a leather shoe, recommends Leather Industries of America. All footwear styles are available with wafer - thin leather linings — weightless, smooth to the touch and attractive to the eye.

Many leathers are used for linings — kid leather, sheep leather, "split" cowhide leather. All are ultra - flexible and long - wearing. All help a shoe keep its shape longer. Sleek and wrinkle - free, leather linings prevent snags and save sheer hose — a welcome budget bonus for career girl or housewife. Leather linings add value to a shoe, without increasing the price.

THE WEDDING of Miss Martha Kay Cobb, daughter of Mrs. Johnny Mae Cobb, 3517 South Grand, Monroe and E. B. Cobb of Columbia, to George Sanders Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders Booth, also of Monroe, will be solemnized Friday, July 15 at 7 p.m. in Central Baptist Church. Following a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Monroe where both are employed.

Sicily Island Church Scene Of Peace-Franks Nuptials

Amid a setting of banked green ferns and white roses before the altar of Sicily Island Methodist Church, Miss Pamela Jeane Franks became the bride of Joe Raymond Peace Jr. on Saturday, June 11. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Franks and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Peace Sr., all of Sicily Island.

Tall baskets of white gladioli flanked the altar where Rev. L. W. Taylor performed the double ring vows. Nuptial music was provided by Rev. B. K. Miller Jr., of West Monroe, who was accompanied by Mrs. Garland Barron.

Candles were lighted by Misses Karen and Connie Franks of Baton Rouge, cousins of the bride. Their dresses were of pale silk linen and they wore corsages of split pink carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white silk organza, featuring an empire waist, bell shaped sleeves and bodice of Alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls. Appliques of the lace and pearls extended over the front of the A - line skirt and edged the organza train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a flower shaped headdress of peau de soie appliqued with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a brown-throated white orchid.

Miss Deborah Catha of Cameron, cousin of the groom, was maid of honor and wore a dress of petal pink crepe with bell-shaped sleeves and an empire waist banded in darker pink satin. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and her headdress of pink illusion was held in place by a cluster of pink roses.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Charlotte Davis of Shreveport and Mrs. A. E. Krauss Jr., Sicily Island. Lori Jones of Cameron, cousin of the groom, and JoHanna Peck, Sicily Island, serving as flower girls, were attired in frocks of white pique accented with scalloped border at the hem and empire waist. Their headdresses were pink peau de soie roses with brief illusion veils and they carried white baskets edged with ruffles of pink net.

Mr. Peace served his son as best man and groomsmen were Jack Shaffer of New Orleans and Bob McKinnon of Junction City, Ark. Joe Bondurant and Craig Brooks of Sicily Island and Alden Reeves of Jonesboro, acted as ushers with Jerry G. Jones Jr., of Cameron, cousin of the groom, as ring bearer.

Mrs. Franks was wearing a dress of crystal mint Alaskine with bodice of Alencon lace and matching jacket edged with lace. Her accessories were of matching shade and she wore a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a dress of bone lace over mint green crystalline with bone accessories and an orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Hurricane lamps were placed at vantage points around the lawn and lighted the drive leading to the Franks home where the reception was held. The receiving line was formed before a background of palmetto and fern interspersed with spring flowers while colored spotlights enhanced the spring flowers blooming in the garden.

Bottled Green Salad Dressing Is Old Adaptation

United Press International

A tangy new bottled salad dressing called green goddess is adapted from a dressing of the same name created in 1915 at a San Francisco hotel.

The bottled variety, pale green and flecked with spices, also contains anchovies and dehydrated sour cream.

It tastes especially good with seafood and raw vegetables.

Water Minerals Stain Utensils

NEW YORK (UPI) — High mineral content in water can cause discoloration of utensils during cooking.

With aluminum cookware, these stains can be removed by boiling a solution of vinegar or cream of tartar and water, or by simply cooking acid-content foods such as tomatoes or sauerkraut.

Baudoin-Hodgkins Nuptials Read In Lake Providence

Baskets of white gladioli decorated the altar of First Baptist Church in Lake Providence for the wedding of Miss Charlene Emma Hodgkins and Roger Harris Baudoin on June 4 at 3 p.m. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anthony Hodgkins of Lake Providence and Mr. and Mrs. Harris F. Baudoin of New Orleans.

Rev. Myron H. Stagg performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. with Miss Anne Sullivan as organist.

Wearing a gown of crystal white peau de soie, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Medallions of Chantilly lace outlined the neckline of the fitted bodice with long sleeves forming lily points over the hands. The lace motifs were repeated on the softly pleated skirt with its detachable chapel train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a pillbox of pleated peau and she carried a colonial bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Hodgkins attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Carol Hodgkins, also her sister and Miss Donna Blakesley of Franklin. They wore identical short dresses of light blue crystal peau de soie featuring fitted basques, cap sleeves and pleated skirts. Circles of pink roses with blue veils formed their headpieces and blue shoes completed their attire. Each carried a long stemmed pink rose.

Serving as best man for his brother was Bruce Baudoin and groomsmen - ushers were his father, and Barry Gordon, New Orleans, his cousin.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pink ensemble with white accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid. The groom's mother chose a green model with a yellow cymbidium orchid.

A reception followed in the church social room where the bride's table featured a centerpiece of white roses. Mrs. Thomas Snellgrove, Baton Rouge presided at the punch bowl and serving the cake was Mrs. Eugene Hodgkins, Baton Rouge. Miss Jackie Mills had charge of the guest book.

The couple will establish a home in Hammond. For travel the bride wore a two piece suit of oatmeal knit with beige accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Mrs. Baudoin is a 1966 graduate of Louisiana State University. The groom is presently attending South eastern Louisiana College in Hammond.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT GERALD GROSECLOSE

Ruth A. Mulhearn Is Bride Of Robert Gerald Groseclose

Grace Episcopal Church was scene of the double ring ceremony Friday, June 3 which united in marriage Miss Ruth Alwine Mulhearn and Robert Gerald Groseclose. Rev. W. Bradley Trimble performed the vows at 3 p.m. before the altar where asymetrical designs of white stock, gladioli and jade palm foliage were arranged in brass altar urns.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Mulhearn 1810 Emerson and Mr. Groseclose is the son of Robert E. Groseclose, 2312 Bienville, Monroe and Mrs. Geraldine Groseclose of Abilene, Texas.

Organist was Mrs. Josephine Trimble.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an A-line dress of white Alencon lace over peau de soie in afternoon length. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of lace and pearls. She carried a modified cascade of white phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis with garlands of Hahn's ivy accented by white maline and satin shower streamers.

Miss Crissie Terzolas, maid of honor, wore a street length dress of sky blue crepe with an illusion veil attached to a headpiece of crepe with pearls. She carried a vertical bouquet of citron glamellias and miniature ivy sprays.

Randy Branch attended his brother as best man and ushers were Freddie Moses, Winston Odom, John Ernest Mulhearn Jr. and Edwin Mulhearn, brothers of the bride.

For the occasion Mrs. Mulhearn wore a pink silk model with matching lace inserts and pink accessories. Her corsage was of pink cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother chose a two piece ensemble of pink lace with matching accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in their home, where Mrs. Tom Mulhearn Sr., greeted guests at the door, and Miss Barbara Mulhearn presided at the bride's book at a small table adorned with a crystal vase of yellow roses, white daisy chrysanthemums and lily of the valley.

The reception rooms were decorated throughout in the bride's chosen colors of yellow and white. A mass of white stock and yellow roses on the mantel was reflected in the antique gilt-framed mirror. Central decor for the refreshment table was a silver epergne of yellow roses and white cathedral tapers. Fronds of Baker's fern encircled the silver punch bowl and bride's cake.

Miss Ruth Richardson, aunt of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Tom Mulhearn Jr. poured punch. Champagne was served by Mrs. John E. Mulhearn Jr., Mrs. Robert Mulhearn and Mrs. Russell Faulk.

For a wedding trip to Six Flags at Dallas, Texas the bride traveled in a pink linen dress and coat ensemble and corsage of white orchids. They will be at home at Carol Ann Apartments, 1309 McGuire. A graduate of Neville high school the bride is presently a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College, majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Lambda Delta honorary fraternity, Student Government Association and Northeast Honor Society. Mr. Groseclose graduated from El Paso high school and is also a senior majoring in business administration at Northeast where he is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. The couple will continue studies at Northeast.

Summer is a time of shifting population — or at least it seems so in Our Town. We have guests from out of town and former Monroyans returning for visits. There are campers leaving for several weeks of outdoor life, and travelers departing for foreign shores. Some of our people are leaving for extended stays in other parts of the country.

Visitors here this week were JUNE and WILFRED ELLIS, and their sons, Robert, 5, and John, one year, who were guests of her mother, MRS. J. E. GRIFFIN, at her home on Erin. They came a round-about way from Tunisia, where they have been living, to return to their home in Maracaibo, Venezuela. En route they visited June's daughter, TERRY RUBIN, who is in school at Montreux, Switzerland. They also made stops in Interlochen and Lucerne, and in Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Holland. They stopped in New Jersey for a visit with Wilfred's parents, before coming to Monroe last week. They plan to leave Tuesday for Maracaibo.

Another traveler to Maracaibo will be TOMMY USREY, who leaves this coming Friday. Tommy will be the guest of GERMAN RIZO for a month's visit. Tommy and German are roommates at Louisiana Tech.

Off for the summer at LSU Graduate school is JOYCE BURKHALTER, who left Tuesday. SUE went with her mother for a short visit in Baton Rouge, will be home this week. JOAN left on Friday for a two week trip to Florida and Nassau.

Due home tomorrow is FRANCES ADCOCK, who has been vacationing in Spain for the past three weeks. With her were her daughter, JAN MELTON, and LYN NELSON, of Jackson, Mississippi.

Home for the summer are BEE BURGOYNE, and her daughter DOLL, who will be in their home on Milton street. EVERETT will be driving up from Baton Rouge for weekends. Doll was graduated from LSU early this month.

Here for a few days visit early this week was MILDRED (Mrs. James H.) ROUNSEVILLE of Jacksonville, Texas. She came to bring her mother, MRS. LOUIS BREARD SR., home after a Texas visit.

GLADYS SLACK left on Friday for Washington state, where she will visit her daughter and son-in-law, Patsy and DON HIBBARD for the summer. Don who is a member of the Toastmasters' club in Bellevue, was named that group's speaker of the year, and will represent them at the convention in Victoria, Canada. Gladys will make this trip with her children, and will remain with the Hibbards for several months.

□ □ □

Members of the state pharmacy board were entertained during their visit here this week. On Tuesday evening, TRUDY and DAVE ARON invited about twenty board members and their wives to a cocktail buffet at their home on Park avenue. Dave is a member of the board. Greenery decorated the reception area, while the buffet table was centered with an epergne holding mixed spring flowers. The menu included barbecued roast with miniature buns for sandwiches, lobster mousse, and pickled shrimp . . . On Thursday evening, the LEON SUGARS and FRED KINGS entertained board members and their wives at dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club.

Guests in the home of the Fred Kings have been his parents, the IRVING KINGS of Brooklyn, New York. They arrived last Thursday, plan to leave for home today.

Several girls of the pre-teen set who will be leaving soon for various camps were named guests of honor when TERESA EDWARDS and SUSAN BELL were hostesses for a supper party Thursday afternoon. Honorees were MOLLY and DEE McDONALD and NANCY ROOT who will be going to Camp Waldemar; SHAWN WOODS; JANE HASTINGS, who plans to attend Camp Windywood; DENISE DOWNING, ANN LEDBETTER, and NANCY THOMPSON, who are enrolled at Camp DeSoto.

The party was held on the porch and in the yard at the Lee Edwards residence on Whitney drive. Banners and streamers reflecting colors of the various camps were used as decorations. Centering the refreshment table was a wicker basket filled with daisies and highlighted with camp pennants. About twenty little friends were invited for hamburger supper with Brownies for dessert.

A summer visitor in the Spencer boulevard home of the JACK GRAHAMS is Fay's sister, BETTY (Mrs. Rickie) HOSTETTER of Corvallis, Washington. She plans to be here for several weeks while her husband is at camp.

Here from Houston this week was MELBA (Mrs. J. N.) LIMBACH, with her sons GREG and KIRK. They were guests of her sister-in-law and brother, JESSIE and RAYFORD WALTON in their home on Loop road. On their return to Houston Thursday, they were to make preparations for their impending move to New York City to make their home.

Tuesday at noon, Jessie and MAYDRON JONES entertained at luncheon complimentary to these two visitors. A white cloth covered the table, which was decorated with pink roses. Eight guests were invited to meet Betty and Melba.

EVELYN COLE and JEAN GIFFEN were hostesses for a boatride on the Ouachita last night. This, the first in a series of small parties, complimented DON GIFFEN on his fortieth birthday. Close friends were invited for a supper on the water, ending with a real pink and blue birthday cake saying "Life Begins, and ornamented with a rattle.

A visitor here last weekend was young BILLY DOWNING, guest of his aunt and uncle, JEANNIE and BOBBY DOWNING. He is the son of the BEN DOWNINGS of Baton Rouge. Highlight of Billy's visit was Saturday afternoon swimming and skiing on Bayou DeSiard, when he was the guest of the FRED HUENEFELDS, JR., and MAC WARDS.

Celebrating the end of junior high and their approaching entrance to high school, MARY INABNET and LENELL van VECKHOVEN entertained at a dance at Bayou DeSiard country club last Friday evening. Magnolias decorated the bandstand, where the Impacts provided music for dancing.

Refreshments were served on the club porch, where a long table was covered with a dark green cloth. A milk glass punch bowl was placed at either end of the table. A varicolored bouquet of roses, iris, and stock filled the milk glass compote which centered the table. Brownies, potato chips, and assorted cookies were passed in milk glass serving pieces. About two hundred young people attended the party.

Members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, have asked us to remind our readers that Tuesday, June 14, is Flag Day. This is one of the special dates during the year when CAR's urge citizens to fly the American flag at their homes and-or places of business.

For Flag Day here is our poem for the week: Henry Holcomb Bennett's "The Flag Goes By":

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!
Blue and Crimson and white it shines,
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by:
Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law,
Stately honor and reverend awe
Sign of a nation great and strong
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor—all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.
Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are heating high:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Wedding Arch Background For Gunn-Antley Vows

The wedding of Miss Genelle Antley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Antley to Jesse E. Gunn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse E. Gunn, all of Monroe, was solemnized Friday, June 3 in the home of the bride's parents, 1618 South 12th.

Vows were exchanged beneath an arch of greenery and bride's roses flanked by baskets of gladioli and pink carnations with Rev. Doyle Nugent performing the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an empire style gown of white peau de soie with bodice overlaid with French lace, which also formed long tapered sleeves. The skirt terminated in a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was held by a crown of pearls and crystal tear drops. She carried a bouquet of white bride's roses with miniature English ivy.

Miss Sherry Edwards, maid of honor, wore a floor length gown of pale blue bonded crepe with bodice overlaid with burnt chiffon. Her headdress was of matching chiffon and illusion. She wore blue satin shoes and white gloves and carried a nosegay of white roses and feathered pink carnations, backed with blue lace and matching satin streamers.

Serving as best man was Leon Stephens and usher was Curtis Leckie Jr.

MRS. JESSE E. GUNN JR.

Mrs. Antley wore a three piece beige linen ensemble with matching accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a gold linen costume with accessories to match and a cymbidium orchid corsage with pale gold and green accents.

A reception followed in the home where the bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over pink and held the tiered wedding cake, which was served by Mrs. Dot Leckie. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Jo Ann Leckie. An arrangement of pink carnations and greenery formed the centerpiece for the coffee table which also held the guest book.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will be at home at 3511 Madison, Monroe. For travel the bride wore a dress and jacket ensemble of fern green and pale blue, with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Clues Reveal Today's Leading Fashion Trends

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

So much is going on in fashion these days that any woman may be forgiven for being slightly confused. But there are certain major clues to the important fashion trends.

One is the "unconstructed" look. That means suits, coats and dresses that hold their shape through proper cutting and sewing alone, without inner stiffeners, like canvas or muslin. Fashion today must look as soft and pliable as possible.

It follows that foundations are changing, too. Not only lighter fabrics like spandex, but new designs in girdles such as bias-cut So-Free by Sarong. The bias panels allow for greater freedom of movement, as does the same cut used in their bras.

Next cue is the head look. The bouffant hairdo is, or should be, dead. The hair is cut short, free-swinging, shaped to the head. Lots of the hats are also smaller and closer to the head. Want a more-hair look for certain costumes or occasions? The hair piece is a must.

Last important cue is fabric knowledge. Fabrics today are really the most important part of fashion, in their texture, their colors and such innovations as double-faced weaves.

Baudoin-Hodgkins Nuptials Read In Lake Providence

Baskets of white gladioli decorated the altar of First Baptist Church in Lake Providence for the wedding of Miss Charlene Emma Hodgkins and Roger Harris Baudoin on June 4 at 3 p.m. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anthony Hodgkins of Lake Providence and Mr. and Mrs. Harris F. Baudoin of New Orleans.

Rev. Myron H. Stagg performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. with Miss Anne Sullivan as organist.

Wearing a gown of crystal white peau de soie, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Medallions of Chantilly lace outlined the neckline of the fitted bodice with long sleeves forming lily points over the hands. The lace motifs were repeated on the softly pleated skirt with its detachable chapel train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a pillbox of pleated peau and she carried a colonial bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Hodgkins attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Carol Hodgkins, also her sister and Miss Donna Blakesley of Franklin. They wore identical short dresses of light blue crystal peau de soie featuring fitted basques, cap sleeves and pleated skirts. Circles of pink roses with blue veils formed their headpieces and blue shoes completed their attire. Each carried a long stemmed pink rose.

Serving as best man for his brother was Bruce Baudoin and groomsmen - ushers were his father, and Barry Gordon, New Orleans, his cousin.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pink ensemble with white accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid. The groom's mother chose a green model with a yellow cymbidium orchid.

A reception followed in the church social room where the bride's table featured a centerpiece of white roses. Mrs. Thomas Snellgrove, Baton Rouge presided at the punch bowl and serving the cake was Mrs. Eugene Hodgkins, Baton Rouge. Miss Jackie Mills had charge of the guest book.

The couple will establish a home in Hammond. For travel the bride wore a two piece suit of oatmeal knit with beige accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Mrs. Baudoin is a 1966 graduate of Louisiana State University. The groom is presently attending South eastern Louisiana College in Hammond.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT GERALD GROSECLOSE

Ruth A. Mulhearn Is Bride Of Robert Gerald Groseclose

Grace Episcopal Church was scene of the double ring ceremony Friday, June 3 which united in marriage Miss Ruth Alwine Mulhearn and Robert Gerald Groseclose. Rev. W. Bradley Trimble performed the vows at 3 p.m. before the altar where asymetrical designs of white stock, gladioli and jade palm foliage were arranged in brass altar urns.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Mulhearn 1810 Emerson and Mr. Groseclose is the son of Robert E. Groseclose, 2312 Bienville, Monroe and Mrs. Geraldine Groseclose of Abilene, Texas.

Organist was Mrs. Josephine Trimble.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an A-line dress of white Alencon lace over peau de soie in afternoon length. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of lace and pearls. She carried a modified cascade of white phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis with garlands of Hahn's ivy accented by white maline and satin shower streamers.

Miss Crissie Terzolas, maid of honor, wore a street length dress of sky blue crepe with an illusion veil attached to a headpiece of crepe with pearls. She carried a vertical bouquet of citron glamellias and miniature ivy sprays.

Randy Branch attended his brother as best man and ushers were Freddie Moses, Winston Odom, John Ernest Mulhearn Jr. and Edwin Mulhearn, brothers of the bride.

For the occasion Mrs. Mulhearn wore a pink silk model with matching lace inserts and pink accessories. Her corsage was of pink cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother chose a two piece ensemble of pink lace with matching accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in their home, where Mrs. Tom Mulhearn Sr., greeted guests at the door, and Miss Barbara Mulhearn presided at the bride's book at a small table adorned with a crystal vase of yellow roses, white daisy chrysanthemums and lily of the valley.

The reception rooms were decorated throughout in the bride's chosen colors of yellow and white. A mass of white stock and yellow roses on the mantel was reflected in the antique gilt-framed mirror. Central decor for the refreshment table was a silver epergne of yellow roses and white cathedral tapers. Fronds of Baker's fern encircled the silver punch bowl and bride's cake.

Miss Ruth Richardson, aunt of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Tom Mulhearn Jr. poured punch. Champagne was served by Mrs. John E. Mulhearn Jr., Mrs. Robert Mulhearn and Mrs. Russell Faulk.

For a wedding trip to Six Flags at Dallas, Texas the bride traveled in a pink linen dress and coat ensemble and corsage of white orchids. They will be at home at Carol Ann Apartments, 1309 McGuire. A graduate of Neville high school the bride is presently a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College, majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Lambda Delta honorary fraternity, Student Government Association and Northeast Honor Society. Mr. Groseclose graduated from El Paso high school and is also a senior majoring in business administration at Northeast where he is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. The couple will continue studies at Northeast.

Summer is a time of shifting population — or at least it seems so in Our Town. We have guests from out of town and former Monroyans returning for visits. There are campers leaving for several weeks of outdoor life, and travelers departing for foreign shores. Some of our people are leaving for extended stays in other parts of the country.

Visitors here this week were JUNE and WILFRED ELLIS, and their sons, Robert, 5, and John, one year, who were guests of her mother, MRS. J. E. GRIFFIN, at her home on Erin. They came a round-about way from Tunisia, where they have been living, to return to their home in Maracaibo, Venezuela. En route they visited June's daughter, TERRY RUBIN, who is in school at Montreux, Switzerland. They also made stops in Interlochen and Lucerne, and in Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Holland. They stopped in New Jersey for a visit with Wilfred's parents, before coming to Monroe last week. They plan to leave Tuesday for Maracaibo.

Another traveler to Maracaibo will be TOMMY USREY, who leaves this coming Friday. Tommy will be the guest of GERMAN RIZO for a month's visit. Tommy and German are roommates at Louisiana Tech.

Off for the summer at LSU Graduate school is JOYCE BURKHALTER, who left Tuesday. SUE went with her mother for a short visit in Baton Rouge, will be home this week. JOAN left on Friday for a two week trip to Florida and Nassau.

Due home tomorrow is FRANCES ADCOCK, who has been vacationing in Spain for the past three weeks. With her were her daughter, JAN MELTON, and LYN NELSON, of Jackson, Mississippi.

Home for the summer are BEE BURGOYNE, and her daughter DOLL, who will be in their home on Milton street. EVERETT will be driving up from Baton Rouge for weekends. Doll was graduated from LSU early this month.

Here for a few days visit early this week was MILDRED (Mrs. James H.) ROUNSEVILLE of Jacksonville, Texas. She came to bring her mother, MRS. LOUIS BREARD SR., home after a Texas visit.

GLADYS SLACK left on Friday for Washington state, where she will visit her daughter and son-in-law, Patsy and DON HIBBARD for the summer. Don who is a member of the Toastmasters' club in Bellevue, was named that group's speaker of the year, and will represent them at the convention in Victoria, Canada. Gladys will make this trip with her children, and will remain with the Hibbards for several months.

□ □ □

Members of the state pharmacy board were entertained during their visit here this week. On Tuesday evening, TRUDY and DAVE ARON invited about twenty board members and their wives to a cocktail buffet at their home on Park avenue. Dave is a member of the board. Greenery decorated the reception area, while the buffet table was centered with an epergne holding mixed spring flowers. The menu included barbecued roast with miniature buns for sandwiches, lobster mousse, and pickled shrimp . . . On Thursday evening, the LEON SUGARS and FRED KINGS entertained board members and their wives at dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club.

Guests in the home of the Fred Kings have been his parents, the IRVING KINGS of Brooklyn, New York. They arrived last Thursday, plan to leave for home today.

Several girls of the pre-teen set who will be leaving soon for various camps were named guests of honor when TERESA EDWARDS and SUSAN BELL were hostesses for a supper party Thursday afternoon. Honorees were MOLLY and DEE McDONALD and NANCY ROOT who will be going to Camp Waldemar; SHAWN WOODS; JANE HASTINGS, who plans to attend Camp Windywood; DENISE DOWNING, ANN LEDBETTER, and NANCY THOMPSON, who are enrolled at Camp DeSoto.

The party was held on the porch and in the yard at the Lee Edwards residence on Whitney drive. Banners and streamers reflecting colors of the various camps were used as decorations. Centering the refreshment table was a wicker basket filled with daisies and highlighted with camp pennants. About twenty little friends were invited for hamburger supper with Brownies for dessert.

A summer visitor in the Spencer boulevard home of the JACK GRAHAMS is Fay's sister, BETTY (Mrs. Rickie) HOSTETTER of Corvallis, Washington. She plans to be here for several weeks while her husband is at camp.

Here from Houston this week was MELBA (Mrs. J. N.) LIMBACH, with her sons GREG and KIRK. They were guests of her sister-in-law and brother, JESSIE and RAYFORD WALTON in their home on Loop road. On their return to Houston Thursday, they were to make preparations for their impending move to New York City to make their home.

Tuesday at noon, Jessie and MAYDRON JONES entertained at luncheon complimentary to these two visitors. A white cloth covered the table, which was decorated with pink roses. Eight guests were invited to meet Betty and Melba.

EVELYN COLE and JEAN GIFFEN were hostesses for a boatride on the Ouachita last night. This, the first in a series of small parties, complimented DON GIFFEN on his fortieth birthday. Close friends were invited for a supper on the water, ending with a real pink and blue birthday cake saying "Life Begins, and ornamented with a rattle.

A visitor here last weekend was young BILLY DOWNING, guest of his aunt and uncle, JEANNIE and BOBBY DOWNING. He is the son of the BEN DOWNINGS of Baton Rouge. Highlight of Billy's visit was Saturday afternoon swimming and skiing on Bayou DeSiard, when he was the guest of the FRED HUENEFELDS, JR., and MAC WARDS.

Celebrating the end of junior high and their approaching entrance to high school, MARY INABNET and LENELL van VECKHOVEN entertained at a dance at Bayou DeSiard country club last Friday evening. Magnolias decorated the bandstand, where the Impacts provided music for dancing.

Refreshments were served on the club porch, where a long table was covered with a dark green cloth. A milk glass punch bowl was placed at either end of the table. A varicolored bouquet of roses, iris, and stock filled the milk glass compote which centered the table. Brownies, potato chips, and assorted cookies were passed in milk glass serving pieces. About two hundred young people attended the party.

Members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, have asked us to remind our readers that Tuesday, June 14, is Flag Day. This is one of the special dates during the year when CAR's urge citizens to fly the American flag at their homes and-or places of business.

For Flag Day here is our poem for the week: Henry Holcomb Bennett's "The Flag Goes By":

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!
Blue and Crimson and white it shines,
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by:
Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law,
Stately honor and reverend awe
Sign of a nation great and strong
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor—all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.
Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are beating high:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Wedding Arch Background For Gunn-Antley Vows

The wedding of Miss Genelle Antley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Antley to Jesse E. Gunn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse E. Gunn, all of Monroe, was solemnized Friday, June 3 in the home of the bride's parents, 1618 South 12th.

Vows were exchanged beneath an arch of greenery and bride's roses flanked by baskets of gladioli and pink carnations with Rev. Doyle Nugent performing the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an empire style gown of white peau de soie with bodice overlaid with French lace, which also formed long tapered sleeves. The skirt terminated in a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was held by a crown of pearls and crystal tear drops. She carried a bouquet of white bride's roses with miniature English ivy.

Miss Sherry Edwards, maid of honor, wore a floor length gown of pale blue bonded crepe with bodice overlaid with burnt chiffon. Her headdress was of matching chiffon and illusion. She wore blue satin shoes and white gloves and carried a nosegay of white roses and feathered pink carnations, backed with blue lace and matching satin streamers.

Serving as best man was Leon Stephens and usher was Curtis Leckie Jr.

Mrs. Antley wore a three piece beige linen ensemble with matching accssories and a cymbidium orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a gold linen costume with accessories to match and a cymbidium orchid corsage with pale gold and green accents.

A reception followed in the home where the bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over pink and held the tiered wedding cake, which was served by Mrs. Dot Leckie. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Jo Ann Leckie. An arrangement of pink carnations and greenery formed the centerpiece for the coffee table which also held the guest book.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will be at home at 3511 Madison, Monroe. For travel the bride wore a dress and jacket ensemble of fern green and pale blue, with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Clues Reveal Today's Leading Fashion Trends

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

So much is going on in fashion these days that any woman may be forgiven for being slightly confused. But there are certain major clues to the important fashion trends.

One is the "unconstructed" look. That means suits, coats and dresses that hold their shape through proper cutting and sewing alone, without inner stiffeners, like canvas or muslin. Fashion today must look as soft and pliable as possible.

It follows that foundations are changing, too. Not only lighter fabrics like spandex, but new designs in girdles such as bias-cut So-Free by Sarong. The bias panels allow for greater freedom of movement, as does the same cut used in their bras.

Next cue is the head look. The bouffant hairdo is, or should be, dead. The hair is cut short, free-swinging, shaped to the head. Lots of the hats are also smaller and closer to the head. Want a more-hair look for certain costumes or occasions? The hair piece is a must.

Last important cue is fabric knowledge. Fabrics today are really the most important part of fashion, in their texture, their colors and such innovations as double-faced weaves.

Gadget Gives Meat Fat Test

CHICAGO (UPI) — Now there's a machine which determines almost immediately how much fat Jack Spratt's frau would consume.

The "automatic system . . . undergoing field tests" was described briefly by Robert C. Whitehead, research engineer for Honeywell, Inc. He spoke at a conference sponsored by the American Meat Science Association in cooperation with the American Meat Institute Foundations.

Whitehead would say only that the system measures fat content "by specific gravity" in less than a minute with no preparation.

It seems that present methods of determining fat content require preparation for analysis, then take three minutes to 24 hours, Whitehead said.

"The meat is usually on its way to the retailer before the results of the analysis are known to the production man," he said.

"In this modern age of rapid production and automation, the meat packer needs to know the lean-fat rations almost immediately," he said. "Many packers would like to use the analyses in a computer-controlled production operation."

MR. AND MRS. JERRY LESLIE WORSHAM

Sharon Ray Weds Jerry Worsham In West Monroe

Twin baskets of white gladioli and stock flanked by six candelabra entwined with ivy formed an altar setting in Cypress Street Church of God for the wedding of Miss Sharon Darlene Ray and Jerry Leslie Worsham on June 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Ray, 2702 North 8th, and Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Worsham Jr., 128 Lomaland Drive, all of West Monroe.

George Miller, organist and Charles Douglas, vocalist, presented a program of wedding music preceding the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. T. E. Miller.

Mr. Ray gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a floor length gown of white brocade fashioned empire style with long tapered sleeves and a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held in place by a crown of pearls. She carried a white Bible, gift of the groom, crested with her bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Wearing floor length gowns of yellow peau de soie and yellow tulle veils held in place by yellow peau rosebuds were the bride's attendants, Miss Gwen Roberts, maid of honor and bridesmaids, Miss Trudy Ray and Miss Jeanie Worsham. They wore pearl drop necklaces, gifts of the bride, and carried nosegays of daisies.

Bobby Easterling served as best man and groomsmen were John Robert Lee and Duane Humphries. Ushers were Johnny Russell, Thomas Miller, who also served as candlelighters and Walter Easterling.

Mrs. Ray, mother of the bride, wore a tangerine silk sheath with white accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds. The groom's mother chose a blue silk sheath with white accessories and a white rose corsage.

Yellow and white carnations and chrysanthemums in a silver compote flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra centered the bride's table at the reception which followed in social hall of the church. At opposite ends of the table were the tiered wedding cake and the crystal punch bowl.

Mrs. Charles Elmore and Mrs. Jimmy Easterling alternated at the punch bowl and serving cake were Mrs. Ruth Dollar and Mrs. Peggy Douglas. Miss Judy Carroll was at the bride's book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at Malibu West Apartments in West Monroe. For going - away the bride wore a yellow suit with beige accessories and a corsage of white roses. Both are graduates of West Monroe high school and Mr. Worsham attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

A JULY 8 wedding is planned by Miss Judy Fortenberry and Roy Wayne Smith, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Quitman Fortenberry of Transylvania. The future groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Smith of Eudora, Ark. Vows will be exchanged at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist church of Transylvania.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Amelia Ward to Airman Third Class Donnie Edmonson is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ward of Vidalia. Mr. Edmonson, presently stationed with the U.S. Air Force at Great Falls, Montana, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Edmonson of Vidalia. A late summer wedding is planned.

GOOD HABITS

Small children love to imitate their parents, so let your youngsters imitate the constructive things you do around the house.

Let them help wash dishes, let them shampoo their own hair when you shampoo yours, let them wash their own socks while you suds your lingerie. While having fun, they are also learning the good habits you want them to practice.

Gadget Gives Meat Fat Test

CHICAGO (UPI) — Now there's a machine which determines almost immediately how much fat Jack Spratt's frau would consume.

The "automatic system . . . undergoing field tests" was described briefly by Robert C. Whitehead, research engineer for Honeywell, Inc. He spoke at a conference sponsored by the American Meat Science Association in cooperation with the American Meat Institute Foundations.

Whitehead would say only that the system measures fat content "by specific gravity" in less than a minute with no preparation.

It seems that present methods of determining fat content require preparation for analysis, then take three minutes to 24 hours, Whitehead said.

"The meat is usually on its way to the retailer before the results of the analysis are known to the production man," he said.

"In this modern age of rapid production and automation, the meat packer needs to know the lean-fat rations almost immediately," he said. "Many packers would like to use the analyses in a computer-controlled production operation."

MR. AND MRS. JERRY LESLIE WORSHAM

Sharon Ray Weds Jerry Worsham In West Monroe

Twin baskets of white gladioli and stock flanked by six candelabra entwined with ivy formed an altar setting in Cypress Street Church of God for the wedding of Miss Sharon Darlene Ray and Jerry Leslie Worsham on June 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Ray, 2702 North 8th, and Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Worsham Jr., 128 Lomaland Drive, all of West Monroe.

George Miller, organist and Charles Douglas, vocalist, presented a program of wedding music preceding the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. T. E. Miller.

Mr. Ray gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a floor length gown of white brocade fashioned empire style with long tapered sleeves and a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held in place by a crown of pearls. She carried a white Bible, gift of the groom, crested with her bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Wearing floor length gowns of yellow peau de soie and yellow tulle veils held in place by yellow peau rosebuds were the bride's attendants, Miss Gwen Roberts, maid of honor and bridesmaids, Miss Trudy Ray and Miss Jeanie Worsham. They wore pearl drop necklaces, gifts of the bride, and carried nosegays of daisies.

Bobby Easterling served as best man and groomsmen were John Robert Lee and Duane Humphries. Ushers were Johnny Russell, Thomas Miller, who also served as candlelighters and Walter Easterling.

Mrs. Ray, mother of the bride, wore a tangerine silk sheath with white accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds. The groom's mother chose a blue silk sheath with white accessories and a white rose corsage.

Yellow and white carnations and chrysanthemums in a silver compote flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra centered the bride's table at the reception which followed in social hall of the church. At opposite ends of the table were the tiered wedding cake and the crystal punch bowl.

Mrs. Charles Elmore and Mrs. Jimmy Easterling alternated at the punch bowl and serving cake were Mrs. Ruth Dollar and Mrs. Peggy Douglas. Miss Judy Carroll was at the bride's book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at Malibu West Apartments in West Monroe. For going - away the bride wore a yellow suit with beige accessories and a corsage of white roses. Both are graduates of West Monroe high school and Mr. Worsham attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

A JULY 8 wedding is planned by Miss Judy Fortenberry and Roy Wayne Smith, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Quitman Fortenberry of Transylvania. The future groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Smith of Eudora, Ark. Vows will be exchanged at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist church of Transylvania.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Amelia Ward to Airman Third Class Donnie Edmonson is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ward of Vidalia. Mr. Edmonson, presently stationed with the U.S. Air Force at Great Falls, Montana, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Edmonson of Vidalia. A late summer wedding is planned.

GOOD HABITS

Small children love to imitate their parents, so let your youngsters imitate the constructive things you do around the house.

Let them help wash dishes, let them shampoo their own hair when you shampoo yours, let them wash their own socks while you suds your lingerie. While having fun, they are also learning the good habits you want them to practice.

WHILE THIS TWO-STORY four-bedroom house looks as though it is part of the Spanish countryside or a section of the American Southwest or West, its style is gaining increasing attention in all parts of the United States.

Spanish Influence Evident In Dramatic 2-Story House

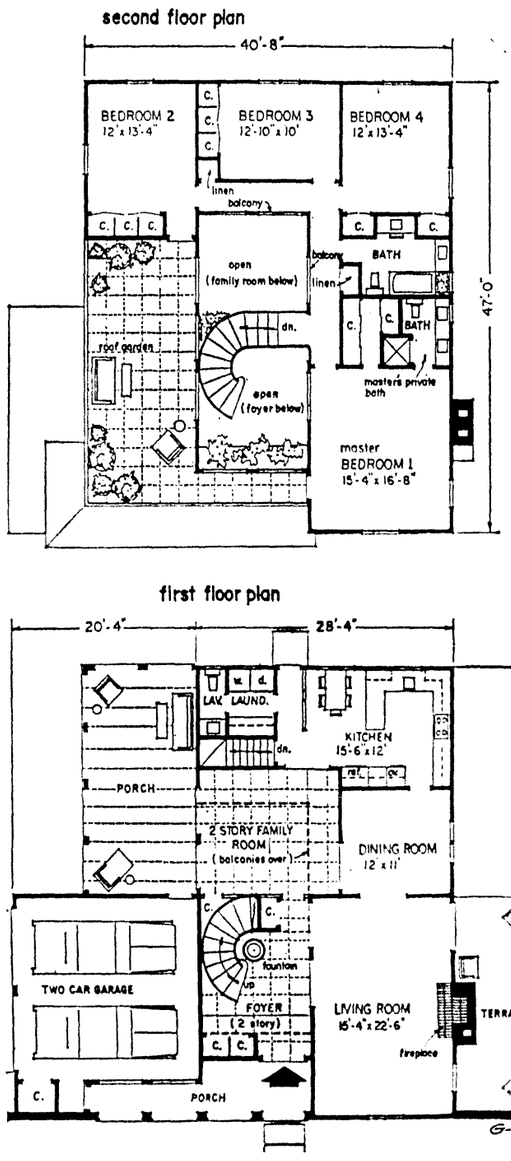
By ANDY LANG

The popularity of certain styles of furniture is often a reflection of the houses in which they are being used. Increasing sales of Spanish motif furnishings during the last year have made it evident a similar influence is being felt in home design.

Spanish architecture has a time-proven solidarity about it. As many residents of the American Southwest have known for years, it combines the traditional with a flair for the dramatic, a partnership that makes living more interesting. It usually also provides privacy for out - door living — and such privacy is much in demand these days.

A fine example of Spanish styling, attuned to the needs of the modern family, is Design G - 40, created for House of the Week by architect Rudolph A. Matern. It's a two - story house with four bedrooms on the second floor, plus a roof garden stretching 27' long over the garage.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing .Please specify House Plan G-40.



FLOOR PLANS: Typical of Spanish architecture, there's a world of opportunity to enjoy good indoor and outdoor living. Note front and rear porches, side terrace and roof garden, as well as arresting curved staircase and fountain in two-story foyer.

STRIKING DESIGN

The design is striking both inside and out. The interior plan would promote interest with any kind of exterior, the central portion being a full two stories high over the foyer and family room. A balcony at the second floor level surrounds this area to give a touch of a bygone century.

A series of arches, used on the exterior on both floors, carry to the inside. The roof garden has five such arches, which are glazed and give natural light to the interior. The arches continue around to the master bedroom and balcony - type hall.

Just inside the double - door front entrance is a spacious foyer, with a curved staircase sweeping up to the second floor. There are no two-story walls to restrict the view across the top of the stair, yet second floor privacy is provided by the height of the stair itself. Adding to the dramatic picture is a water fountain nestling in the curve of the stair.

The family room, behind the foyer, also has arches on three sides — leading to the dining room, the arched porch and the kitchen. The latter, 15' 6" in length, accomodates a full-size kitchen table as well as the usual assortment of modern appliances. Directly off the kitchen is the service section, which includes a laundry, a lavatory, a stair to the basement and a rear entrance.

OUTDOOR LIVING

There is an abundance of outdoor living areas. At the front is a covered porch behind the graceful arches. At the right side, off the fireplaced living room, is a long terrace, shielded from front view by a privacy wall. At the rear is a large porch, accessible from the outside, the two - car garage or the family room. All these are in addition to the previously mentioned roof garden on the second floor, which has a parapet wall around two sides. By facing the garage doors to the side, the front wall becomes an integral part of the design.

The construction materials are stucco-on-brick arches, stucco-on-frame, Spanish tile roof, obscure glass in garage windows, and ceramic tile floors on the front porch, family room and foyer. Windows are steel casement.

Looks like a nice place to enjoy living, doesn't it? That's what it's meant to be.

Garden Center Notes

Oriental Type Designs Shown

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Oriental Study Club of The Twin Cities presented the Wednesday program for the Fifth District Garden Center, displaying nine lovely designs in an Oriental manner. Mrs. H. A. Malone, president of the club made two of the designs. Her first was the "Reflecting Water Scene" design depicting a natural water scene with the Heaven line (Shin), cedar branch, appearing as a tree hanging over the water with small plants beneath.

Across the bowl, representing a small island on the opposite side a small grouping of liarope blooms clustered to complete the scene. Rocks swirled in the low green bowl in a manner showing the current of the stream.

The fruit design in the Oriental is called the Morimono, "heaped up things." This design is usually arranged on a mat or tray, and the rule, as in the Morabana style, is to have at least two-thirds of the tray or mat left free. Mrs. Beth Falls selected a basket container (compote form) for the arrangement of grapefruit and lemons. Loquat foliage filled in for contrast. This design was placed to the back — off-center of the large natural woven bamboo tray. The lower part of the design was a cluster of bananas placed in a branch of the loquat leaves at the base of the container, swirling into the circular pattern of the round mat tray.

CASUAL PLACEMENT

The casual placement of materials on a tray or mat suggests that the host hurriedly selected the best his garden had to offer and assembled it for his unexpected guest's enjoyment. The levels of the fruits represent the three lines, Heaven (Shin), Soe (man), and earth, (Tai). Mrs. John P. Lewis used a lovely authentic Oriental basket, upright, for her design using the unusual Peruvian lily (Calico lily), or "Alstroemerio" for the first, tallest placement to one side in the basket. Small green apple clusters on branches formed the remaining two lines, clustered in the basic section of the small basket as the earth line. When using a basket the plant materials are always carefully selected as to scale and size for the basket, keeping in mind that the basket is used to transport light materials. The designs in baskets should always appear light and airy. The handle should always be left free for use in transporting the basket, at least two thirds free.

Another design, made by me for the program, was composed of garlic blooms, six stems in all. The three longest stems were placed first, in the Heaven, Man, Earth levels in a tall authentic Oriental vase, bottle type with small neck. Three "fillers" were the remaining shorter stems. The whole design was placed on a burlwood base. These blooms were dried from recent cuttings from the garden of a friend of mine. They will be used many times again I am sure.

LAVENDER HYDRANGEA

Mrs. V. S. Garnett cut blooms from her lovely lavender hydrangea, conditioned them carefully, and placed them in a tall cylinder container with the side window so typical of the Oriental vase. One of the blooms was placed in this opening representing the lower "earth," Tai line. Rocks were placed in the container to hold the woody stems of the hydrangea.

Mrs. Garnett also made a basket design for the program. This was a small woven bamboo, upright basket with a slender handle. Pink statice and pink honeysuckle filled in the upright line to one side in the basket. The airy blooms were ideal for the small, frail basket. We learn from the Oriental literature on design that the basket represents "old age," and so often baskets appear lop-sided. Purposely these have been made to appear aged, the beauty peculiar to old things is highly praised in Japan. "Tabi" meaning solitude and "rusting away of things," is a term given to fine old baskets, mossy rocks, lichen - covered trees, oxidized copper, and many other aged articles that contain the rich mellowness of antiquity. Aging articles can be quite valuable for their esthetic use in artistic design. The very fact that they have aged makes them valuable, such as ghost or driftwood. There is a mystery about them that creates interest and curiosity.

The moribana "natural scenery" design was created by Mrs. August Danti. She was so delighted with the chance to use a branch of her nandina which represented the tree by the water edge in the low, black ceramic bow. Rocks covered the holder, adding the earthy touch to the design. The small plants at the base of the tree were deep red crape mytrle clustered with the tree to the back, left side in the bowl. To the opposite corner, in front, a small cluster of the nandina foliage with the crape myrtle blooms created the earth (Tai) line. Water filled the bowl showing that the season is "Summer."

The Kago (basket arrangement) is one of the first made by the Japanese. That is, the basket container was the first type used. The last design featured in the basket was a small bamboo basket with handle upright, filled with the airy variegated honeysuckle to one side in the inside holder. Small pink polyantha roses filled in this line in a light, airy design. This basket was placed on a footed teakwood base. We learn that it is not always necessary to place a base beneath a basket design. As the story goes, in the fifteenth century a political refugee from China made a Kargo (cargo) and presented it to a Japanese military leader and tea master who had befriended him. He placed it on a stand trying to enhance it because of it's humble quality. The leader was so impressed that he ordered the stand removed and the basket was placed directly on the floor of the tokonomo. To this day whenever a basket design is thus displayed it denotes humility, and most of the schools still prohibit their use with a stand or plaque.

The hanging design, Kakebana, is lovely for our patios and gardens today. We are inspired by them because of their simple beauty with long-lasting quality. Boat-shaped containers, first started in 15th century, were often made of bamboo sections. The placement of the material had much meaning, as welcoming a guest, or bidding farewell, simply by the placement of the plant material-forward, or backward in the horizontal container. These were hung on the walls of the tokonomo. Moon-shaped vessels gave messages of love, as well as indicating the season of the year. Mrs. Malone displayed a small bamboo "boat" container on the program with lines of yew. Trailing vines are lovely in this type container, and may be planted to grow naturally.

Many visitors came by the garden center for a closer look at the designs, all giving favorable comments on each design — proving that the Oriental design is certainly one that is pleasing and favored by almost everyone.

Wednesday, College Height's Garden Club will present a display on the Garden Center program.

Take Charm Inventory Of Dwelling

AP NEWSFEATURES

It's time to take the charm quotient of your house.

And don't be fooled by its size. Just because your home "has everything," it doesn't mean you have that essential ingredient, charm.

The swimming pool may be there. The sauna is a big production. There may be specimen trees, flowers, bushes, a lush lawn and an imposing house.

But extravagance in living isn't the answer.

It's an intangible thing, charm, usually acquired (1) by buying a house that has it or (2) having the knack to put it in.

It isn't in "things," the kind of expensive alterations that add to your taxes. The little house up the road that is on a tiny speak of land may have it. Little - house people often look for charm substitutes in lieu of monied things they can't afford.

Here's a check-off that may get you off to a charming summer:

FLOWER BASKET

At the front door: Is it just another door? How would it look with a small flower - filled basket hanging from it? Is there a place for a tall urn filled with greens into which you could stick a few bright flowers from time to time?

Are the porch steps rickety, waiting for handyman help? Don't discourage visitors because of it. Line each side with flowering plants.

Is the porch drab? How would plants look hanging from the porch ceiling where the sun would keep them going? Is there a place to put a flower box on the railing?

If the entrance is plain, can the downstairs windows be dressed with window boxes of colorful plants? Red and white petunias and variegated ivy are a lively combination.

Is the front lawn the type that can be fenced in inexpensively so that you can have rambling roses? This makes for one of the warmest (and most romantic) entranceways. A little gate, too, stresses a cozy sense of privacy.

Is there a place on a back lawn for statuary? A sun dial?

Is there a tree around which you can build a circular bench? Even if you don't sit on it, the illusion of solitude will add to the atmosphere.

OASIS LOCATION

Is there an oasis near the swimming pool? Not just a place where you change clothes, but a place where you can rest in the shade, something with a light cover or with an overhang of some kind — trees or a lattice frame covered with vines. The most expensive swimming pool can have a hot, sticky look when it isn't in use.

Do the birds seem at home around your place? Little bird houses can add vast amounts of charm and besides their decorative aspects provide a haven for our feathered friends. They'll reward you with songs.

Is there lots of shrubbery? A clump of it? It's an ideal spot for low benches. One answer is a slab of slate over white painted cinder block ends, cast concrete ends or metal stanchions such as those of old sewing machines that may be renewed by painting each year.

Charm can be in a brick or flagstone walk from the gate entrance to the door. (Plant creeping thyme or grass in between.) It can be in the color shutters, the red of a barn or lily pads in a pond.

Many persons fail with the charm needle because they think in terms of bigness. Any do-it-yourself operation must be within the scope of the handyman's energies and the time at his disposal. It is much better to have a small lawn and flower border as your show piece, something you can do well, than to spread out everywhere with flowers and ground covers that take masses of time to propogate and weed.

All-American Roses Selected

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

The All - American Roses for 1967 have been named and they include Roman Holiday, Gay Princess, Bewitched and Lucky Lady. Roman Holiday is a brilliant Orange red floribunda. The flowers are fully double and high centered. Large clusters of the flowers are on bushy, somewhat low growing plants. Because of its growth habits, the Roman Holiday is ideal for group or border plantings.

Gay Princess is a soft, shell pink floribunda. The plants are bushy and of medium height.

Bewitched is a bright phlox-pink hybrid tea. The bloom is about five inches in diameter and is on a long stem which makes it an excellent cutting rose. It is vigorous and grows tall and compact. Bewitched is an early bloomer.

Lucky Lady is a pink grandiflora. The flower is a bi-color, light pink with clear pink on the face of the petals and deeper reddish pink on the reverse side. Some flowers are in clusters and others on single stems.

ROSE GARDEN

If you, Mrs. Gardener, make a trip to Baton Rouge, visit the rose garden on our LSU Campus and you may observe all these new All-America Roses. These are grown in the University Test Garden for desirability under Louisiana growing conditions. Neil Odenwald, our horticulturist, is making plans for Home and Garden Week which will be held on the LSU Campus August 16-18. Even though the program outline is not complete, the following subjects will be covered: Rose Culture, Bonsai Plants, Civic Beautification, Bulbs, Azalea Culture and Flower Arranging. Those of us who know Neil are confident that he will have an outstanding garden program. Make your plans now, Mrs. Ouachita, to attend Home and Garden Week on LSU Campus August 16-18.

JUNE DAIRY MONTH

Compared to many foods, milk is not fattening for it provides more good basic nourishment for each calorie. For example, one glassful of homogenized milk is 165, or fewer, calories. While a piece of apple pie counts 385, twenty five potato chips 258 calories and a two-ounce chocolate bar 290. Milk is an excellent source of calcium, proteins, A and B vitamins. It is especially high in riboflavin. In fact, it is the most important source of this vitamin.

LAUNDRY CENTER

There are several locations in the modern home of today for the laundry center. In some homes it's more efficient and practical to locate the laundry center adjacent to the kitchen or bathroom. Unless a kitchen is quite spacious, a laundry center in the kitchen isn't always the ideal solution, because of possible conflicts between meal preparation and laundry chores. But step-saving results when the laundry center is near the kitchen. A large bathroom may accomodate a laundry area very well. Plumbing connections are easier, too, when laundry centers are located near kitchen and baths.

A convenient laundry center may usually be created at one end of the recreation or family room. If desired folding doors can conceal the area when it isn't in use.

FRUITS

Fresh fruits from local orchards soon will be plentiful. As a group, fruits are excellent sources of vitamin C, a fair source of the B complex vitamins. Peaches, apricots, cantaloupes and oranges supply vitamin A. A number of fruits such as blackberries, apricots, strawberries, figs, and dates contribute fair amounts of iron to the diet. Fruits are excellent for those who are watching their calorie intake. Because of their high water content their calorie value is therefore relatively low.

A THOUGHT

More important than your good qualities are the use you make of them.

Old House Marvel Of Electronics

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You can wash that old-fashioned house right out of your head, and remodel it from scratch, says interior designer, house improvement specialist, William Baker. He did. At the finish line, he has a fully automatic electronic marvel of a home that began three years ago with a rather dilapidated 100-year-old house in Greens Farms, Conn.

It requires a big dream and money. Baker had the dream and a lot of people cooperated "in helping me see a dream come true," he explained.

HYDRONIC HEATING

He has the works—a hydronic heating system (turn the heat on for awhile, a fan takes over and circulates the warm air) . . . a low-voltage electric system (so you can't get shocked or electrocuted) . . . a vacuflow cleaning system (a hose is plugged into a outlet and the dust is sucked into a gizmo in the garage).

Open a closet. You've got a symphony. Music plays whenever the electronic system takes over — at a wall that looks like a wall, only it in't. Press a button. Music plays as the wall folds back and reveals a handsome bar-soda fountain, mosaic tile walls, stained glass windows. Press another button. There's a movie-set-up — a big screen that also serves as the television screen.

Dig Bulbs Of Daffodils

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now is the time to dig the bulbs of daffodils, tulips, red spider lilies, sternbergias and any other bulbs like the big pink spider lily that blooms in July. In a week or so, the dead leaves of all these bulbs will disappear, making it very difficult to see just where each bunch of foliage was.

Freshly dug bunches of bulbs are best left undivided until later. In fact, if any soil comes up with them, just leave it on and spread the bunches out thinly in the shade or in some place where they will be able to dry out of direct sunlight.

DRYING TIME

In a few weeks, the soil and bunches of bulbs will be dry, and the single bulbs which should be separated will come apart from the bunch. If they are in a good dry place, you may forget about them and leave the bunches together until later, but watch for rot or mildew. In the case of special bulbs like your fine daffodil varieties, it is best to remove all the soil and let the bulbs which are loose fall from the bunches. Then clean all of them up and put a fan on them to thoroughly dry them out for several hours.

Daffodils can be stored until September. (Poets' narcissus and the varieties derived from this species need to be replanted right away as the roots have almost no dormant season). Tulips will have to be watched because rats and mice think tulips were invented for them to eat.

Red spider lilies, as we have noted in the column before, really are best off when replanted before their roots dry out too much. You will see that their roots are quite alive when you dig the bulbs. After a short drying period, the bulbs can be divided, preserving the roots instead of cutting them off. For ease in handling, you may shorten the longest roots, but do not cut them off shorter than four to six inches.

WORTHWHILE

It is a bit of a nuisance to plant bulbs with roots on them, but it is worth the trouble when they flower nicely the first season after division. The largest spider lily bulbs will do this if you leave the roots on them.

Since the big pink spider lily or "Hall's amaryllis" will be in bloom by mid-July, bulbs of this treasure should go back into the ground shortly. To lengthen the season a little, keep some bulbs out and plant them a week or ten days later than the first ones you put back into the ground.

2 Finishes For Natural Wood Types

AP NEWSFEATURES

If you want to preserve the natural wood appearance of the outside of your house, you have to decide between a penetrating-type or a "built-up" finish.

Penetrating finishes are either clear or slightly pigmented. The latter tend to restore the original color of the wood without hiding the grain and include what are generally referred to as shingle stains.

The built-up finish can be spar varnish, marine varnish or any similar product made to produce a surface coating. At one time, this type of finish could be obtained only in the glossy, hard form, which was especially suitable for doors and comparatively small surfaces but sometimes cracked after a period of time when applied to entire houses. Today, certain types of resin-free varnishes are available in both dull and glossy finishes.

Spanish Influence Evident In Dramatic 2-Story House

Oriental Type Designs Shown

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Oriental Study Club of The Twin Cities presented the Wednesday program for the Fifth District Garden Center, displaying nine lovely designs in an Oriental manner. Mrs. H. A. Malone, president of the club made two of the designs. Her first was the "Reflecting Water Scene" design depicting a natural water scene with the Heaven line (Shin), cedar branch, appearing as a tree hanging over the water with small plants beneath.

Across the bowl, representing a small island on the opposite side a small grouping of liarope blooms clustered to complete the scene. Rocks swirled in the low green bowl in a manner showing the current of the stream.

The fruit design in the Oriental is called the Morimono, "heaped up things." Mrs. Garnett also made a basket design for the program. This was a small woven bamboo, upright basket with a slender handle. Pink statice and pink honeysuckle filled in the upright line to one side in the basket. The airy blooms were ideal for the small, frail basket. We learn from the Oriental literature on design that the basket represents "old age," and so often baskets appear lop-sided. The Kago (basket arrangement) is one of the first made by the Japanese. That is, the basket container was the first type used. The last design featured in the basket was a small bamboo basket with handle upright, filled with the airy variegated honeysuckle to one side in the inside holder. Small pink polyantha roses filled in this line in a light, airy design. This basket was placed on a footed teakwood base. Is the porch drab? How would plants look hanging from the porch ceiling where the sun would keep them going? Is there a place to put a flower box on the railing?

If the entrance is plain, can the downstairs windows be dressed with window boxes of colorful plants? Red and white petunias and variegated ivy are a lively combination.

Is the front lawn the type that can be fenced in inexpensively so that you can have rambling roses? This makes for one of the warmest (and most romantic) entranceways. A little gate, too, stresses a cozy sense of privacy.

Is there a place on a back lawn for statuary? A sun dial?

Is there a tree around which you can build a circular bench? Even if you don't sit on it, the illusion of solitude will add to the atmosphere.

OASIS LOCATION

Is there an oasis near the swimming pool? Not just a place where you change clothes, but a place where you can rest in the shade, something with a light cover or with an overhang of some kind — trees or a lattice frame covered with vines. The most expensive swimming pool can have a hot, sticky look when it isn't in use.

Do the birds seem at home around your place? Little bird houses can add vast amounts of charm and besides their decorative aspects provide a haven for our feathered friends. They'll reward you with songs.

Is there lots of shrubbery? A clump of it? It's an ideal spot for low benches. One answer is a slab of slate over white painted cinder block ends, cast concrete ends or metal stanchions such as those of old sewing machines that may be renewed by painting each year.

Charm can be in a brick or flagstone walk from the gate entrance to the door. (Plant creeping thyme or grass in between.) It can be in the color shutters, the red of a barn or lily pads in a pond.

Many persons fail with the charm needle because they think in terms of bigness. Any do-it-yourself operation must be within the scope of the handyman's energies and the time at his disposal. It is much better to have a small lawn and flower border as your show piece, something you can do well, than to spread out everywhere with flowers and ground covers that take masses of time to propogate and weed.

All-American Roses Selected

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

The All - American Roses for 1967 have been named and they include Roman Holiday, Gay Princess, Bewitched and Lucky Lady. Roman Holiday is a brilliant Orange red floribunda. The flowers are fully double and high centered. Large clusters of the flowers are on bushy, somewhat low growing plants. Because of its growth habits, the Roman Holiday is ideal for group or border plantings.

Gay Princess is a soft, shell pink floribunda. The plants are bushy and of medium height.

Bewitched is a bright phlox-pink hybrid tea. The bloom is about five inches in diameter and is on a long stem which makes it an excellent cutting rose. It is vigorous and grows tall and compact. Bewitched is an early bloomer.

Lucky Lady is a pink grandiflora. The flower is a bi-color, light pink with clear pink on the face of the petals and deeper reddish pink on the reverse side. Some flowers are in clusters and others on single stems.

ROSE GARDEN

If you, Mrs. Gardener, make a trip to Baton Rouge, visit the rose garden on our LSU Campus and you may observe all these new All-America Roses. These are grown in the University Test Garden for desirability under Louisiana growing conditions. Neil Odenwald, our horticulturist, is making plans for Home and Garden Week which will be held on the LSU Campus August 16-18. Even though the program outline is not complete, the following subjects will be covered: Rose Culture, Bonsai Plants, Civic Beautification, Bulbs, Azalea Culture and Flower Arranging. Those of us who know Neil are confident that he will have an outstanding garden program. Make your plans now, Mrs. Ouachita, to attend Home and Garden Week on LSU Campus August 16-18.

JUNE DAIRY MONTH

Compared to many foods, milk is not fattening for it provides more good basic nourishment for each calorie. For example, one glassful of homogenized milk is 165, or fewer, calories. While a piece of apple pie counts 385, twenty five potato chips 258 calories and a two-ounce chocolate bar 290. Milk is an excellent source of calcium, proteins, A and B vitamins. It is especially high in riboflavin. In fact, it is the most important source of this vitamin.

LAUNDRY CENTER

There are several locations in the modern home of today for the laundry center. In some homes it's more efficient and practical to locate the laundry center adjacent to the kitchen or bathroom. Unless a kitchen is quite spacious, a laundry center in the kitchen isn't always the ideal solution, because of possible conflicts between meal preparation and laundry chores. But step-saving results when the laundry center is near the kitchen. A large bathroom may accomodate a laundry area very well. Plumbing connections are easier, too, when laundry centers are located near kitchen and baths.

A convenient laundry center may usually be created at one end of the recreation or family room. If desired folding doors can conceal the area when it isn't in use.

FRUITS

Fresh fruits from local orchards soon will be plentiful. As a group, fruits are excellent sources of vitamin C, a fair source of the B complex vitamins. Peaches, apricots, cantaloupes and oranges supply vitamin A. A number of fruits such as blackberries, apricots, strawberries, figs, and dates contribute fair amounts of iron to the diet. Fruits are excellent for those who are watching their calorie intake. Because of their high water content their calorie value is therefore relatively low.

A THOUGHT

More important than your good qualities are the use you make of them.

Old House Marvel Of Electronics

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You can wash that old-fashioned house right out of your head, and remodel it from scratch, says interior designer, house improvement specialist, William Baker. He did. At the finish line, he has a fully automatic electronic marvel of a home that began three years ago with a rather dilapidated 100-year-old house in Greens Farms, Conn.

It requires a big dream and money. Baker had the dream and a lot of people cooperated "in helping me see a dream come true," he explained.

HYDRONIC HEATING

He has the works—a hydronic heating system (turn the heat on for awhile, a fan takes over and circulates the warm air) . . . a low-voltage electric system (so you can't get shocked or electrocuted) . . . a vacuflow cleaning system (a hose is plugged into a outlet and the dust is sucked into a gizmo in the garage).

Open a closet. You've got a symphony. Music plays whenever the electronic system takes over — at a wall that looks like a wall, only it in't. Press a button. Music plays as the wall folds back and reveals a handsome bar-soda fountain, mosaic tile walls, stained glass windows. Press another button. There's a movie-set-up — a big screen that also serves as the television screen.

Dig Bulbs Of Daffodils

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now is the time to dig the bulbs of daffodils, tulips, red spider lilies, sternbergias and any other bulbs like the big pink spider lily that blooms in July. In a week or so, the dead leaves of all these bulbs will disappear, making it very difficult to see just where each bunch of foliage was.

Freshly dug bunches of bulbs are best left undivided until later. In fact, if any soil comes up with them, just leave it on and spread the bunches out thinly in the shade or in some place where they will be able to dry out of direct sunlight.

DRYING TIME

In a few weeks, the soil and bunches of bulbs will be dry, and the single bulbs which should be separated will come apart from the bunch. If they are in a good dry place, you may forget about them and leave the bunches together until later, but watch for rot or mildew. In the case of special bulbs like your fine daffodil varieties, it is best to remove all the soil and let the bulbs which are loose fall from the bunches. Then clean all of them up and put a fan on them to thoroughly dry them out for several hours.

Daffodils can be stored until September. (Poets' narcissus and the varieties derived from this species need to be replanted right away as the roots have almost no dormant season). Tulips will have to be watched because rats and mice think tulips were invented for them to eat.

Red spider lilies, as we have noted in the column before, really are best off when replanted before their roots dry out too much. You will see that their roots are quite alive when you dig the bulbs. After a short drying period, the bulbs can be divided, preserving the roots instead of cutting them off. For ease in handling, you may shorten the longest roots, but do not cut them off shorter than four to six inches.

WORTHWHILE

It is a bit of a nuisance to plant bulbs with roots on them, but it is worth the trouble when they flower nicely the first season after division. The largest spider lily bulbs will do this if you leave the roots on them.

Since the big pink spider lily or "Hall's amaryllis" will be in bloom by mid-July, bulbs of this treasure should go back into the ground shortly. To lengthen the season a little, keep some bulbs out and plant them a week or ten days later than the first ones you put back into the ground.

2 Finishes For Natural Wood Types

AP NEWSFEATURES

If you want to preserve the natural wood appearance of the outside of your house, you have to decide between a penetrating-type or a "built-up" finish.

Penetrating finishes are either clear or slightly pigmented. The latter tend to restore the original color of the wood without hiding the grain and include what are generally referred to as shingle stains.

The built-up finish can be spar varnish, marine varnish or any similar product made to produce a surface coating. At one time, this type of finish could be obtained only in the glossy, hard form, which was especially suitable for doors and comparatively small surfaces but sometimes cracked after a period of time when applied to entire houses. Today, certain types of resin-free varnishes are available in both dull and glossy finishes.

DON BLAYLOCK

Don Blaylock Evangelist For Revival

Don Blaylock, of Louisville, Kentucky, will be the evangelist in a series of revival services at Parkview Baptist Church, 1001 Forsythe Ave., from Monday, June 20 through Sunday, June 26.

Singer and music director for the revival will be George R. Blaylock, of Elizabethton, Tennessee.

The Rev. James R. Edwards, pastor of the church, said that services will be held Monday through Friday at 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Coffee, doughnuts and milk will be served in Parkview's Fellowship Hall before each morning service. A special fellowship for young people will be held following each evening service.

REVIVAL PREACHER

Born in Bristol, Virginia, Don Blaylock has preached at revivals in various parts of the country and has led youth clinics at the Baptist assemblies in Glorieta, New Mexico, and Ridgecrest, North Carolina. He is a graduate of Carson-Newman College and is now working on his B.D. degree at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. At present he is serving as minister of music at the Buechel Park Baptist Church in Louisville.

An elder brother of Don, George Blaylock has served Baptist churches in Tennessee, Florida, Kentucky, and Alabama. He is also a graduate of Carson-Newman College, studied at Southern Seminary in Louisville and holds a master of church music degree from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He now is minister of music and youth of the First Baptist Church of Elizabethton, Tennessee.

Class Seeking Funds To Send GI's Devotionals

The Crusaders for Christ Sunday School class of the First Methodist Church of Winnfield has launched a campaign to raise funds to supply servicemen in Viet Nam with copies of The Upper Room, a widely - used devotional guide.

Spearheading the project is R. R. Rogers, a member of the class, which is taught by the Rev. George W. Ross, pastor.

The Upper Room movement, founded by Methodists, is now international and interdenominational.

The class hopes to raise funds to send editions of the Upper Room, called Servicemen's Prayer, a small pocket-size devotional aimed at giving hope and spiritual encouragement to the men in combat.

First Great Cathedral Of Christendom In Ruins

ALEPPO, Syria (AP) — While tourists flock to see the ancient churches of Europe, the first great cathedral of Christendom stands in ruins on a Syrian hilltop, inhabited only by lizards. Hawks wheel overhead.

"This was the greatest building in the Christian world 1,500 years ago," says the Syrian guide, clambering among the toppled stones of the Church of St. Simeon the Stylite. "But almost nobody comes here now."

The massive church was built in the 5th century to commemorate a fanatic monk who spent 37 years perched atop a pillar, attracting pilgrims from the corners of the ancient world and influencing the affairs of the Roman Empire.

LONG ATTRITION

After a lifetime lashed by howling desert winds, parched by the searing summer sun, and frozen by the numbing winters of north Syria, Simeon died preaching from his 66-foot-high column in 459 A.D.

The stump of the column still stands on the hilltop about 30 miles from Aleppo, ringed by eight arches and the cathedral ruins which church expert Jules Roy calls "a work completely without parallel in the whole history of architecture."

The cathedral's sheer size and classic beauty of design made it an outstanding landmark in the days when much of Europe was primitive and pagan, but Syria was prospering in Christian splendor.

To the fervent believers of the time, the tales of Simeon's virtues were a sensation. Pilgrims came from lands as remote as Britain and Spain to hear the sermons of the shepherd boy who became a monk, who prayed for 40 days every year bricked up in a cell without food or water, who buried himself to the neck in sand for days at a time to mortify his flesh, who chained himself to a rock or wore a spiked girdle to enforce his piety.

MUCH SOUGHT

As the crowds of worshippers to his village monastery increased, interfering with his devotions, Simeon moved to the top of a pillar to continue his meditations in solitude. Emaciated, weather-ravaged, unwashed, wild-eyed and half-blind from the sun, bowing in prayer more than 1,200 times a day, Simeon became the most famous holy man in the Middle East, the basin of Christianity.

Pilgrims sought his advice, church leaders dizzily climbed 60 feet up a ladder for his blessing, and officials of the Roman Empire consulted him on affairs of state.

Other Anchorites followed his example, and living on top of a column became fashionable for a time among Eastern ascetics. Some of them stayed up for years, almost as long as Simeon, but none acquired his sanctity or influence.

When he died, his body was lowered from the pillar's cap — so small that he had never been able to lie at full length for 37 years — and taken to Antioch in a gigantic procession of church leaders, the head of the eastern Roman Empire, and 6,000 Roman Legionnaires.

CHURCH BUILT

Pilgrims continued to flock to the pillar, however, and 17 years after his death the church was built, together with monasteries and hostels to accommodate the hordes of visitors.

The great Christian cities of Syria declined two centuries later, after the Moslem conquest of the Middle East. St. Simeon's church, later transformed by the Arabs into a fortress, is only one of scores of Christian ruins scattered around the country, which cause some scholars to call Syria "the land of lost cities."

PULPIT GUEST

Pulpit guest today at 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Fairbanks Baptist Church will be Earl D. Mercer, public relations director for the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home, Monroe. He will speak in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. H. P. Tarpley.

St. John's To Observe Anniversary

St. John's Christian Church, Forsythe at Westminster, will celebrate its 10th anniversary today. Following the 10:45 morning worship, dinner will be served to all the congregation.

A special service commemorating this event will be held at 2 p.m. During this service charter members, former members and guests will be recognized. Those sharing in the program will be T. E. Sturgeon, Dr. D. L. Anderson, John Woodbuen, and Dr. Albert Jones. Music will be provided by the choir.

The congregation was formed from a nucleus of sixty-two members, commissioned by the First Christian Church, on June 3, 1956. The first service was held in Lexington School on June 10, 1956. The parsonage was erected first, and the present first unit of the church plant was dedicated the last Sunday in April, 1958.

The Rev. C. R. Burcham was the first minister. The present minister is the Rev. R. T. Watson.

The congregation is a member church of the Chrisuan Churches (Disciples of Christ) and cooperates with the International Convention of the Christian Churches and the Louisiana Association of Christian Churches.

News Briefs In Religion

CRITICISM IN GAZETTE

LONDON (AP) — Roman Catholic marriage regulations are defeating all the expressions of brotherly love, states the (Angelican) Church of Ireland Gazette in a comment on the ecumenical movement. "This is one sphere in which Roman Catholic policy has not relaxed one iota," the Gazette said. "Nowhere in the world are the injustice and sheer cruelty of these regulations felt to a greater extent than in Ireland."

FAITH AND SCIENCE

NEW YORK (AP) — David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, foresees a growing "upsruge of spiritual vitality" as a "reaction against current cynicism and materialism."

In a new biography of him by Eugene Lyons, the pioneering electronics executive says: "Science begets humility. Its every discovery reveals more clearly the divine design in nature, the remarkable harmony of all things, from the infinitesimal to the infinite, that surpasses mortal understanding."

AMENDED PRAYER

ST. GALL, Switzerland (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop here has ordered elimination of derogatory references to Jews in a centuries - old prayer traditionally chanted at sunset by Alpine herdsmen. Deleted were portions of the prayer, dating back to medieval times, which asks protection against "the false Jews ... cheating our dear Lord God."

PRAYERS IN ENGLISH

LONDON (AP) — An English version of some prayers in the Mass has been agreed by the British Roman Catholic hierarchy and may be used by the end of the year, says Arch bishop George Dwyer of Birmingham. But he added that a final universal English language text for the Mass was unlikely for at least three years.

Until now English, Welsh, Scottish and Irish Catholic churches have been using slightly differing versions of certain prayers. A committee of the English National Liturgical Commission has been working for 18 months on a translation of the Missal.

THEOLOGY FOR LAYMEN

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) have started a long-range program of regional "academies of Teaching" to develop "core groups" of educational leaders in each state to train others for educational duties in districts and congregations.

SOLIDARITY GROWING

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — There has been a growing sense of solidarity within the Anglican Communion ever since the Toronto conference of 1963, the Archbishop of Canterbury (Dr. Michael Ramsey) told a meeting here. He added: "We are Anglicans and likely to be Anglicans for some time yet. We believe that, as Anglicans, we have within Christendom a job to do for the whole world."

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

Don't you honestly believe that most of the problems of this world are due to ignorance? If people were more educated, don't you think that there would be less prejudice, intolerance, and immorality? G.W.

There is a vast difference between possessing knowledge and applying it to our lives. I have heard drunks argue about the evils of alcohol, and yet they were not able to conquer the lust for drink in their own lives. Most narcotic addicts are fully aware of the consequences of addiction, but are helpless to help themselves. All of us are acquainted with doctors who lecture their patients about over - eating, and they themselves are unable to cope with their weight problem. Once I saw a doctor reprove a patient for smoking while lighting a cigarette himself.

I disagree that education in itself is the answer to our moral and spiritual problems. It is one thing to believe a thing in your head, and another to let it be seen in your life. That is why, after observing human nature on every continent, that I am more convinced than ever that Jesus was right when He said we must be born again. I have seen highly educated people go bad morally. They knew better, but they were powerless to do better. Education is important, but it must be coupled to life, and faith in God gives us the capability to do this. The Bible holds the promise that for those who trust Him "sin shall not master you."

Rev. T. Mitchell Central Baptist Interim Pastor

The A. T. Mitchell of West Monroe has been called to serve as interim pastor of Central Baptist Church, 3400 Lee Ave., Monroe.

He will assume duties today and serve until a pastor is called and arrives to take over the assignment. Services today will be held at 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. Mid-week services will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Rev. Mitchell founded Ridge Avenue Baptist Church in West Monroe and served as its pastor for 23 years until his retirement about four years ago. He started his preaching career about 52 years ago.

Since his retirement he has been kept busy serving as supply pastor and in interim capacities. Last year he served for several months as interim pastor at Faith Baptist Church in Monroe.

Church Names Pulpit Guest

Wade B. East, superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home, Monroe, will be pulpit guest today in all worship services at the New Chapel Hill Baptist Church, West Monroe. The announcement was made by Rev. A. C. Cantrell, pastor.

Protestant-Catholic Bible Edition Slated

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

At its final session last fall, the Vatican Council expressed hope that all Christians would some day be able to use the same edition of the Bible.

The hope has been realized much more quickly than many people thought possible.

Recently, an edition of the Bible widely admired by Protestants received formal and official approval—technically known as an Imprimatur — for use by Catholics.

The Imprimatur was granted by Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston to "The Oxford Annotated Bible with the Apocrypha," published by Oxford University Press.

The Oxford Bible uses the text of the Revised Standard Version (RSV) translation, supplementing it with extensive footnotes, introduced articles, maps and other Bible study aids preparod by a team of 18 distinguished Protestant scholars.

Catholic authorities had previously approved a "Catholic RSV" which differed textually from the regular Protestant version in only a few places.

APPROVES USE

Now Cardinal Cushing has approved for Catholic use the identical RSV text that appears in Protestant Bibles.

Catholic Biblical scholars who served as advisers to Cardinal Cushing asked for a few minor changes in the footnotes of the Oxford Bible. They consisted chiefly of adding brief explanations in cases where Catholic interpretation differs from Protestant interpretation. For example, where Matthew's gospel speaks of the brothers of Jesus, a footnote now points out that "in Semitic usage, besides its ordinary meaning, the word 'brothers' may also refer to persons of varying degree of blood relationship; here and elsewhere Catholic tradition regards them as relatives of Jesus, not blood brothers."

The editors of the Oxford Bible, Professor Herbert G. May of Oberlin College and Professor Bruce M. Metzger of Princeton Theological Seminary, agreed to the changes sought by Catholic scholars. They will be included in all future editions. Thus there will not be slightly differing "Protestant" and "Catholic" editions, but one common Bible for both.

But the significance of the Imprimatur actually goes beyond the realization of the long-dreamed-of common Bible. It is the first official Catholic endorsement of the modern critical consensus on the Bible which has emerged among scholars in recent years, and which is reflected in the annotations of the Oxford Bible.

Scholars of both faiths were elated by the announcement of Cardinal Cushing's action.

"At last we have a truly ecumenical version of the scriptures," said Metzger.

Fr. W. Van Etten Casey, S.J., professor of theology at Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., said:

"After 400 years of division and controversy over the Bible, it should be a source of deep satisfaction to all Christians to know that at last the one Bible has been restored to the Christian church."

AIMED AT CHILDREN

For many years, churches have aimed their religious education programs primarily at children.

Now comes a Lutheran leader, who says that adults ought to be the primary target.

"The key to Christian education in the church is really the informed adult," says Dr. W. Kent Gilbert III, head of the parish education board of the Lutheran Church in America. "Unless we have an informed laity, the efforts to bring up a child in the faith are largely vitiated by what he learns from the adult community."

Dr. Gilbert says a survey conducted among adult Lutherans indicates that most of them are "desperately aware of the need for a religious grounding in life" but are confused and bewildered by the "many clamoring voices" which are being raised by people who assert that the church is irrelevant and that God is dead.

The answer, he says, is for parish churches to provide lecture courses and discussion groups to introduce intelligent adults to "a thinking man's religion."

Christian Service Gives Viet Aid

Twenty-six professional workers will arrive in Viet Nam this summer to augment volunteer medical-social welfare teams already there under the auspices of Viet Nam Christian Service.

Total personnel will then be 55, all of whom were recruited for service by Church World Service, Lutheran World Relief and the Mennonite Central Committee. In Viet Nam the three agencies operate through Viet Nam Christian Service, an organization formed in January.

VCS hopes to establish about ten social welfare centers in strategic Viet Nam refugee areas this year. At present there are 800,000 refugees in South Viet Nam and the number is increasing daily. Already some 29 volunteers are working in the suburbs of Saigon, Pleiku, and Nha Trang giving medical and social aid to thousands of refugees there.

Land Given For Church At Ruston

A one and one-half acre site for a church building has been donated to the new First Southern Methodist Church of Ruston by Mr. and Mrs. Mett S. Carroll.

The land is located in Park Meadow Subdivision which is being developed by Carroll.

In making the land donation, Carroll said, "The church is the only answer for aiding and rehabilitating of man in today's changing America."

Plans are being drawn for an English country - style church building which will be located at the corner of Kentucky Avenue and Goodwin Road. Construction is scheduled for 1967.

Dan Campbell is president of the church Board of Stewards, and Major James A. Webb Jr., is treasurer.

He is also a graduate of Carson-Newman College, studied at Southern Seminary in Louisville and holds a master of church music degree from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He now is minister of music and youth of the First Baptist Church of Elizabethton, Tennessee.

Class Seeking Funds To Send GI's Devotionals

The Crusaders for Christ Sunday School class of the First Methodist Church of Winnfield has launched a campaign to raise funds to supply servicemen in Viet Nam with copies of The Upper Room, a widely - used devotional guide.

Spearheading the project is R. R. Rogers, a member of the class, which is taught by the Rev. George W. Ross, pastor.

The Upper Room movement, founded by Methodists, is now international and interdenominational.

The class hopes to raise funds to send editions of the Upper Room, called Servicemen's Prayer, a small pocket-size devotional aimed at giving hope and spiritual encouragement to the men in combat.

First Great Cathedral Of Christendom In Ruins

ALEPPO, Syria (AP) — While tourists flock to see the ancient churches of Europe, the first great cathedral of Christendom stands in ruins on a Syrian hilltop, inhabited only by lizards. Hawks wheel overhead.

"This was the greatest building in the Christian world 1,500 years ago," says the Syrian guide, clambering among the toppled stones of the Church of St. Simeon the Stylite. "But almost nobody comes here now."

The massive church was built in the 5th century to commemorate a fanatic monk who spent 37 years perched atop a pillar, attracting pilgrims from the corners of the ancient world and influencing the affairs of the Roman Empire.

LONG ATTRITION

After a lifetime lashed by howling desert winds, parched by the searing summer sun, and frozen by the numbing winters of north Syria, Simeon died preaching from his 66-foot-high column in 459 A.D.

The stump of the column still stands on the hilltop about 30 miles from Aleppo, ringed by eight arches and the cathedral ruins which church expert Jules Roy calls "a work completely without parallel in the whole history of architecture."

The cathedral's sheer size and classic beauty of design made it an outstanding landmark in the days when much of Europe was primitive and pagan, but Syria was prospering in Christian splendor.

To the fervent believers of the time, the tales of Simeon's virtues were a sensation. Pilgrims came from lands as remote as Britain and Spain to hear the sermons of the shepherd boy who became a monk, who prayed for 40 days every year bricked up in a cell without food or water, who buried himself to the neck in sand for days at a time to mortify his flesh, who chained himself to a rock or wore a spiked girdle to enforce his piety.

MUCH SOUGHT

As the crowds of worshippers to his village monastery increased, interfering with his devotions, Simeon moved to the top of a pillar to continue his meditations in solitude. Emaciated, weather-ravaged, unwashed, wild-eyed and half-blind from the sun, bowing in prayer more than 1,200 times a day, Simeon became the most famous holy man in the Middle East, the basin of Christianity.

Pilgrims sought his advice, church leaders dizzily climbed 60 feet up a ladder for his blessing, and officials of the Roman Empire consulted him on affairs of state.

Other Anchorites followed his example, and living on top of a column became fashionable for a time among Eastern ascetics. Some of them stayed up for years, almost as long as Simeon, but none acquired his sanctity or influence.

When he died, his body was lowered from the pillar's cap — so small that he had never been able to lie at full length for 37 years — and taken to Antioch in a gigantic procession of church leaders, the head of the eastern Roman Empire, and 6,000 Roman Legionnaires.

CHURCH BUILT

Pilgrims continued to flock to the pillar, however, and 17 years after his death the church was built, together with monasteries and hostels to accommodate the hordes of visitors.

The great Christian cities of Syria declined two centuries later, after the Moslem conquest of the Middle East. St. Simeon's church, later transformed by the Arabs into a fortress, is only one of scores of Christian ruins scattered around the country, which cause some scholars to call Syria "the land of lost cities."

PULPIT GUEST

Pulpit guest today at 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Fairbanks Baptist Church will be Earl D. Mercer, public relations director for the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home, Monroe. He will speak in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. H. P. Tarpley.

Rev. T. Mitchell Central Baptist Interim Pastor

The A. T. Mitchell of West Monroe has been called to serve as interim pastor of Central Baptist Church, 3400 Lee Ave., Monroe.

He will assume duties today and serve until a pastor is called and arrives to take over the assignment. Services today will be held at 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. Mid-week services will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Rev. Mitchell founded Ridge Avenue Baptist Church in West Monroe and served as its pastor for 23 years until his retirement about four years ago. He started his preaching career about 52 years ago.

Since his retirement he has been kept busy serving as supply pastor and in interim capacities. Last year he served for several months as interim pastor at Faith Baptist Church in Monroe.

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

Don't you honestly believe that most of the problems of this world are due to ignorance? If people were more educated, don't you think that there would be less prejudice, intolerance, and immorality? G.W.

There is a vast difference between possessing knowledge and applying it to our lives. I have heard drunks argue about the evils of alcohol, and yet they were not able to conquer the lust for drink in their own lives. Most narcotic addicts are fully aware of the consequences of addiction, but are helpless to help themselves. All of us are acquainted with doctors who lecture their patients about over - eating, and they themselves are unable to cope with their weight problem. Once I saw a doctor reprove a patient for smoking while lighting a cigarette himself.

I disagree that education in itself is the answer to our moral and spiritual problems. It is one thing to believe a thing in your head, and another to let it be seen in your life. That is why, after observing human nature on every continent, that I am more convinced than ever that Jesus was right when He said we must be born again. I have seen highly educated people go bad morally. They knew better, but they were powerless to do better. Education is important, but it must be coupled to life, and faith in God gives us the capability to do this. The Bible holds the promise that for those who trust Him "sin shall not master you."

Church Names Pulpit Guest

Wade B. East, superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home, Monroe, will be pulpit guest today in all worship services at the New Chapel Hill Baptist Church, West Monroe. The announcement was made by Rev. A. C. Cantrell, pastor.

St. John's To Observe Anniversary

St. John's Christian Church, Forsythe at Westminster, will celebrate its 10th anniversary today. Following the 10:45 morning worship, dinner will be served to all the congregation.

A special service commemorating this event will be held at 2 p.m. During this service charter members, former members and guests will be recognized. Those sharing in the program will be T. E. Sturgeon, Dr. D. L. Anderson, John Woodbuen, and Dr. Albert Jones. Music will be provided by the choir.

The congregation was formed from a nucleus of sixty-two members, commissioned by the First Christian Church, on June 3, 1956. The first service was held in Lexington School on June 10, 1956. The parsonage was erected first, and the present first unit of the church plant was dedicated the last Sunday in April, 1958.

The Rev. C. R. Burcham was the first minister. The present minister is the Rev. R. T. Watson.

The congregation is a member church of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) and cooperates with the International Convention of the Christian Churches and the Louisiana Association of Christian Churches.

News Briefs In Religion

CRITICISM IN GAZETTE

LONDON (AP) — Roman Catholic marriage regulations are defeating all the expressions of brotherly love, states the (Angelican) Church of Ireland Gazette in a comment on the ecumenical movement. "This is one sphere in which Roman Catholic policy has not relaxed one iota," the Gazette said. "Nowhere in the world are the injustice and sheer cruelty of these regulations felt to a greater extent than in Ireland."

FAITH AND SCIENCE

NEW YORK (AP) — David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, foresees a growing "upsruge of spiritual vitality" as a "reaction against current cynicism and materialism."

In a new biography of him by Eugene Lyons, the pioneering electronics executive says: "Science begets humility. Its every discovery reveals more clearly the divine design in nature, the remarkable harmony of all things, from the infinitesimal to the infinite, that surpasses mortal understanding."

AMENDED PRAYER

ST. GALL, Switzerland (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop here has ordered elimination of derogatory references to Jews in a centuries - old prayer traditionally chanted at sunset by Alpine herdsmen. Deleted were portions of the prayer, dating back to medieval times, which asks protection against "the false Jews . . . cheating our dear Lord God."

PRAYERS IN ENGLISH

LONDON (AP) — An English version of some prayers in the Mass has been agreed by the British Roman Catholic hierarchy and may be used by the end of the year, says Arch bishop George Dwyer of Birmingham. But he added that a final universal English language text for the Mass was unlikely for at least three years.

Until now English, Welsh, Scottish and Irish Catholic churches have been using slightly differing versions of certain prayers. A committee of the English National Liturgical Commission has been working for 18 months on a translation of the Missal.

THEOLOGY FOR LAYMEN

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) have started a long-range program of regional "academies of Teaching" to develop "core groups" of educational leaders in each state to train others for educational duties in districts and congregations.

SOLIDARITY GROWING

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — There has been a growing sense of solidarity within the Anglican Communion ever since the Toronto conference of 1963, the Archbishop of Canterbury (Dr. Michael Ramsey) told a meeting here. He added: "We are Anglicans and likely to be Anglicans for some time yet. We believe that, as Anglicans, we have within Christendom a job to do for the whole world."

Arkansas Pastor Will Conduct Services Here

The pastor of the Wyatt Baptist Church of El Dorado, Ark., the Rev. Aviod La Bafl, will conduct revival services at Eastside Baptist Church, 315 80th St., Monroe, starting today and continuing through Sunday, June 19, it was announced by the Rev. M. L. Graham Sr., pastor.

Morning services will be held at 10 and evening services at 7:30 daily. A nursery will be open during services.

The singing portion of the services will be headed by Russell Nolan.

Protestant-Catholic Bible Edition Slated

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

At its final session last fall, the Vatican Council expressed hope that all Christians would some day be able to use the same edition of the Bible.

The hope has been realized much more quickly than many people thought possible.

Recently, an edition of the Bible widely admired by Protestants received formal and official approval—technically known as an Imprimatur — for use by Catholics.

The Imprimatur was granted by Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston to "The Oxford Annotated Bible with the Apocrypha," published by Oxford University Press.

The Oxford Bible uses the text of the Revised Standard Version (RSV) translation, supplementing it with extensive footnotes, introduced articles, maps and other Bible study aids prepared by a team of 18 distinguished Protestant scholars.

Catholic authorities had previously approved a "Catholic RSV" which differed textually from the regular Protestant version in only a few places.

APPROVES USE

Now Cardinal Cushing has approved for Catholic use the identical RSV text that appears in Protestant Bibles.

Catholic Biblical scholars who served as advisers to Cardinal Cushing asked for a few minor changes in the footnotes of the Oxford Bible. They consisted chiefly of adding brief explanations in cases where Catholic interpretation differs from Protestant interpretation. For example, where Matthew's gospel speaks of the brothers of Jesus, a footnote now points out that "in Semitic usage, besides its ordinary meaning, the word 'brothers' may also refer to persons of varying degree of blood relationship; here and elsewhere Catholic tradition regards them as relatives of Jesus, not blood brothers."

The editors of the Oxford Bible, Professor Herbert G. May of Oberlin College and Professor Bruce M. Metzger of Princeton Theological Seminary, agreed to the changes sought by Catholic scholars. They will be included in all future editions. Thus there will not be slightly differing "Protestant" and "Catholic" editions, but one common Bible for both.

But the significance of the Imprimatur actually goes beyond the realization of the long-dreamed-of common Bible. It is the first official Catholic endorsement of the modern critical consensus on the Bible which has emerged among scholars in recent years, and which is reflected in the annotations of the Oxford Bible.

Scholars of both faiths were elated by the announcement of Cardinal Cushing's action.

"At last we have a truly ecumenical version of the scriptures," said Metzger.

Fr. W. Van Etten Casey, S.J., professor of theology at Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., said:

"After 400 years of division and controversy over the Bible, it should be a source of deep satisfaction to all Christians to know that at last the one Bible has been restored to the Christian church."

AIMED AT CHILDREN

For many years, churches have aimed their religious education programs primarily at children.

Now comes a Lutheran leader, who says that adults ought to be the primary target.

"The key to Christian education in the church is really the informed adult," says Dr. W. Kent Gilbert III, head of the parish education board of the Lutheran Church in America. "Unless we have an informed laity, the efforts to bring up a child in the faith are largely vitiated by what he learns from the adult community."

Dr. Gilbert says a survey conducted among adult Lutherans indicates that most of them are "desperately aware of the need for a religious grounding in life" but are confused and bewildered by the "many clamoring voices" which are being raised by people who assert that the church is irrelevant and that God is dead.

The answer, he says, is for parish churches to provide lecture courses and discussion groups to introduce intelligent adults to "a thinking man's religion."

Christian Service Gives Viet Aid

Twenty-six professional workers will arrive in Viet Nam this summer to augment volunteer medical-social welfare teams already there under the auspices of Viet Nam Christian Service.

Total personnel will then be 55, all of whom were recruited for service by Church World Service, Lutheran World Relief and the Mennonite Central Committee. In Viet Nam the three agencies operate through Viet Nam Christian Service, an organization formed in January.

VCS hopes to establish about ten social welfare centers in strategic Viet Nam refugee areas this year. At present there are 800,000 refugees in South Viet Nam and the number is increasing daily. Already some 29 volunteers are working in the suburbs of Saigon, Pleiku, and Nha Trang giving medical and social aid to thousands of refugees there.

Land Given For Church At Ruston

A one and one-half acre site for a church building has been donated to the new First Southern Methodist Church of Ruston by Mr. and Mrs. Mett S. Carroll.

The land is located in Park Meadow Subdivision which is being developed by Carroll.

In making the land donation, Carroll said, "The church is the only answer for aiding and rehabilitating of man in today's changing America."

Plans are being drawn for an English country - style church building which will be located at the corner of Kentucky Avenue and Goodwin Road. Construction is scheduled for 1967.

Dan Campbell is president of the church Board of Stewards, and Major James A. Webb Jr., is treasurer.

Democrats Encounter Opposition Tuesday

General elections will be held Tuesday in three area municipalities as five Republicans and one independent candidate seek to upset the Democratic nominees for city offices.

Voters will go to the polls in Jonesboro, Gilbert and Winnfield.

A slate of five candidates oppose the Democratic hopefuls in the first general election in the history of Jonesboro. Henry E. Runyon is the GOP candidate running against Lelon C. Swanner, chosen in the May 14 runoff as the Democratic nominee for mayor.

The four Republicans running for the five - member Board of Aldermen are Wilbur C. (Woody) McDonald Jr., J. F. (Jack) Richardson, George E. Warner and Russell Wink.

They will oppose the Democratic slate composed of Veldon Brown, D. C. Collins, James P. Gimber, Jack E. Jaggers and E. L. Thompson.

In Gilbert, voters will have the option of casting their ballots for a write - in candidate for the first time since around 1900. R. M. Shelton qualified as an independent candidate for alderman.

The Democratic nominees for the three - man board are Joe C. Hair, Tanzy Lachney and R. W. Rogers.

City officials said that a roll of paper resembling adding machine tape would be placed under the levers on the voting machines, and that voters selecting Shelton as their choice would then write his name on the paper. They can also vote for two other candidates.

Mrs. Mary W. Allen, incumbent Winnfield mayor, is expected to encounter the most opposition in the area, as she faces a challenge by Republican nominee W. H. (Jake) Cameron.

All officials in other towns in the area will be declared elected, since they have no Republican opposition in the general election.

Bank Slates Operations At New Site

American Bank and Trust Co. will begin operations Wednesday in its new building at 1500 N. 18th St. in Monroe, according to Sebron M. Sneed, executive vice president. Formal opening will be Saturday, June 18.

Since its opening on June 15, 1964, the bank has conducted business in a temporary location at 2007 Roselawn. It will close its doors to business there at noon Tuesday in order to make the move to the new quarters.

In making the announcement Sneed said, "We want to express again our appreciation to friends and customers for their patience and indulgence with us during the past two years that we've served them in our temporary facilities. We look forward to welcoming them Wednesday at 9 a.m. in our magnificent new building. We invite one and all to visit us during open house Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Our plant features several 'firsts' and innovations. We think the general public will share our tremendous enthusiasm for the beauty and utility of the new building."

American Bank was founded by local businessmen, including Sen. Jamar W. Adcock, William R. Boles, Stanley Bagwell, Murphy Blackwell Jr., L. D. Ritter and O. D. Westbrook.

Election Tuesday Will Test GOP

By VERNON GUIDRY
World Staff Writer

Three letters will make Tuesday an election day with a difference for voters in West Monroe and Sterlington. Those letters are GOP.

For the general election on the west bank, the Republicans have lined up a mayoralty hopeful and two aldermanic candidates to face a full Democratic slate of six. In Sterlington, a lone Republican and five Democrats are running for the board of alderman.

Looking for the mayor's job are Bert Hatten, Democrat, W. G. Haynes Jr., a Republican hoping to spoil the all-Demo tradition of West Monroe politics. Hatten is a proven vote getter, taking his primary opponent, Alderman Buddy DeLoach, by a better than 4-1 margin. Haynes, there not being enough GOP aspirants around to warrant an intramural election, is untried at the polls.

Democratic candidates for alderman, in the order of their finish, are Roland Nix, Jeff W. Caldwell Jr., Truett Thorn, Charles Anding, incumbent, and Dr. E. S. Blackmon. Blackmon won his nominaiton in a second primary where he out-distanced incumbent Mrs. Joyce T. Smith. The others went in on the first ballot.

Republicans in the race are Hoarce Eyre and Kenneth Adams. The seven-man race is for five places on the town's board of aldermen.

In Sterlington, the GOP candidate is the Rev. Phillip Powell.

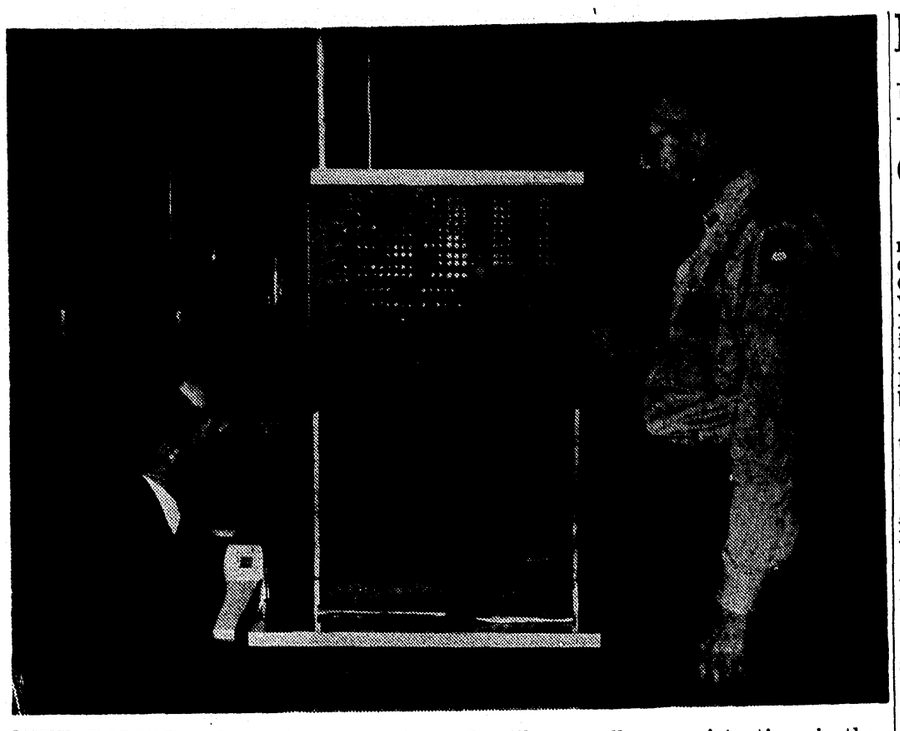
Democratic candidates, in the order they were voted nomination, are John E. Plunkett, J. E. Barton, Baxter Sinclair, Dr. Henry E. Jones and James Rainwater. This race is also for a five-seat board of aldermen.

The races for mayor and marshal in Sterlington were decided in Democratic primaries because no Republicans filed for these offices. Marvin Brantley was elected mayor in the first primary and Jess Cain was named marshal in the second party race.

Voters in the community were given a jolt when they prepared for the first primary in April — their first trip to the polls as a municipality. A Morning World check revealed that no distinction was being made between voters living in and out of the town's limits when they were listed at the Ouachita Parish Registrar of Voters office.

Democratic poll commissioners said they had no difficulty in indentifying in-town voters in the two primaries and anticipated no trouble in the general election. Some 368 cast ballots in the first primary. Registrar's rolls list over 700 voters in Ward 1, Precinct 2, which includes Sterlington.

In West Monroe, 3,344 voted in the first primary, roughly about 60 per cent of those eligible.



NEW POLICE information computer system equipment like this will aid officers in apprehending wanted persons faster rather than waiting for hours or even days for needed information. It will store all car registrations in the state for instant recall as well as switching police messages of all kinds automatically.

Police Information System Announced

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Gov. John J. McKeithen said Saturday the state has ordered an advanced computer - based "real time" police information system "that's sure to improve the effectivity of every law enforcement agency in Louisiana."

He said the system will put the state's 2,000 working law enforcement officers "within seconds" of a giant master electronic file of vital police information they now sometimes wait hours and even days to get.

First of its kind in the nation, the system represents "our most significant step in years in our war against crime in this state," McKeithen added. He said it is a bold, pioneering concept that will revolutionize police work, make for faster apprehension of criminals, and place Louisiana among the foremost leaders in crime control.

The system. . . .a UNIVAC 418 that's so fast it can scan a list of all the state's 2,000,000 automobile registrations in less than a second. . . .will be installed at Louisiana State Police Headquarters here January 1.

It will electronically "store" all the state's vehicle registration records and a list of all stolen cars in the state and in the nation for instant retrieval on demand. The Univac also will automatically switch police messages of all types, including requests for apprehension and descriptions of wanted persons.

Each of the 13 state police troop headquarters over the state will have direct, instantaneous and automatic access to the computer "file" by means of a Teletype network feeding directly into it, the governor said. Local law enforcement agencies can use the same facilities by radioing or telephoning nearest them. Troop dispatchers will query the computer and relay its answers to the local agencies.

"Later we expect to invite sheriff's networks and police departments in major cities to install direct lines into the State Police Univac center," the governor said.

As queries for information feed from over the state into the Univac system, the computer will automatically establish priorities and search its file and "find" requested data in millionths of a second. Then it will send its answers immediately back to the requesting stations, McKeithen added.

The impact on standard police operating procedures will be far - reaching, said Colonel Thomas D. Burbank, Director of the Louisiana Department of Public Safety.

For example, he said, "Suppose somebody robs a bank in any Louisiana city today. If the local authorities suspect which direction the robber is headed, they usually put out a call for road blocks in that direction first. Later, as they get time, they inform other people.

"With this system, the same officers will need to file only one message. It will come to our computer which, assigning it top priority, will send the message to all points within seconds."

Similarly, he added, "Our policemen will know more about their suspect before they ever stop a car on the road. They can radio their dispatcher and ask for a rundown on any given license number. Within a minute or two, the dispatcher will have a complete report from our Univac system. The patrolman can check the license tag number against the description of the car on file in the Univac. If the license number has been switched, he can logically suspect that the car may have been stolen. In this way, we believe we may actually be able to recover stolen cars even before their owners know the cars have been stolen.

"Before he stops any automobile, the patrolman can know whether it has been reported stolen or has been involved in a recent crime of any kind to the knowledge of police. If there is a 'make' against the vehicle, he will know to proceed with extreme caution.

Train Kills Five Youths On Trestles

By United Press International

In two widely separated places in the Chicago area Saturday, trains roared across a trestle and caught children unawares. In their confusion, five youngsters were killed. One boy lived because he stumbled and fell.

In Michigan City, Ind., Dianne Hays, 13, Stephen Stark, 10, and Doug Pappel, 6—and their dog, Teddy—were killed by a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train.

On Chicago's far Northwest side, Diane Zornick, 13, and her sister, Marlene, were killed by a Milwaukee Road passenger train.

In Altona, Ill., Fred Robertson, 82, was killed when he apparently failed to see a Burlington Railroad freight train and walked into the side of it.

In Michigan City, Jimmy Schroeder, 10, said he and the three victims had gone to the trestle to play—"and all of a sudden the train came."

The three victims started to run for the end of the bridge. They never made it. Jimmy stumbled and fell. The train passed over him, and he had only a cut on the hip to show for it.

Diane and Marlene also tried to outrun the train, but failed. Railroad officials said the girls could have lived by jumping into the Chicago River below, or simply crossing to the other side of the double track trestle.

De Gaulle Dim About Winners

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle, presiding at the French Academy of Sciences 300th anniversary party, met Britain's Dorothy Crowfoot Hodgkin, 1964 Nobel chemistry prize winner.

"There probably have not been many women who have won the Nobel Prize for chemistry," De Gaulle allowed.

"There was Madame (Marie) Curie," Mrs. Hodgkin reminded him, recalling the 1911 chemistry winner and a sharer of the 1905 physics award with her husband, Pierre Curie. De Gaulle paused and then said, "Alas, she is dead."

A less acclaimed French couple, the late ideologically controversial Irene Joliot-Curie and Frederic Joliot-Curie, won the chemistry prize in 1935.

Business Briefs

NAMED PRESIDENT

Al Gartner, former executive vice president of the Zale Corporation, has been named president of the new Zale Stores Division by Ben A. Lipshy, Zale president. Gartner will remain a member of the corporation's board of directors and of its its three - man executive committe.

GARTNER

Lipshy also appointed Marvin Rubin as executive vice president and Lew Zale as vice president of the division which operates the 328 stores that make Zale the largest retail jewelry chain in the world.

The division, which is the biggest of the six new divisions announced recently in a new corporate structure, will open its first store in Hawaii this year.

Gartner, a native of Topeka, Kan., joined Morris B. Zale, founder of the retail jewelry chain, during the firm's early years. In 1939 he was appointed manager of the new acquired store in San Antonio, Tex., which was the eighth in the chain.

CREDIT UNION MEET

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — An education session concerning the federal union credit operations, various insurance programs and the war on poverty highlighted the 32nd annual meeting of the Louisiana Credit Union League at the Zung Hotel in New Orleans. John Peters of Monroe is first vice president of the league and also the director. Five credit unions attending from Monroe were Kraftman, Federal Employees, Louisiana Machinery, Monroe Telco and Twin City Catholic Credit Unions.

ART FESTIVAL

The Fourth Annual Festival of Art, co - sponsored by the Louisiana Art and Artists' Guild and the Sears Roebuck Foundation, which will be held June 29 through July 2 at the Sears' Florida Boulevard store in Baton Rouge, is open to any resident or former resident of Louisiana. The first place winner in each media will join the Sears' Collection of Southern Contemporary Art for a one year tour of 40 major cities. All exhibits should be delivered to Sears' loading dock between 9 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. June 25, but entries should be registered by June 18.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

The board of directors of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation have declared a quarterly dividend of 33½ cents per share on outstanding shares of common stock, payable on July 15 to shareholders of record at the close of business on June 17.

The dividend is equivalent to an annual rate of $1.35 per share.

ZALE CONTRIBUTION

Five employees of the local Zale Jewelers are among the recipients of a company contribution of $1,489,500 to the Zale Employees' Profit Sharing Plan which provides each participating employee with 13.6 per cent of his annual salary, equal to an additional seven weeks' salary.

They are Roosevelt Clark, Pat DeLaSalle, Gene Hudson, Robert Schwartz and Frances Zagone, according to Schwartz, local Zale manager. He added that this year's contribution is an increase of 14 per cent over last year's company contribution which was made possible by a record rise in company earnings for the fiscal year ending Mar. 31.

Democrats Encounter Opposition Tuesday

General elections will be held Tuesday in three area municipalities as five Republicans and one independent candidate seek to upset the Democratic nominees for city offices.

Voters will go to the polls in Jonesboro, Gilbert and Winnfield.

A slate of five candidates oppose the Democratic hopefuls in the first general election in the history of Jonesboro. Henry E. Runyon is the GOP candidate running against Lelon C. Swanner, chosen in the May 14 runoff as the Democratic nominee for mayor.

The four Republicans running for the five - member Board of Aldermen are Wilbur C. (Woody) McDonald Jr., J. F. (Jack) Richardson, George E. Warner and Russell Wink.

They will oppose the Democratic slate composed of Veldon Brown, D. C. Collins, James P. Gimber, Jack E. Jaggers and E. L. Thompson.

In Gilbert, voters will have the option of casting their ballots for a write - in candidate for the first time since around 1900. R. M. Shelton qualified as an independent candidate for alderman.

The Democratic nominees for the three - man board are Joe C. Hair, Tanzy Lachney and R. W. Rogers.

City officials said that a roll of paper resembling adding machine tape would be placed under the levers on the voting machines, and that voters selecting Shelton as their choice would then write his name on the paper. They can also vote for two other candidates.

Mrs. Mary W. Allen, incumbent Winnfield mayor, is expected to encounter the most opposition in the area, as she faces a challenge by Republican nominee W. H. (Jake) Cameron.

All officials in other towns in the area will be declared elected, since they have no Republican opposition in the general election.

Bank Slates Operations At New Site

American Bank and Trust Co. will begin operations Wednesday in its new building at 1500 N. 18th St. in Monroe, according to Sebron M. Sneed, executive vice president. Formal opening will be Saturday, June 18.

Since its opening on June 15, 1964, the bank has conducted business in a temporary location at 2007 Roselawn. It will close its doors to business there at noon Tuesday in order to make the move to the new quarters.

In making the announcement Sneed said, "We want to express again our appreciation to friends and customers for their patience and indulgence with us during the past two years that we've served them in our temporary facilities. We look forward to welcoming them Wednesday at 9 a.m. in our magnificent new building. We invite one and all to visit us during open house Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Our plant features several 'firsts' and innovations. We think the general public will share our tremendous enthusiasm for the beauty and utility of the new building."

American Bank was founded by local businessmen, including Sen. Jamar W. Adcock, William R. Boles, Stanley Bagwell, Murphy Blackwell Jr., L. D. Ritter and O. D. Westbrook.

NEW POLICE information computer system equipment like this will aid officers in apprehending wanted persons faster rather than waiting for hours or even days for needed information. It will store all car registrations in the state for instant recall as well as switching police messages of all kinds automatically.

Police Information System Announced

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Gov. John J. McKeithen said Saturday the state has ordered an advanced computer - based "real time" police information system "that's sure to improve the effectivity of every law enforcement agency in Louisiana."

He said the system will put the state's 2,000 working law enforcement officers "within seconds" of a giant master electronic file of vital police information they now sometimes wait hours and even days to get.

First of its kind in the nation, the system represents "our most significant step in years in our war against crime in this state," McKeithen added. He said it is a bold, pioneering concept that will revolutionize police work, make for faster apprehension of criminals, and place Louisiana among the foremost leaders in crime control.

The system. . . .a UNIVAC 418 that's so fast it can scan a list of all the state's 2,000,000 automobile registrations in less than a second. . . .will be installed at Louisiana State Police Headquarters here January 1.

It will electronically "store" all the state's vehicle registration records and a list of all stolen cars in the state and in the nation for instant retrieval on demand. The Univac also will automatically switch police messages of all types, including requests for apprehension and descriptions of wanted persons.

Each of the 13 state police troop headquarters over the state will have direct, instantaneous and automatic access to the computer "file" by means of a Teletype network feeding directly into it, the governor said. Local law enforcement agencies can use the same facilities by radioing or telephoning nearest them. Troop dispatchers will query the computer and relay its answers to the local agencies.

"Later we expect to invite sheriff's networks and police departments in major cities to install direct lines into the State Police Univac center," the governor said.

As queries for information feed from over the state into the Univac system, the computer will automatically establish priorities and search its file and "find" requested data in millionths of a second. Then it will send its answers immediately back to the requesting stations, McKeithen added.

The impact on standard police operating procedures will be far - reaching, said Colonel Thomas D. Burbank, Director of the Louisiana Department of Public Safety.

For example, he said, "Suppose somebody robs a bank in any Louisiana city today. If the local authorities suspect which direction the robber is headed, they usually put out a call for road blocks in that direction first. Later, as they get time, they inform other people.

"With this system, the same officers will need to file only one message. It will come to our computer which, assigning it top priority, will send the message to all points within seconds."

Similarly, he added, "Our policemen will know more about their suspect before they ever stop a car on the road. They can radio their dispatcher and ask for a rundown on any given license number. Within a minute or two, the dispatcher will have a complete report from our Univac system. The patrolman can check the license tag number against the description of the car on file in the Univac. If the license number has been switched, he can logically suspect that the car may have been stolen. In this way, we believe we may actually be able to recover stolen cars even before their owners know the cars have been stolen.

"Before he stops any automobile, the patrolman can know whether it has been reported stolen or has been involved in a recent crime of any kind to the knowledge of police. If there is a 'make' against the vehicle, he will know to proceed with extreme caution.

Train Kills Five Youths On Trestles

By United Press International

In two widely separated places in the Chicago area Saturday, trains roared across a trestle and caught children unawares. In their confusion, five youngsters were killed. One boy lived because he stumbled and fell.

In Michigan City, Ind., Dianne Hays, 13, Stephen Stark, 10, and Doug Pappel, 6—and their dog, Teddy—were killed by a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train.

On Chicago's far Northwest side, Diane Zornick, 13, and her sister, Marlene, were killed by a Milwaukee Road passenger train.

In Altona, Ill., Fred Robertson, 82, was killed when he apparently failed to see a Burlington Railroad freight train and walked into the side of it.

In Michigan City, Jimmy Schroeder, 10, said he and the three victims had gone to the trestle to play—"and all of a sudden the train came."

The three victims started to run for the end of the bridge. They never made it. Jimmy stumbled and fell. The train passed over him, and he had only a cut on the hip to show for it.

Diane and Marlene also tried to outrun the train, but failed. Railroad officials said the girls could have lived by jumping into the Chicago River below, or simply crossing to the other side of the double track trestle.

De Gaulle Dim About Winners

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle, presiding at the French Academy of Sciences 300th anniversary party, met Britain's Dorothy Crowfoot Hodgkin, 1964 Nobel chemistry prize winner.

"There probably have not been many women who have won the Nobel Prize for chemistry," De Gaulle allowed.

"There was Madame (Marie) Curie," Mrs. Hodgkin reminded him, recalling the 1911 chemistry winner and a sharer of the 1905 physics award with her husband, Pierre Curie. De Gaulle paused and then said, "Alas, she is dead."

A less acclaimed French couple, the late ideologically controversial Irene Joliot-Curie and Frederic Joliot-Curie, won the chemistry prize in 1935.

Election Tuesday Will Test GOP

By VERNON GUIDRY
World Staff Writer

Three letters will make Tuesday an election day with a difference for voters in West Monroe and Sterlington. Those letters are GOP.

For the general election on the west bank, the Republicans have lined up a mayoralty hopeful and two aldermanic candidates to face a full Democratic slate of six. In Sterlington, a lone Republican and five Democrats are running for the board of alderman.

Looking for the mayor's job are Bert Hatten, Democrat, W. G. Haynes Jr., a Republican hoping to spoil the all-Demo tradition of West Monroe politics. Hatten is a proven vote getter, taking his primary opponent, Alderman Buddy DeLoach, by a better than 4-1 margin. Haynes, there not being enough GOP aspirants around to warrant an intramural election, is untried at the polls.

Democratic candidates for alderman, in the order of their finish, are Roland Nix, Jeff W. Caldwell Jr., Truett Thorn, Charles Anding, incumbent, and Dr. E. S. Blackmon. Blackmon won his nominaiton in a second primary where he out-distanced incumbent Mrs. Joyce T. Smith. The others went in on the first ballot.

Republicans in the race are Hoarce Eyre and Kenneth Adams. The seven-man race is for five places on the town's board of aldermen.

In Sterlington, the GOP candidate is the Rev. Phillip Powell.

Democratic candidates, in the order they were voted nomination, are John E. Plunkett, J. E. Barton, Baxter Sinclair, Dr. Henry E. Jones and James Rainwater. This race is also for a five-seat board of aldermen.

The races for mayor and marshal in Sterlington were decided in Democratic primaries because no Republicans filed for these offices. Marvin Brantley was elected mayor in the first primary and Jess Cain was named marshal in the second party race.

Voters in the community were given a jolt when they prepared for the first primary in April — their first trip to the polls as a municipality. A Morning World check revealed that no distinction was being made between voters living in and out of the town's limits when they were listed at the Ouachita Parish Registrar of Voters office.

Democratic poll commissioners said they had no difficulty in indentifying in-town voters in the two primaries and anticipated no trouble in the general election. Some 368 cast ballots in the first primary. Registrar's rolls list over 700 voters in Ward 1, Precinct 2, which includes Sterlington.

In West Monroe, 3,344 voted in the first primary, roughly about 60 per cent of those eligible.

Public Safe From Bacteria

TOPEKA (AP) —There is no danger to the public from bacteria in the tornado-damaged state public health laboratory, Dr. Nicholas D. Duffett said Saturday.

Duffett is director of state laboratory services.

He inspected the laboratories, which were severely damaged in the tornado and said there was little breakage of containers holding hazardous tuberculosis cultures.

Rites Today For Victim Of Cave-In

RAYVILLE (Special) — Funeral services will be held today at 2 p.m. at Woolen Lake Church near Hebert for David W. Elledge of Hebert who died Friday when buried by a cave-in on the construction site where he was working near New Orleans. It was his 17th birthday.

Burial will be in Etier Cemetery near Hebert under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home in Rayville.

According to Orleans Sheriff's officials, the Elledge youth was employed by the McGinnis Bros. Co., of Houston, Tex., which was laying a large water main near Westwego.

The body was found by a fellow workman digging in loose soil, authorities related.

Survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elledge; two brothers, Ralph, USN, and Robert Elledge, New Orleans; five sisters, Mrs. Irene Brady, Orange, Tex., Leora, Lillianne and Effy Lea Elledge, all of Hebert, and Mrs. Lyn Clark, S. Business Briefs

NAMED PRESIDENT

Al Gartner, former executive vice president of the Zale Corporation, has been named president of the new Zale Stores Division by Ben A. Lipshy, Zale president. Gartner will remain a member of the corporation's board of directors and of its its three - man executive committe.

GARTNER

Lipshy also appointed Marvin Rubin as executive vice president and Lew Zale as vice president of the division which operates the 328 stores that make Zale the largest retail jewelry chain in the world.

The division, which is the biggest of the six new divisions announced recently in a new corporate structure, will open its first store in Hawaii this year.

Gartner, a native of Topeka, Kan., joined Morris B. Zale, founder of the retail jewelry chain, during the firm's early years. In 1939 he was appointed manager of the new acquired store in San Antonio, Tex., which was the eighth in the chain.

CREDIT UNION MEET

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — An education session concerning the federal union credit operations, various insurance programs and the war on poverty highlighted the 32nd annual meeting of the Louisiana Credit Union League at the Zung Hotel in New Orleans. John Peters of Monroe is first vice president of the league and also the director. Five credit unions attending from Monroe were Kraftman, Federal Employees, Louisiana Machinery, Monroe Telco and Twin City Catholic Credit Unions.

ART FESTIVAL

The Fourth Annual Festival of Art, co - sponsored by the Louisiana Art and Artists' Guild and the Sears Roebuck Foundation, which will be held June 29 through July 2 at the Sears' Florida Boulevard store in Baton Rouge, is open to any resident or former resident of Louisiana. The first place winner in each media will join the Sears' Collection of Southern Contemporary Art for a one year tour of 40 major cities. All exhibits should be delivered to Sears' loading dock between 9 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. June 25, but entries should be registered by June 18.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

The board of directors of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation have declared a quarterly dividend of 33¾ cents per share on outstanding shares of common stock, payable on July 15 to shareholders of record at the close of business on June 17.

The dividend is equivalent to an annual rate of $1.35 per share.

ZALE CONTRIBUTION

Five employees of the local Zale Jewelers are among the recipients of a company contribution of $1,489,500 to the Zale Employees' Profit Sharing Plan which provides each participating employee with 13.6 per cent of his annual salary, equal to an additional seven weeks' salary.

They are Roosevelt Clark, Pat DeLaSalle, Gene Hudson, Robert Schwartz and Frances Zagone, according to Schwartz, local Zale manager. He added that this year's contribution is an increase of 14 per cent over last year's company contribution which was made possible by a record rise in company earnings for the fiscal year ending Mar. 31.

Automated Ship Rips Up Dock At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Damages were expected to tally in the thousands of dollars after a highly automated cargo ship went out of control and ripped up 75 feet of wharf.

No injuries were reported Friday night when the Mallory Lykes went out of control shortly after being launched. The ship developed a steering control problem and crewmen were unable to slow down the vessel.

Waterman Steamship Co. owns the Orange Street Wharf where the ship struck. Exact damages were not available as workers examined the wreckage Saturday.

Automated Ship Rips Up Dock At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Damages were expected to tally in the thousands of dollars after a highly automated cargo ship went out of control and ripped up 75 feet of wharf.

No injuries were reported Friday night when the Mallory Lykes went out of control shortly after being launched. The ship developed a steering control problem and crewmen were unable to slow down the vessel.

Waterman Steamship Co. owns the Orange Street Wharf where the ship struck. Exact damages were not available as workers examined the wreckage Saturday.

Away From Home

Richard Enwright

The Star Of Al-Andalus

The Guadalquivir begins at Tranco de Beas which is a lake in the Segura mountains of southern Spain. It wanders near Linares, Bailen, Andujar, and Cordoba and begins its drop to the Atlantic Ocean on the plain of Andalusia at Seville.

Once the river was part of a triangular sea arm which connected the Atlantic with the Mediterranean. Later the land rose, and the peninsula now known as "Iberia" emerged.

The old river could remember many languages. It would have known the Iberian of the old people who were among the first. It knew the Visigoths, a people from the north German forests. The Romans built a fort where the river came near the tidal swamps, and those times brought order and established government. The river came to cherish the Arabs who brought with them a name and a heritage.

Some say there was an earlier time — that shrouded in the mystery of eight thousand years was Tartessus, a great seaport where the river met the sea. Solomon's ships, it was said, came every three years to Tartessus, and in the legend of the lost continent of Atlantis, mention is made of that city and the river.

Now in the time of spring, the Guadalquivir flows silently through Seville. From a balcony window, you can see a park which touches the river bank. There is a light mist of early morning which hangs beneath the trees and on the surface of the water. Boats glide under the bridge of San Telmo, and traffic streams along the Avenue San Jurjo. You can see the Gold Tower from whence sailed voyages of discovery.

Of all the Spanish cities, Seville is one of "the most Spanish." With the river, the city has shared the times and tides of men and has survived the worst and the best. From a platoon of each of the passing parades, the city has kept something to remember.

Seville is like Paris with a Spanish - Moorish accent. It is a city of broad avenues, trees, parks, cathedrals, and sidewalk cafes. It is one of narrow streets, exotic sounds, and horse drawn carriages which vie with orange and black taxis swirling around the many ornate fountains.

If Sevillians live long lives, it is no surprise for the live the good life. There is no mad race to destiny. The day is divided into periods of work and rest with enough time for both. Especially in the summer is there enough time for rest, and at noon until four when the sun is lower, business stops. Only tourists are abroad for Sevillians are closed inside their thick - walled, cool houses away from the heat.

Later is the time of the sidewalk cafe and a cold citrus drink. Across the way is the Archives building wherein the records and maps of Spanish America are stored. Down the street, you can see the Giralda Cathedral, one of the largest and most beautiful in the world. It is built on the site of the central mosque of Arab times. Nearby is the palace and gardens of Alcazar, and if the Prophet appeared at the gate calling the faithful to prayer, hardly anyone would lift an eye from their aperatifs.

Seville is the Puerta de Jerez where once citizens greeted ships filled with gold, returned from the Americas. Now, there is a fountain, and in the afternoon, traffic moves near the silvery water and passes the palm and citrus surrounded Alfonso XIII which is more a palace than a hotel.

In the park of Maria Louise are many marble Roman busts, a lover's tree, and flocks of white pigeons which land where children play. At the Palace of the Americas is a lake on which the adventurous may row small boats under trees in the gathering dusk.

Seville is the city of Santa Cruz, and nowhere could there be narrower, more fascinating streets than near the little square in the old area. There is the good life of the day, and the very gay life at night. In the Bodega of the Hotel Cristina, flamencos whirl, and visitors relive storybooks and exotic tour folders. At the Restaurante Tore del Oro is paella and Andalusian gazpacho soup.

At midnight, the city is still quite alive. Across the river, strands of lights at a waterside cafe are reflected on the Guadalquivir as it passes the city loved by the Arabs as the Star of al-Andalus, and glides to the sea.

Seeks End Of NATO, Warsaw Agreement

Romanian Leader Talks With Brezhnev On Pact

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist Chief Leonid Brezhnev conferred Saturday with Romanian Foreign Minister Cornelius Manescu shortly after Romanian's Red leader Nicolae Ceausescu called for an end to both the Warsaw Pact and NATO.

A brief Tass announcement, which said the Romanian asked for the talk, was the first official word that Manescu was in Moscow. The meeting added to the mystery surrounding relations between the Soviet Union and independent-minded Romania.

Romania has been balking at Soviet Leadership of the east European bloc.

Warsaw Pact foreign ministers reportedly held a meeting in Moscow the first three days of this week but that was never confirmed officially or mentioned in the Soviet press.

Brezhnev rushed to Bucharest May 10 after Ceausescu made a speech in which he rejected Soviet claims to supreme leadership in East Europe.

The communique issued at the end of his three-day visit failed to contain the assertion of unity of views which is usual between east European countries.

The tass announcement Saturday said only that Brezhnev and Manescu "had a friendly meeting."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and the Romanian ambassador in Moscow, Teodor Marinescu, were also present at Saturday's meeting.

Romania has for several years led the fight within the east bloc for the individual countries to stay economically independent. The Soviet Union had tried to integrate them into a single economic unit.

Ceausescu's May 7 speech was taken to be a demand for similar independence in the military and political matters handled by the Soviet-dominated Warsaw Pact.

Romanian sources here said after the speech that their country was insisting that each member nation have a veto right over Warsaw Pact decisions.

Saturday Ceausescu said Romania will remain in the Warsaw Pact as long as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization exists. But he made it clear he regards such alliances as generally undesirable.

The Warsaw Pact has been one means used by the Soviet Union to hold East Europe together and get it to act as a unit in international affairs.

Better than making friends with the butcher . . . because PRIME AND CHOICE PFAELZER STEAKS AREN'T SOLD IN ANY MARKET. They're the steaks served in America's finest restaurants and clubs. Each is aged for flavor and fork tenderness. So tender that a knife is merely a social gesture. Yes . . . aged to perfect succulent. They're prepared at Cascio's just as you like them, with a large baked Idaho potato, and crisp salad.

The Star Of Al-Andalus

The Guadalquivir begins at Tranco de Beas which is a lake in the Segura mountains of southern Spain. It wanders near Linares, Bailen, Andujar, and Cordoba and begins its drop to the Atlantic Ocean on the plain of Andalusia at Seville.

Once the river was part of a triangular sea arm which connected the Atlantic with the Mediterranean. Later the land rose, and the peninsula now known as "Iberia" emerged.

The old river could remember many languages. It would have known the Iberian of the old people who were among the first. It knew the Visigoths, a people from the north German forests. The Romans built a fort where the river came near the tidal swamps, and those times brought order and established government. The river came to cherish the Arabs who brought with them a name and a heritage.

Some say there was an earlier time — that shrouded in the mystery of eight thousand years was Tartessus, a great seaport where the river met the sea. Solomon's ships, it was said, came every three years to Tartessus, and in the legend of the lost continent of Atlantis, mention is made of that city and the river.

Now in the time of spring, the Guadalquivir flows silently through Seville. From a balcony window, you can see a park which touches the river bank. There is a light mist of early morning which hangs beneath the trees and on the surface of the water. Boats glide under the bridge of San Telmo, and traffic streams along the Avenue San Jurjo. You can see the Gold Tower from whence sailed voyages of discovery.

Of all the Spanish cities, Seville is one of "the most Spanish." With the river, the city has shared the times and tides of men and has survived the worst and the best. From a platoon of each of the passing parades, the city has kept something to remember.

Seville is like Paris with a Spanish - Moorish accent. It is a city of broad avenues, trees, parks, cathedrals, and sidewalk cafes. It is one of narrow streets, exotic sounds, and horse drawn carriages which vie with orange and black taxis swirling around the many ornate fountains.

If Sevillians live long lives, it is no surprise for the live the good life. There is no mad race to destiny. The day is divided into periods of work and rest with enough time for both. Especially in the summer is there enough time for rest, and at noon until four when the sun is lower, business stops. Only tourists are abroad for Sevillians are closed inside their thick - walled, cool houses away from the heat.

Later is the time of the sidewalk cafe and a cold citrus drink. Across the way is the Archives building wherein the records and maps of Spanish America are stored. Down the street, you can see the Giralda Cathedral, one of the largest and most beautiful in the world. It is built on the site of the central mosque of Arab times. Nearby is the palace and gardens of Alcazar, and if the Prophet appeared at the gate calling the faithful to prayer, hardly anyone would lift an eye from their aperatifs.

Seville is the Puerta de Jerez where once citizens greeted ships filled with gold, returned from the Americas. Now, there is a fountain, and in the afternoon, traffic moves near the silvery water and passes the palm and citrus surrounded Alfonso XIII which is more a palace than a hotel.

In the park of Maria Louise are many marble Roman busts, a lover's tree, and flocks of white pigeons which land where children play. At the Palace of the Americas is a lake on which the adventurous may row small boats under trees in the gathering dusk.

Seville is the city of Santa Cruz, and nowhere could there be narrower, more fascinating streets than near the little square in the old area. There is the good life of the day, and the very gay life at night. In the Bodega of the Hotel Cristina, flamencos whirl, and visitors relive storybooks and exotic tour folders. At the Restaurante Tore del Oro is paella and Andalusian gazpacho soup.

At midnight, the city is still quite alive. Across the river, strands of lights at a waterside cafe are reflected on the Guadalquivir as it passes the city loved by the Arabs as the Star of al-Andalus, and glides to the sea.

Seeks End Of NATO, Warsaw Agreement

Romanian Leader Talks With Brezhnev On Pact

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist Chief Leonid Brezhnev conferred Saturday with Romanian Foreign Minister Cornelius Manescu shortly after Romanian's Red leader Nicolae Ceausescu called for an end to both the Warsaw Pact and NATO.

A brief Tass announcement, which said the Romanian asked for the talk, was the first official word that Manescu was in Moscow. The meeting added to the mystery surrounding relations between the Soviet Union and independent-minded Romania.

Romania has been balking at Soviet Leadership of the east European bloc.

Warsaw Pact foreign ministers reportedly held a meeting in Moscow the first three days of this week but that was never confirmed officially or mentioned in the Soviet press.

Brezhnev rushed to Bucharest May 10 after Ceausescu made a speech in which he rejected Soviet claims to supreme leadership in East Europe.

The communique issued at the end of his three-day visit failed to contain the assertion of unity of views which is usual between east European countries.

The tass announcement Saturday said only that Brezhnev and Manescu "had a friendly meeting."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and the Romanian ambassador in Moscow, Teodor Marinescu, were also present at Saturday's meeting.

Romania has for several years led the fight within the east bloc for the individual countries to stay economically independent. The Soviet Union had tried to integrate them into a single economic unit.

Ceausescu's May 7 speech was taken to be a demand for similar independence in the military and political matters handled by the Soviet-dominated Warsaw Pact.

Romanian sources here said after the speech that their country was insisting that each member nation have a veto right over Warsaw Pact decisions.

Saturday Ceausescu said Romania will remain in the Warsaw Pact as long as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization exists. But he made it clear he regards such alliances as generally undesirable.

The Warsaw Pact has been one means used by the Soviet Union to hold East Europe together and get it to act as a unit in international affairs.

DEAR FOLKS:

We turned this column over to the "younger set" about this time last year.

Since then we have received thousands of letters—from children AND adults—telling us how much they enjoyed that column, and asking for another.

So . . . we decided it was high time our wonderful young friends returned.

Aren't they terrific?

DEAR MISS HELOISE:

I just love to draw and color pictures of flowers and other things.

Last week, while Mom was getting things ready for my sister's birthday party, and had invited some of her best friends to share the fun, I offered to help her with the table decorations.

I saw that she had bought a package of different-colored napkins, so I decided to use my colored crayons and draw and color a flower on each one. I made the flower a different color from the napkin.

I folded each napkin in a triangle shape and then colored a flower near the point of each napkin. Then I wrote "Happy Birthday" across the bottom of the fold, with the same color crayon as the flower and wrote each child's name on their napkins.

My sister and everybody else at the party was pleased because they looked so pretty.

DEAR HELOISE:

When my mom lets us kids make popcorn balls, she buys penny lollipops from the store, and we remove the cellophane and mash the popcorn around the lollipop.

This way, we kids can eat the syrup-coated popcorn without our fingers getting sticky because we can hold onto the lollipop stick.

Besides we get to lick a lollipop when all the popcorn is gone.

DEAR HELOISE:

Every time my mother makes a pie, I use the leftover dough by rolling it out thin.

I use a stick of soft oleo to grease the dough lightly.

Put one-half tablespoon of cinnamon and a tablespoon of sugar in a cup and mix this up (add a little more of each if you have lots of dough).

Spread the mixture over the dough evenly and roll it up tightly into a roll. Cut this roll into little half-inch slices. Lay them on an ungreased pan, and bake them in the oven.

When they look slightly brown and crusty, take them out of the oven, and you have little miniature cinnamon rolls!

They are nice and crunchy and crisp.

DEAR HELOISE:

I am 15 and have three smaller sisters and one small brother. I have found a way to prevent fights on rainy days.

Take the comic page out of the newspaper and cut the cartoons apart instead of leaving them in a line. Let the kids mix them up then put them back in a line again and try to read the story.

I myself find this quite amusing as the stories are so cute.

DEAR HELOISE:

My mother makes me iron my own clothes. I have really learned how to save some time that mothers who have daughters might like to know about.

After I wash a drip-dry dress, and it has stopped dripping (or one that I have ironed that is still damp in places), I put it on a coat hanger, and hang it above the air conditioner unit when it's summer, or above the heater unit in winter.

The small amount of air that comes from the unit "billows" the dress and removes the wrinkles, and it always dries quickly.

This saves me ironing time.

Most garments, when hung above these outlets while still slightly damp, do not even have to be ironed!

This includes some of Daddy's shirts which I always iron to help mother.

Usually a curtain rod is above the air outlet. Hang the hanger on the curtain rod. That's all there is to it.

This is also a good way to air out garments when you take them off, and before putting them in your closet.

I put a bandage on the end of my finger that I use now, and it works fine.

LISTEN, JOHN. RIGHT NOW YOU'RE THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE! BUT CARELESS, WELL-MEANING REFORMS COULD TURN YOU FROM HERO TO VILLAIN IN ONE SHORT WEEK!

I'M BEGINNING TO REALIZE THAT!

WALK SOFTLY, JOHN, AND LISTEN TO KARL KRAIT! HE'S AN EXPERT ON SIN IN CITY GOVERNMENT! FROM NOW ON HE'S A REFORMED SINNER AND HE'S ON OUR SIDE! THINK IT OVER, EH?

I SURE WILL! YOU ALWAYS DID MAKE SENSE!

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF HIM, KARL?

AN HONEST YOUNG FELLOW WITH BRAINS -- AND JOHN LISTENS! I SAY HE'LL BE THE FINEST MAYOR WE'VE EVER HAD!

SO, TO JASON WOLFE'S VACANT MANSION:

WELL, JIM, I SEE YOU GOT HIS VAULT OPEN: FIND THOSE OLD LEDGERS?

SURE DID, LOU! IMAGINE HIM KEEPING THESE!

VANITY! BET HE'S SPENT HOURS GLOATING OVER HOW CLEVER HE WAS SWITCHING BOOKS, FORGING BANK RECORDS!

EVIDENCE TO PROVE EVERY CROOKED THING HE DID TO DISGRACE AND ROB YOUR FATHER!

AND I HAVE THE REST OF THE STORY! POSITIVE PROOF THAT JASON SHOT THAT INVESTIGATOR, AND HUNG IT ON YOUR DAD! WHY HAVE I KEPT SILENT, 'TIL NOW?

BECAUSE, IF YOU'D TALKED, YOU'D HAVE BEEN KILLED, ...'TIL NOW!

WHAT KIND OF A SHYSTER ARE YOU? ENOUGH DOUGH CAN SPRING ANYBODY!

FIFTY THOUSAND BOND? SINCE LOSING THAT ELECTION BET YOU CAN'T RAISE FIFTY CENTS!

WHILE "IN DURANCE VILE".

BUT MY FRIENDS! THOUSANDS OF 'EM! JUDGES, BANKERS; THEY'LL HELP ME!

ER... I'VE TRIED, MR. WOLFE. UNFORTUNATELY, THEY ALL SEEM SHORT OF CASH AT THIS TIME!
